WIFE AND MAN SHOT DOWN IN FAIRFAX FEUD

Lewis Oliver Accused of Wounding His Mate, Barbara Ritchie.

WILMER HOLBROOK IS ALSO BULLET VICTIM

Death of Former Senator Oliver in Altercation Marked Dispute.

The feud between the Ritchie and Oliver families of Fairfax County, which had already taken one life, flared anew last night when blasts from a double-barreled shotgun, allegedly held in the hands of Lewis Oliver, broke up a bridge party and felled his estranged wife and Wilmer Holbrook, 27 years old, of Fairfax.

In Georgetown University Hospital, Barbara Ritchie Oliver, 26, the daughter of A. C. Ritchie, former judge of the Fairfax Juvenile Court, lies at the point of death, her right shoulder, neck and the right side of her head partly shot away by a charge from the shotgun.

In the Fairfax County Jail is her husband, Lewis Oliver, son of the late State Senator Walter Tansill Oliver, who died November 23 from a fractured skull, as a result of an alleged encounter with Lewis Ritchie, the brother of Barbara Ritchie Oliver.

Marriage Caused Feud.

The feud between two of the outstanding families of Fairfax County, which had its genesis in the marriage of Barbara Ritchie and Lewis Oliver passed through its second tragic episode last night.

Lewis Oliver appeared at the home of Judge Ritchie. He was carrying a double-barreled shotgun. A card party was in progress. The players were John McCauley, Wilmer Holbrook, son of the late deputy clerk of the Fairfax Court; Virginia Ritchie, and her sister, Barbara Ritchie Oliver. Judge Ritchie was upstairs.

Holbrook and McCauley left the room for a few minutes. Then Oliver, the girls said, forced his way into the house. Nothing was said by him, they said. He had the gun slung under his arm. Then Holbrook and McCauley appeared.

Struggle Over Shotgun.

Oliver lifted the shotgun, and Holbrook grappled with him. A shot rang out and Holbrook sank to the

Boettcher Is Alive, Father Announces

Negotiations Established With Kidnapers, He Declares.

Denver, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—Charles Boettcher 2d, millionaire held for ransom since last Sunday night, is alive and well, his father, Claude K. Boettcher, announced tonight.

Communication has been established with the kidnappers, the elder Boettcher said, and inclosures in the letters have established authentically that the family is dealing with the real kidnapers. It was indicated that the inclosures were personal effects of the kidnaped man.

The elder Boettcher said the family was ready to pay the ransom demanded for release of the young man, but that in the communications received so far from the kidnapers, there had been no assurance of his safe return in case of payment.

Peru's Head Defies Foe

President Sanchez Cerro Cheered at Lima When He Tells Throngs National Territory Will Be Defended Against Colombia in Leticia Dispute.

Lima, Peru, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Enthusiastic crowds gathered in the main square in front of the palace last night heard President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro declare that "Peru is vibrating patriotically as the reaction to unjustified Colombian aggression" in the Leticia difficulty.

The president declared every step would be taken to defend national territory and continued: "I am sure that I can count upon the cooperation of patriotic Peruvians."

After the speech the crowd dispersed singing the national anthem.

Similar demonstrations were held in Callao and southern seaside resorts until late at night.

In his speech the president also charged that "a mercenary expedition carrying the Colombian flag" had

SIR RONALD MEETS ROOSEVELT TODAY

His Economic Advisers Help President-Elect Lay Basis for "New Deal."

New York, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—President-elect Roosevelt laid the basis for a "new deal" on world economics and war debts in a round of conferences today with his economic advisers on the eve of tomorrow's meeting with Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador.

The significant series of meetings throughout the day at the Roosevelt home on East Sixty-fifth street included such callers as Bernard M. Baruch, financial authority; Prof. Raymond Moley, expert on war debts;

Mrs. Roosevelt on Way Home After Seeing Sons

Groton, Mass., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President-elect, left by automobile today for Hyde Park, N. Y., after having spent the week-end with her sons, Franklin D. jr., and John, students at Groton School.

She spent Saturday night at the Parents' Home and accompanied her sons to chapel this morning.

Briand Suit

Woman Alleges Statesman Supported Her and Claims Pension.

Paris, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—The estate of Aristide Briand, former French foreign minister, has been sued by Mme. Jeanne Cornelie Nouteau, a lifelong friend of the French statesman, for $6,000, or a monthly pension of $60.

Mme. Nouteau will contend, according to her attorney, the noted criminal lawyer, Maurice Garcon, that M. Briand's conduct gave her a right to expect a share of the estate, but that everything was left to a niece.

M. Garcon said the former minister supported her and sent her $400 two months before he died.

Aristide Briand, French "apostle of peace," died March 7, 1932, at the age of 69. In addition to long service as head of the foreign office, he was premier a dozen times.

DUCE'S PAPER SEES "NEW WAR CLOUDS"

Says Europe's Peace Threatened, Charging France Arms Balkan Allies.

Milan, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—The assertion that the peace of Europe is being threatened was made today by Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, in summing up Fascist newspaper charges that France is arming her Balkan allies against Italy.

The Balkan bloc must be considered a "provocation," Il Popolo said, adding that new war clouds were collecting over the continent.

La Stampa, of Turin, printed a list of armaments it said were furnished to Jugoslavia and Roumania in the last few years by France, and asserted the French controlled armament factories in Czechoslovakia.

The Italian press recently attacked France on the ground that an alleged "ultimatum" sent by France and Great Britain to Austria in connec-

Gen. James Allen Is Dead Here at 84

Was Former Chief Signal Army Officer; Ill for Long Time.

Brig. Gen. James Allen, U. S. A., retired, former chief signal officer of the United States Army, died early yesterday in Walter Reed Hospital following a protracted illness. Death was attributed to paralysis.

Gen. Allen was born in Laporte, Ind., February 13, 1849. He was a graduate of West Point and first saw active military service during the Indian campaigns.

A pioneer in Army Signal Corps operations, Gen. Allen was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in Cuba. He was instrumental in the laying of the first Army communication cable from Seattle, Wash., to Alaska. It was during this expedition that his ship ran into an iceberg and the trip nearly ended in disaster.

Gen. Allen lived at the Army and Navy Club. Final funeral arrangements are awaiting the arrival of members of his family from Philadelphia. The funeral, however, has been tentatively set for tomorrow morning in the chapel at Fort Myer, Va.

DIXIE BANKER'S SLAYER HANGED BY MOB OF 500

Ringgold, La., Prisoner Confessed Attacking Victim's Wife.

WET WOOD AVERTED HIS BURNING ON PYRE

Had Been Wrested From Sheriff After He Admitted Murder and Outrage.

Ringgold, La., Feb. 19 (U.P.). A mob of more than 500 men tonight wrested a Negro from Bienville Parish officers, hanged him to a tree at the scene of his crime and fired more than 50 shots into his body.

A recent rain thwarted the announced plans of mob leaders to burn the man at a stake. Wood and brush around the place were too wet to burn.

The victim allegedly confessed that he killed J. P. Batchelor, 50-year-old banker, early today, and attacked Mrs. Batchelor after forcing them to walk 2 miles from their home in night clothes.

Body Is Left Hanging.

The killer gave his name as Nelson Nash, and his age as 24. Mob leaders allowed him to write the name of his mother on a piece of paper before they hanged him. The mother lives at Curtis, La.

The body was left hanging to the tree. Deputy Sheriff Charles Dugan said it probably would remain there until morning.

The mob quickly dispersed after the lynching and the town was quiet tonight.

The man was captured late today by parish officers. He was carrying a watch that was said to have belonged to the slain banker.

There was no jail here, so officers locked him in a garage. All available deputies stood guard. The mob assembled quickly. Guns were displayed threateningly. At one time the mob numbered almost 2,000 men from this and nearby towns. They demanded the prisoner's life.

Time and again they threatened to storm the garage. Sheriff Henderson Jordan pleaded with them. Early tonight the man allegedly confessed the killing and offered to lead officers to a place on the railroad tracks 2 miles from town, where he had disposed of the pistol he used to beat Batchelor to death.

Hanged at Crime Scene.

The officers started him for the place. The mob followed at a short distance. The trail led over the same route where, early today, the killer had forced the banker and his wife to walk.

A mile from town the mob closed in on the officers. They demanded the

WOODIN CALLED NEW CHOICE AS TREASURY HEAD

Friends of Hull Learn He Will Be Secretary of State.

EXPECTED TO MAKE DAVIS EUROPE AGENT

Senator Will Be First Southerner as Cabinet Head Since Calhoun.

(United Press.)

Friends of Senator Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, were informed yesterday that he definitely has been selected for Secretary of State and is making preparations to leave Capitol Hill.

At the same time it was said that with the refusal of Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, to become Secretary of the Treasury, William H. Woodin, president of the American Car & Foundry Co., and intimate friend of President-elect Roosevelt, was being considered for that post.

Earlier plans for shifting Senator Hull to this place have been abandoned. Senator Bronson Cutting (Republican), New Mexico, has indicated he would not accept the Interior Department post. This appeared to leave only two survivors of the original senatorial quartet the President-elect hoped to have in his Cabinet, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, as Attorney General, will be the other senator in the Roosevelt Cabinet in addition to Hull.

Will Make Use of Davis.

It also was learned yesterday that Senator Hull is expected to make important use of Norman Davis, former Undersecretary of State, in Europe. He is expected to recommend Davis' appointment to one of the principal ambassadorships in order that he may be constantly on the ground to give Washington the benefit of his long exerience and intimate knowledge dealing with disarmament, debts and the general economic conference.

A considerable change is expected to result when Senator Hull takes charge of the State Department. The change will be not only one of policy and of interest, since Hull is primarily concerned with tariff and economic problems rather than world politics, but the social aspects of this No. 1 Cabinet post will alter.

Secretary Stimson has made extensive use of his beautiful suburban estate, Woodley, as the scene of in-

"Old Ironsides" Robbed Of 24-lb Cannon Ball

San Pedro, Calif., Feb. 19 (A.P.). Theft of a cannon ball was reported aboard the U. S. S. Constitution today. How the pilferer got away with the shot no one could surmise because it is several inches in diameter and weighs 24 pounds.

Officers admitted this was one they had never "thought of," despite the fact that during the historic frigate's tour of American ports, a seven foot ramrod and even battle gongs have disappeared. As a result, practically every portable object except the cannon balls had been fastened down.

Col. Robins Finally Pays Visit to President Hoover

Prohibitionist Completes Trip Interrupted by His Disappearance Last September; He and Wife Take Lunch and Supper at White House.

(Associated Press.)

Col. Raymond Robins, prohibition advocate, who threw the Nation into an uproar when he disappeared more than five months ago while en route to visit President Hoover, yesterday finally completed his trip to the White House.

With Mrs. Robins accompanying him, the long-absent prohibitionist reached the Executive Mansion while the Chief Executive and Mrs. Hoover were attending church. The Robins had lunch and supper with the Hoovers and were invited to spend the night.

Probably by coincidence, the Robins' call upon the first family came upon the eve of action by the House upon a resolution to submit prohibition repeal to the States, a vote which observers forecast will take the question out of Congress and to the States.

No announcement was made at the White House of the visit by Robins and his wife, and newspapermen were not given opportunity during the first part of their visit for an interview.

Those who saw the friend of the President entering the White House yesterday said he appeared to be in excellent health. He was scheduled to have paid his call several weeks ago.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, one of the leaders in the World Christian Endeavor movement, a militant supporter of prohibition, and one of the most active searchers for Robins, said recently after a visit with President Hoover that his friend had delayed his call because he had mended more slowly than had been expected from an attack of amnesia to which physicians attributed his disappearance.

Dr. Poling reported that Robins worried because he could not pierce the blank in his memory that covered the nearly two months and a half during which he was widely sought.

He has been resting for more than two months in his home at Brooke-

TOKYO CABINET VOTES LEAGUE WITHDRAWAL; U. S. TO GUARD CITIZENS

Danger Discussed By Americans in Peiping.

PROTECTION PLANS AIRED

Citizens in Area Are Not in Peril at Present.

Peiping, China, Feb. 19 (U.P.). The imminence of war between China and Japan and possible danger to American lives and property in north China were discussed at an extraordinary conference today of United States diplomatic and military authorities here.

United States Minister Nelson T. Johnson called in Col. Walter S. Drisdale, military attache in the legation at Peiping, and his fellow officers in command of American Marine and Infantry forces in the Peiping-Tientsin area.

Others in Parley.

Others in the conference included Col. Reynolds Burt, commanding the United States Fifteenth Infantry Regiment stationed at Tientsin, and Col. Louis M. Gulick, commander of the United States Marines detachement in Peiping.

The danger that heavy fighting in Japan's anticipated invasion of Jehol Province, north of the Great Wall, might extend south of that ancient but now futile barrier, was considered and plans discussed for protection of Americans in the war zone.

Lasts More Than Hour.

The conference at the legation lasted more than an hour, the minister considering with military leaders latest dispatches in the complicated situation. It was agreed that while alertness was warranted, Americans in Peiping and Tientsin and vicinity at present were not in sufficient danger to evacuate or take other drastic precautions.

Grace Moore Reports Theft of $81,500 Gems

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 19 (A.P.). Grace Moore, opera singer, notified police today that jewelry she estimated to be worth $81,500 had been stolen from her hotel room.

Miss Moore, who in private life is Mrs. Valentine Parera, said she left the jewelry in a small trunk when she and her husband went for a swim today. She had placed the key to the trunk in a bureau drawer, she said. Police said two purses containing a sum of money and jewelry belonging to Parera, were not taken.

Lloyd's Reports Ship's Loss With One Saved

London, (Monday) Feb. 20 (A.P.). Lloyd's dispatch from Gijon, Spain, today, said the Spanish steamer Pena Castilla had foundered near the Spanish port of Luarca, all members of the crew, save one, having been lost.

Lloyd's registry does not list a ship named Pena Castilla, but it was suggested that the Pena Castillo, a vessel of 348 gross tons out of Bilbao, was involved.

Bachman May Get Hull's Senate Job

Husband of Heiress to Duke Millions Backed by Governor.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 19 (U.P.). Judge Nathaniel Bachman, a justice of the State Supreme Court, 1915 to 1921, is generally recognized here as the successor to United States Senator Cordell Hull after March 4. Mr. Hull is almost certain to be a member of the Roosevelt Cabinet, it is said.

Judge Bachman is backed by Gov. Hill McAlister of Tennessee and the leaders of the McAlister faction in the Democratic party. He was McAlister's campaign manager during the last election.

Mr. Bachman is about 55 years old, slightly gray and of ruddy complexion. Mrs. Bachman formerly was Pearl Duke, North Carolina heiress to tobacco millions.

Child-Birth Is Fatal To Wife of Physician

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 19 (U.P.).—Mrs. Katherine Swann Nabors, daughter of Theodore Swann, nationally-known chemist, died here today in childbirth. The baby boy survived.

Frank Nabors, father of the boy, is a widely known Birmingham physician.

GEN. ANSELL WANTS VOTE QUIZ EXTENDED

Senate Probers in Louisiana Case Disclaim Share in Statement.

(Associated Press.)

Louisiana's political turmoil echoed in the Capital yesterday, with counsel for the Senate committee investigating the State's 1932 Democratic primary issuing a statement assailing Senator Huey P. Long and members disclaiming responsibility for it.

Long, self-styled "kingfish" and political dictator of the State, kept silent in this outburst, but indicated that he possibly would take official notice on the Senate floor today of the inquiry and of the counsel's remarks.

Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, retired, the counsel, in a formal statement to the press just after his return yesterday from New Orleans, where the committee has been holding hearings for two weeks, insisted the investigation be continued.

Ansell made it clear in giving out the statement he was acting on his own responsibility. Senators Howell (Republican), Nebraska, and Carey (Republican (Wyoming), who conducted the hearings, promptly got together when they heard of Ansell's statement and over their signatures had this to say:

"The subcommittee [which they composed] will report at an early date to the full committee, which will subsequently report to the Senate.

"Other than this, the committee has not nor will not authorize any report or statement."

The inquiry, conducted by a subcommittee of the special committee on campaign expenditures, revolved around the defeat in the Democratic

Michigan Coeds Flee Fire in Night Clothes

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Eleven University of Michigan coeds were forced to flee outdoors in their night clothes at 5:45 a. m. today when fire broke out in the chapter house of the Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority.

Miss Agnes Barker, house chaperon, was awakened by the crackling of flames and gave the alarm. The girls escaped down ladders from second-floor windows, some of them losing all their possessions. The origin of the fire was undetermined.

Death Wins

'Human Cannon Ball' Dies of Broken Back After Daring Stunt.

Manila, P. I. (Monday), Feb. 20 (U. P.).—Martin Brado, daring German known as "Leinert, the human cannon ball," died here today after he had been projected from a huge cannon and broken his back in landing.

Brado, whose home was in Dresden, Germany, was the feature performer at a carnival. Dressed in heavy leather clothing and goggles, he would allow himself to be lowered into the mouth of a giant cannon. An assistant would pull a lanyard and the cannon would boom.

A cloud of white smoke would belch from the upturned muzzle and from this would shoot "Leinert." He would fly in an arc to a net, which would break his fall.

His death resulted when he was thrown face-downward and the net failed to break his fall sufficiently.

NIPPONESE SEE 5-DAY VICTORY

Plans for Campaign to Take Jehol Are Nearly Ready.

Tokyo (Monday), Feb. 20 (U.P.).—The Japanese cabinet today decided to withdraw from the League of Nations if the league assembly adopts the committee of 19 report on Manchuria.

The decision was considered tantamount to withdrawal. It was believed here the league assembly would adopt the report, which criticizes Japanese military activity in Manchuria and refuses to recognize Manchukuo as an "independent state."

U. S. Reaction Due.

Geneva, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—An unofficial indication of Washington's reaction to the League of Nations' draft of the report and recommendations on the Manchurian dispute between Japan and China was expected here by Tuesday at the latest, members said today.

They, therefore, now plan for the league assembly to meet Tuesday to Thursday instead of Tuesday, Friday and Saturday, to act on the draft, as submitted by its committee of 19, considering the controversy.

The members in the assembly will cast secret ballots on the draft in alphabetical order. Unanimous approval by Thursday night was forecast.

Expected This Week.

Chinchow, Manchuria, Feb. 19. (A. P.).—The most convincing indications were seen today that this week will witness the beginning of the long-heralded Japanese and Manchukuoan assault on the Chinese Province of Jehol and the opening of the most extensive international conflict the Orient has seen since the Russo-Japanese War of 1905.

With the fanfare of preliminary threats and ultimatum nearly over, the preparations of Gen. Nubuyoshi Muto, Japanese commander-in-chief in Manchuria, were near completion. Lieut. Gen. Kunaiki Koiso, chief of staff for Gen. Muto, was said to be the directing genius of the expedition.

(A Japanese ultimatum ordering Chinese forces immediately to evacuate Kailu, northern gateway of Jehol Province, was received yesterday at Peiping. It was said at Chinese-

PLEA FOR ZANGARA TODAY STILL HIDDEN

Steady Improvement Shown by Both Mrs. Gill and Mayor Cermak.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago was progressing "steadily toward recovery" tonight, and Giuseppe Zangara, the man who wounded him and four other persons in an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate President-elect Roosevelt, awaited a hearing tomorrow.

Physicians attending the Chicago mayor tonight said a temperature of 100 was believed due to absorption from injured tissues and there was no evidence of pneumonia or heart trouble. His progress after a comfortable day was described as "slowly but steadily" toward recovery.

At the same time a physician said Mrs. Joe H. Gill, Miami society woman also seriously wounded by the assassin's shots at Bayfront Park last Wednesday night, was showing an unchanged condition and "her progress is satisfactory."

Zangara was described as a "border line" case tonight by Dr. T. Earl Moore, psychiatrist appointed by defense attorneys to examine him. He added that to call Zangara a sane man "should cause so-called normal or sane people to be rather indignant."

Dr. Moore added that Zangara is "not well fitted to take a place in the society of normal people * * * but in law there seems to be no term or provision adequate to provide for the disposition of such cases. * * * Justice and not emotion should prevail in such cases."

Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois visited Mayor Cermak again tonight shortly before he was scheduled to leave for Springfield and said he found the mayor leaning upon an elbow and turning the pages of a book, realizing that he is making a "winning fight."

J. M. McCaskill, past president of the Dade County (Miami) Bar Association, one of counsel appointed for Zangara by the court, said attorneys for the Italian immigrant had definitely decided to make no statement about pleading to be made at his arraignment tomorrow.

This means that whether Zangara will plead "guilty" and receive sentence immediately or prolong the case by a plea of "insanity" will not be known prior to arraignment.

Bride of Four Months Kills Deserting Mate

Wichita, Kans., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Police said Mrs. Faye Martin, 20, a bride of four months, had confessed she shot and killed her husband, Thomas R. M. Martin, 32, early today after a quarrel following her discovery of Martin in a restaurant with another woman.

Mrs. Martin, the police said, confessed she fired one shot with a revolver as her husband was leaving their hotel with a suitcase filled with his clothing.

primary of Senator Edwin S. Broussard by Representative John H. Overton, the latter backed by Long.

Charge and counter-charge flew thick and fast in New Orleans at the hearings, with Long, acting as counsel for Overton, clashing repeatedly with Ansell. Ansell, formerly acting judge advocate general of the Army and now engaged in private law practice here, said this in his statement, which sharply assailed Long and Overton:

"If this investigation is to be thoroughly done it is not yet half finished. If any Senate investigation ever needed to be pushed aggressively to the end this is such an investigation."

He has concluded his work as committee counsel under the agreement in which he was retained, he explained, when newspapermen asked him if it were not unusual for a committee employe to issue such a statement.

"That is the way I feel about the matter," he said.

He added he had been retained for 30 days and that period was up. Howell told newspapermen there was no disagreement between the counsel and members.

Whether the inquiry should be continued will be put up to the full committee by the subcommittee. Howell has expressed himself publicly as favoring continuation and will press this week for consideration of a request for $25,000 with which to go ahead.

numerable conferences. In that quiet social atmosphere he conducted his most important conversations regarding debts, disarmament and other international problems.

Breaks Northern Line.

During the British debt conversations recently British Ambassador Lindsay was a frequent visitor at Woodley. Premier Laval, of France, was an overnight guest more than a year ago.

Senator and Mrs. Hull, however, plan to continue living at the Carlton Hotel, three blocks from the White House and the State Department. While their friends expect them to continue the formal entertaining which goes with the State Department post, it is understood Senator Hull will transact all business in the department offices rather than at his residence, as has been the case with Secretary Stimson.

The Hulls are expected to make frequent week-end visits to Merrifields, the country estate of Julian Witz, a brother of Mrs. Hull and former Mayor of Staunton, Va., near which city the home is located. It is Mrs. Hull's ancestral home. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson has been a frequent guest there.

With the appointment of Senator Hull, the office of Secretary of State goes to the South for the first time since the days of John C. Calhoun. Except for the term of Frank B. Kellogg, of Minnesota, the post has been filled from New York State since the World War.

Robbers Put Victim in Ice Box.

The name of Giuseppe Zangara (center), whose bullets aimed at President-elect Roosevelt wounded five persons, has been added to the list of assassins who in recent years have written red pages into the world's history. In France last May, Paul Gorguloff (upper left), Russian doctor, shot and killed President Paul Doumer. About a year ago in Tokyo Goro Hishinuma (lower left), killed Baron Takuma Dan, sometimes called Japan's Rockefeller. In 1928 bullets fired by Jose de Leon Toral (upper right), removed Gen. Alvaro Obregon from Mexico's public life. Assassins' shots rang out again in Mexico in 1930 when Daniel Flores (lower right), shot and wounded Ortiz Rubio, who at the time was President of Mexico.

ROOSEVELT THANKS PUBLIC FOR ANXIETY

Also Sends Appreciative Note to Woman Who Seized Assassin's Arm.

New York, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—President-elect Roosevelt in a public reply today to the thousands of Americans who communicated with him after his attempted assassination said:

"My heart is filled with thankfulness for their expressions of solicitude for my welfare."

"That all those who were injured will be fully restored is my fervent desire and daily prayer," his brief statement concluded.

Mr. Roosevelt also made public today a letter he is sending to Mrs. W. F. Cross, of Miami, who is credited with grabbing the pistol of the assassin, Giuseppe Zangara.

Letter to Mrs. Cross.

The letter follows:

"My dear Mrs. Cross:

"It is hard for me to find words to convey to you my appreciation of your heroism and my gratitude for your prompt and courageous action in attempting to prevent the tragedy which occurred last Wednesday evening.

"How much greater and sadder a tragedy was averted by your unselfish courage and quick thinking of course no one can estimate. It now appears that by divine providence the lives of all the victims of the assassin's disturbed aim will be spared.

"You should always have a just and conscious pride in the part you played and I rejoice in this fine example of forgetfulness of self and cool courage.

"Gratefully yours."

Text of His Statement.

The public statement of Mr. Roosevelt follows:

"I am deeply touched by the thousands of telegrams and messages which have come to me regarding the deplorable occurrence at Miami last Wednesday.

"Were it possible I would like personally to express my appreciation to all of these friends, but the demands on my time are such that it can not be done. Therefore I must simply state to them that my heart is filled with thankfulness for their expressions of solicitude for my welfare.

"That all those who were injured will be fully restored is my fervent desire and daily prayer."

Hartzell at Sioux City To Face Federal Court

Sioux City, Iowa, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Oscar M. Hartzell, former Iowan who was deported from England as an "objectionable alien," arrived today to face Federal Court charges here on using the mails to defraud in connection with investments made by many midwesterners in the so-called "Drake estate."

Hartzell immediately turned his attention to arranging his defense for his coming trial. He claimed he had not violated the law and that future transactions would yet bring wealth to those who have given money to settle the alleged estate of the famous English admiral.

William H. Woodin, a close adviser of Mr. Roosevelt on economic affairs, and Col. Edward M. House, veteran in the field of foreign affairs.

These discussions were linked with the sudden invitation by the President-elect to the British Ambassador, returning from London to see him.

All in all, there were signs of new and imminent action in the complicated world economic situation. Whether Mr. Roosevelt has any inkling of a new British offer coming over here with Sir Ronald, or whether he is ready to propose a new program, is problematical. It is regarded as certain, however, that his position is unchanged, that the British and other European debtors must give definite assurances for currency stabilization and tariff reciprocity in exchange for war debts relief.

Mr. Roosevelt is still adhering to his intention to deal personally and separately with the foreign debtors on the subject of war debts.

Pickets Pour Out 9 Trucks of Milk

25,000 Pounds Destroyed With No Violence in Wisconsin.

New London, Wis., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Truckloads of milk were spilled again today on Wisconsin highways as striking dairymen formed tight picket lines in their campaign for higher prices.

The market blockade was concentrated around Waupaca County and little milk reached New London.

Nine truckloads of milk, approximating 25,000 pounds, were dumped this morning near Manawa. Order was maintained by picket lines, however, and no physical violence has been reported since yesterday.

WIDE JEHOL BATTLE IS DRAWING NEAR

Manchurian headquarters that it would be disregarded, even though the Japanese threatened to attack at once. The Japanese were reported prepared to issue two smaller demands to other Chinese officials.)

Japanese Are Confident.

The Japanese war machine, bristling with the newest destructive weapons, was pointed menacingly westward. Japanese leaders expressed confidence that five days after the advance was begun the Rising Sun banners would be within the shadow of the main objective, Jehol City, the ancient summer capital of imperial China.

Japanese columns, with less sturdy Manchukuoan troops sandwiched between, were expected to enter Jehol, according to a thoroughly coordinated schedule. Authoritative estimates of the invading army placed the total at 50,000, nearly half of them Manchukuoans.

Estimates at Variance.

Estimates of the number of Chinese troops in Jehol ranged upward to 226,000. Some Japanese officers, however, calculated the number at 105,000, of which the regular troops of Chang Hsiao-Liang, North China military leader, and Gen. Tang Yu-Lin comprised 55,000.

Final demands on Marshal Chang to withdraw his forces from Jehol or an attack would be launched was issued in the name of the Changchun (capital of Manchukuo) regime, it was said, because the Japanese high command maintains this is a Manchukuoan domestic police expedition and that the Japanese army is merely assisting in fulfillment of the Japanese-Manchukuoan protocol.

Japanese report there have been numerous defections among Chinese irregulars in Jehol and also allege Chinese soldiers are seizing all provisions and the peasants are threatened with famine.

GARNER AND SNELL ATTACKED BY DRYS

Mrs. Nicholson Assails Wet Rush as an Attempt to Stampede Public.

(Associated Press.)

The legislative committee of the national conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment at a meeting yesterday denounced "the action of Speaker Garner in caucusing the Democratic members of the House, and the attempt of Republican Floor Leader Snell to coerce the Republican members to vote upon the moral issue involved in the resolution for prohibition repeal."

A statement of the action from Dr. Isora Scott, secretary, said:

"The Democratic caucus was claimed to be contrary to the provision of the Constitution which provides that members of Congress shall not vote for a change in the Constitution unless they as individuals deem it necessary. The action of Mr. Snell was held to be a compromise with Democrats, in violation of the Republican national platform, which provides that there must be some Federal guarantee against the return of the saloon."

Dry Fight Just Started.

Saying the drys "have just begun to fight," Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League, asked in a statement last night "Why the great rush to repeal the eighteenth amendment?"

"If Congress permits the return of the saloon before they remedy the financial panic, they will go out of power in 1934," she said, "for the women are not stampeded by all this hysteria of the wet millionaires."

Mrs. Nicholson asked if the American form of government had become "a city-political-boss-packed stamped ed - mob-controlled- convention- platform sort of government," and added:

Objects to Rush.

"When the eighteenth amendment was pased Congress provided seven years before it finally became a law, but now political leaders are asking for immediate repeal, so it can be rushed through the States at all costs."

She said the Constitution provides for conventions in States for ratification, but "assumes that these conventions shall be held at the will of the Legislatures" and Congress "is entirely without power to make this mixture of constitutional methods."

Police Headquarters Given New Modern Switchboard

Is Connected With More Than 80 Telephones Located in Various Offices and Precincts; 3,200 Calls Are Handled Daily.

Early today, in the "we sma' hours" when telephone calls to the Police Department were at their lowest ebb, a new three-position telephone switchboard was cut into service at police headquarters. The switchboard, of the latest design, is equipped with 22 trunk lines to the telephone company's downtown central office and is connected with more than 80 police telephones located in the various offices and precincts.

With the addition of this new equipment the Washington Police Department is well on the way to a place among the leading police departments of the country in respect to communications facilities.

At present an average of 3,200 telephone calls are handled each day at police headquarters and 120 dispatches are sent out over the teletypewriter system, which was installed in 1929.

In 1931, a short-wave radio transmitter was installed, adding to the communications facilities of the department an instant means of directing the movements of police scout cars, which are equipped with radio receiving sets.

This elaborate set-up of telephone equipment is a far cry from the department's first crude switchboard, which hung on the wall of the Police Department headquarters in a building at Fifth and D streets northwest, in 1885. A year or two later a line was added to the telephone central office, and, in 1890, a single-position telephone switchboard replaced the annunciator in a building at 462 Louisiana avenue northwest, next door to the old District Building. In 1898, when Police Headquarters moved to the new Municipal Building, a new 80-line switchboard was installed. This was later superseded by a two-position switchboard.

The establishment of the communications bureau, under Sergt. Charles C. Wise, in 1925, marked the beginning of an orderly and systematic method of handling police telephone traffic.

Speaking of the work of the communications bureau, Maj. E. W. Brown, superintendent, expressed the wish that the citizens of Washington report by telephone to the Police Department, National 4000, all incidents of a suspicious nature, no matter how slight. If this were done, Maj. Brown said, it would go a long way toward the prevention of crime.

HOUSE REPEAL VOTE TODAY HELD CERTAIN

Rainey Says Senate Resolution Will Carry With 20 Voices to Spare.

Adoption by the House today of the Senate prohibition repeal submission proposal appeared certain last night on the basis of a final check-up made by Democratic leaders.

The flat prediction that the resolution "will carry by 20 votes," was made by Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic floor leader, who will offer the measure under a suspension of House rules. Debate will be limited to 40 minutes, and no amendments may be offered.

This will mean a turnover of 26 votes, since the House defeated Speaker Garner's flat repeal proposal, December 5, 272 to 144, or 6 short of a two-third majority.

The "only possibility" of rejection, party leaders said, was the inability of a number of wet votes they are depending upon to be present.

States Take First Steps.

Only 31 of the 44 Democrats who voted against adoption of the Garner resolution have been excused from being bound by the party caucus to vote on the Blaine resolution, providing for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and protection to the dry States.

The section providing for protection to dry States was figured by Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, to bring in a number of votes from the 100 in his party who voted against the Garner proposal. Eighty-one of these are "lame ducks," and several have indicated they would support the new proposal.

Pending final congressional action on the resolution, many of the 41 State Legislatures now in session are taking preliminary steps toward calling conventions to ratify or reject it. Ratification by 36 States is necessary to repeal the eighteenth amendment, and organized drys are preparing to launch a Nation-wide drive against approval.

Drys Call Conference.

A call was issued yesterday in the Clipsheet of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church for a meeting in Washington March 7 and 8 to map plans to fight repeal. Representatives of 35 Christian denominations issued the call for the conference.

Almost simultaneously, Edward B. Dunford, attorney for the Antisaloon League, charged in a statement that the wets' objective is to abolish the eighteenth amendment without informing the voters of "what plan of liquor legislation they propose to substitute."

"Recent events have clearly revealed the wet objective," Dunford said. "They are determined to restore the legalized liquor traffic, and in the meantime are willing to encourage an illicit traffic despite the Constitution."

Wet Women Leaders Coming Here for Vote

New York, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Mrs. Courtlandt Nicholl, vice chairman, and Mrs. John W. Cross, assistant treasurer of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, announced today that they would leave at midnight for Washington to be present tomorrow when the House votes on the Blaine prohibition repeal resolution.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, president of the organization, now is visiting in Palm Beach, Fla., at the home of Mrs. Edward S. Moore.

3 Dead in Flames Of Blazing Planes

Two Killed in Rebuilt Ship at Miami; Granite State Crash Also Fatal.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Fay Rittenhouse, 35, and Eddie Rienecke, 23 plunged 300 feet to the ground today in a small rebuilt airplane and were killed. The plane burst into flames and their bodies were charred beyond recognition.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Rell Bourke young Concord aviator, was burned to death late today as his plane cracked up and burst into flames after landing in a field near the Manchester airport.

Witnesses of the crash said Bourke, who had flown from Concord, 18 miles away, was attempting to reach the airport when something went wrong. The plane plunged into the field and turned over twice before catching fire.

tion with the reported shipment of arms from Italy to Hungary, via Austria, was camouflage to draw attention from anti-Italian military preparations.

It was denied that the arms were shipped for war purposes and newspapers declared that France was arming Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia.

Vienna, Austria, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—The Reichs-Post, in an editorial today on the French note demanding return of an arms shipment from Italy to the factory as a breach of the treaty of St. Germain, declared that Austria has done nothing wrong.

The editorial said neither France nor England, who joined the French in making the arms "representation," would risk an open fight with Italy or Germany by bringing the question before the League of Nations and nobody would refer the matter to The Hague court because the decision would be certain to uphold Austria.

Observers, meanwhile, believed that the French and British joint action on this arms deal ultimately would drive Austria into at least a benevolently neutral attitude and possibly positive action and cooperation in a German-Italian-Hungarian alliance, now seen as rapidly developing.

Rumors in diplomatic quarters said that Italy had offered to return to Austria the germanic parts of the southern Tyrol region if Austria would consent to permit Italian troops to cross Austria in case of a war between Italy and Jugoslavia.

Frank Barnjum Dies at Paris.

Paris, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Frank J. D. Barnjum, 74, author and forestry expert of Annapolis, Md., died last night at Neuilly clinic after a week's illness. His widow is in Lynnfield Center, Mass., and a son is in Paris.

JAPAN'S STAND HIT BY PROFESSOR HERE

World Would Condemn Her if She Quits League, Says Dr. Gewehr.

If Japan withdraws from the League of Nations as a result of the League's action on the Lytton report and recommendations concerning the Manchurian situation, she will be getting out under the moral condemnation of the world. Dr. Wesley M. Gewehr, professor of history at American University, said in an addres yesterday on "The Manchurian Question" at the Adult Forum of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church. "It will be the first time in history when a great nation has practically been expelled, by moral condemnation, from an international conference," said Dr. Gewehr, "And Japan can not get out decently."

Dr. Gewehr sketched the historical background of the present crisis, and declared that Japan took advantage of war conditions in Europe in 1915 to entrench herself in Manchuria, and that the Japanese have become greatly alarmed over the growing strength of the Nationalist movement in China.

American Policy Praised.

"The policy of nonrecognition of Manchukuo, as set up by the United States, through Secretary Stimson, is the proper policy to be followed," he said. "This is one international crisis in which, by standing for the right moral principle, we can be proud of the United States. The Stimson doctrine of nonrecognition, which the world has followed, may not compel Japan to get out of Manchuria, but it will not be comfortable for her if she stays there.

"Two of the most effective methods of bringing the present crisis to an end would be an international embargo on arms, and a commercial embargo by the United States against Japan. The arms embargo would have to be international, to be effective. But the Congress of the United States has the constitutional right to declare a commercial embargo, and if Congress were to put an embargo on the importation of Japanese silk, and the exportation of American cotton, that would be effective, because Japan can not afford to lose the United States as a customer.

Great Danger of War.

"Seemingly, the policy of nonrecognition is now receiving most consideration, and that is something that will have to be continued. The whole situation is fraught with great danger of war. If Japan gets out of the League of Nations she will declare war on China. Then Japan can declare a blockade and if we try to run the blockade, no one can foretell what will happen. By taking such action, Japan will be an aggressor nation and the members of the League of Nations will have to come to the rescue of China. Thus the situation is full of grave international complications, and no one can predict what the final outcome will be."

At the session of the forum next Sunday, Dr. A. Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology at the Smithsonian Institution, will speak on "The Substance of Religion as Seen by an Anthropologist."

Lee Morse's Son Home After Futile Job Hunt

New York, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Jack Morse, 16, student at the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., who has been missing since classes reconvened after the Christmas recess, returned to his home here today.

His stepfather, Robert Downey, and his mother, Lee Morse, blues singer, said his only explanation of his absence was that he felt the cost of his education was too great and so he had set out to find a job.

violated Brazilian neutrality and had taken shelter in Brazilian waters.

He said that Peru had always respected the treaty governing the nationality of the city of Leticia, "disregarding how and under what pressure it was concluded," adding that it is time "to repulse force with force."

"Our foes will learn what it means to attack Peru," he said.

(The president apparently was referring to the treaty which Peru and Colombia entered into settling a dispute over Leticia. Sovereignty in the territory was given by Peru to Colombia in exchange for other considerations. Last September a group of Peruvian nationals seized the city and ousted Colombian officials, contending that Colombia had not complied with all the terms of the treaty.)

Para, Brazil, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Reports reaching here today from Sao Paulo de Olivenca, Brazil, said that Colombian forces had taken eight Peruvian prisoners at Tarapaca, the village north of Leticia where open hostilities broke out last week between Colombia and Peru.

A few other Peruvians who fled into the jungles at the time of the first bombardments were obliged by hunger to return to Tarapaca and surrender, the reports said.

The Colombian gunboat Pichincha has returned to neutral waters of the Amazon from the Putumayo River, on which Tarapaca is located, to await the arrival of supply boats.

Earlier dispatches from Sao Paulo de Olivenca said that Peruvian airplanes Friday bombarded Colombian forces at Tarapaca, on the Putumayo River north of the disputed border city of Leticia. A Peruvian plane was reported to have been shot down.

The Colombian air force was said to have been reinforced by a squadron from Pedera, 100 miles to the north on the Rio Caquets.

Wilkins Flies to Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Sir Hubert Wilkins, famous Arctic explorer, arrived here by plane late today from Grand Forks, N. Dak. The scientist, who was unaccompanied, was met by Mayor Ralph Webb.

ARMY TO FEED BOYS THREE MEALS DAILY

88,000 Youths Will Be Given Regular Training for One Year.

(Associated Press.)

Three square meals a day are provided for 88,000 jobless youths to be benefited by the War Department appropriation bill now in the House for consideration of a Senate amendment.

There will be plenty of bunks and blankets, and maybe sheets and pillow cases, but the military camp relief measure will not be all "milk and honey," even if the bill goes through with its $22,000,000 provision.

Reveille will be sounded for the boys at 6 a. m. "Sleepy heads" will not be tolerated.

The same conditions will prevail as at the civilian military training camps which are held each summer under regular army supervision.

Long before 8 o'clock each morning, Sunday included, breakfast will have been served, the beds all made, and the drill grounds cleared for action. All day long, with convenient periods of rest, every hour will be accounted for, so that there will be no dull moments for the rookies.

The evening will be devoted to recreation. But at 8:30 p. m., taps will be sounded, and out go the lights.

By the amendment offered by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, youths ranging from 15 to 21 years of age will be eligible.

"Enlistment" will be for one year, but if any one of the boys, or any group of youngsters, has an opportunity of landing a job he may be discharged on the spot, to make space for some other young man awaiting his turn to be taken under the Army's wing.

The volunteers may offer themselves at the various Army posts throughout the country. They will be assembled in small groups and sent to the nearest Army station equipped to care for additional men.

NEURITIS ?

■ Neuritis (inflammation of nerves) is one of the nasty tricks that excess uric acid can play on you. Others may be: itching skin spots, stiff joints, rheumatic twinges.

If you have seen your doctor about any one of these troubles, he has probably warned you about caffeine. This drug, found in ordinary coffee, often produces uric acid.

But don't take that as a farewell to coffee. You can keep drinking coffee, good coffee, with no fear of caffeine.

CONGRESS' RECORD FAR BELOW HOPES

Philippine Freedom and Two Supply Bills Passed Its Major Results.

(Associated Press.)

The semi-final week of the last "lame duck" session of Congress opens today with collective action by the Senate and House to date far from the December hopes and predictions of party leaders.

Considered separately, the Senate and House have accomplished much in the way of major legislation, but together they have sent but 2 of the 11 big supply bills to the White House—the first deficiency and the Interior appropriations—extended the currency expansion provisions of the Glass-Steagall act another year and provided for freedom to the Philippines over President Hoover's veto.

Nine more annual appropriation measures remain to be passed upon finally. The House will receive the last of these today from committee—that for the Navy Department. It has passed the other eight. Four of these also have been passed by the Senate and are in conference.

While the House today takes up the Blaine resolution to submit prohibition repeal to the States with all indications pointing to adoption, the Senate will resume debate on the vast new unemployment and destitute relief bills with a decision set by agreement for 4:30 p. m.

The choice on the unemployment relief question will be between the $500,000,000 direct Federal aid proposal of Senators La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, and Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, and the $300,000,000 loan expansion bill of Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York. The latter is expected to prevail.

Democrats long ago gave up hope of balancing the next fiscal year's budget at this session with new taxation and economy legislation, but both of these subjects will be given attention in the dying hours of the session.

Flight Training Completed By Senator Barkley's Son

David M. Barkley, son of Senator and Mrs. Alben M. Barkley, 3102 Cleveland avenue northwest, who has completed a year's flight training in the Army Air Corps and will receive the coveted "wings" on Friday.

To Receive Coveted Wings in Class of 95 in Texas Friday.

When 95 airplanes fly in final graduation review before the commanding officer of the Advanced Flying School of the Army Air Corps, at Kelly Field, Tex., next Friday, one of them will be piloted by a Washington boy, David M. Barkley, of 3102 Cleveland avenue northwest, son of Senator and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky.

Starting his flying training just one year ago, young Barkley has turned in a splendid record as a military pilot. He was graduated from the basic course at Randolph Field in the latter part of October and was declared eligible to continue with advanced flight training at Kelly Field. He has now successfully completed the Kelly Field course and will be one of a class of 95 on which the coveted wings of the Army Air Corps will be pinned following the final aerial parade Friday. He will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Reserve and placed on extended active duty with an air corps organization.

Barkley attended the Cooke Grammar School here, later going to Central High School. He went to the University of Virginia and later attended George Washington University. He lives here with his father and mother and sister. He has two sisters, Miss Laura Barkley, of Washington and Mrs. Max Truitt, of St. Louis.

Only three officers of the Regular Army are included in the class. These men will be transferred to the Air Corps, while the flying cadets go on extended active duty in the Air Reserve. Five noncommissioned officers of the Air Corps are included in the class. Preferring to retain their positions they occupied prior to their appointment as students at the training center, these men also will be commissioned in the Air Reserve, but will not be placed on extended active duty under their reserve commissions. Under a policy recently adopted by the chief of the Air Corps, all enlisted men students, regardless of their grade, will hereafter undergo their flying training as flying cadets.

Coincident with their receiving the wing insignia all of the members of the class will be given the rating "airplane pilots."

Second Lieut. Merrick H. Truly, Infantry, one of the student officers, recently joined the famous Caterpillar Club while a student, when a mishap in the air during a formation flight forced him to descend 1,500 feet to the ground in his parachute.

W. N. DOAK MEMBER OF EMPLOYES' UNION

Douglass to Speak Today on Advisability of Labor Unity.

Announcement that Secretary of Labor William N. Doak and a score of other officials of the department are active members of Lodge No. 12, American Federation of Government Employes, was made yesterday by John B. Newman, national secretary.

The lodge has arranged a meeting to be held at 4:30 p. m. today at the Labor Department Building, at which the value of affiliation of Federal workers to organized labor will be discussed by Representative John J. Douglass, of Massachusetts. Mr. Douglass also will express his views in opposition to the proposed 5 per cent reduction of Federal appropriations which, it is contended, will seriously threaten the efficiency of the work of the Government. Edward McGrady, of the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor, will speak on organization work.

In his announcement of the Labor Secretary's membership in the A. F. G. E., Mr. Newman pointed out that Mr. Doak is on the active roster of the organization, and is the first member of a President's Cabinet to hold active membership in a Federal employes' union.

Woman Killed in Hotel Plunge; Man Accused

Houston, Tex., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—While house officers pounded upon the door, Miss Ivy Young, 32, plunged to her death from the seventh floor of the Ben Milam Hotel today under circumstances which led to the arrest of her man companion.

H. M. Edwards, 37, who told police he was a Reno, Nev., aviator, was charged with murder after her fall from this hotel room where, police said, they had been registered since February 13 as man and wife.

Rejected Suitor Slays Girl, 18, Before Diners

Minneapolis, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—As several diners looked on, Miss Frances Triemert, 18, of Minneapolis, was shot and fatally wounded tonight in a Loop restaurant. She died in a hospital. Her escort, Charles Kochundorfer, 23, of Minneapolis, was arrested and held without charge.

Police were told by relatives that Miss Triemert had refused to marry Kochundorfer, who had served a reformatory sentence for third degree burglary.

Aznar Dead

Was Last Premier of Spain Under King Alfonso; 63 Years Old.

ADM. JUAN BAUTISTA AZNAR.

Madrid, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Admiral Juan Bautista Aznar, who was the last premier of Spain under the monarchy, died today. He was 63 years old.

He had been suffering for some time from a chest ailment. He suffered an attack of uremia a week ago and this, followed by complications, caused his death.

Funeral services will be held at noon tomorrow. Among the first to call at the former premier's home to express condolences was former Count Don Alvardo de Romanones, who served as premier several times under the last Spanish monarch, King Alfonso. Other colleagues of the former premier, high ranking naval officers and government officials also called to express their bereavement.

Admiral Aznar, who had been prominent in naval affairs practically his entire adult life, was premier when on April 14, 1931, King Alfonso abdicated and a republic was proclaimed in Spain. The abdication of the king followed within a few hours the resignation of the government of Premier Aznar, which advised the king to call in three leaders who had demanded a constitutional convention which would determine whether Spain should become a republic or remain a monarchy. Approximately at the same time, republican leaders issued an ultimatum demanding that the king declare a republic. The abdication soon followed.

FARM GROUPS RAP SHANNON FINDINGS

Sharp Letter Criticizes Suggestion for Restriction of Federal Board.

(Associated Press.)

A sharply-worded letter was addressed to Congress yesterday by the heads of 14 farm organizations in criticism of the Shannon Committee's recent recommendations for restricting activities of the Farm Board.

The House Committee headed by Representative Shannon (Democrat), Mo., made a broad investigation of Government competition with business.

In its report on farm aspects of the inquiry, it recommended cessation of all stabilization activities of the Farm Board, stricter supervision of cooperatives, provision that cooperatives may buy only from member producers, and the requirement that loans be made to private middlemen on the same terms as to cooperatives.

"We are amazed that a committee of the House of Representatives should expose its lack of appreciation and understanding of farm welfare as completely as does the so-called Shannon Committee in that portion of its report which deals with the Farm Board," the letter said.

This was the second time in the last few days that farm leaders have criticized openly congressional committees. In a recent open letter to the Senate Agriculture and Banking Committees, President Edward A. O'Neal, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, assailed their handling of farm relief legislation. O'Neal's name was among those attached to the letter sent the House committee yesterday. Another signer was Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange.

"Apparently four members of the committee, coming from industrial constituencies and lacking in agricultural information, have been deceived and misled by traders and speculators in farm products," yesterday's letter said. "It is noteworthy that the fifth member of the committee, the only one representing the agricultural district and having an appreciation of farmers' problems, has filed a vigorous minority report."

The reference was to Representative Cox (Democrat), Georgia.

The letter charged that the Shannon committee heard "dealer and speculator interests" at great length, and not only did not encourage farm leaders to testify, but "endeavored in its report to discredit their testimony by impunging their motives."

The letter was sent as Congress began its last two weeks before March 4 adjournment, with several farm relief measures in various legislative stages, but not assured of passage in the short time remaining.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Facing Huge Task in White House

Indicates She Will Be Own Housekeeper, in Which Event She Will Have to Handle Three Distinct Accounts of Expenses.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will have to do a lot of figuring to reduce White House expenses 25 per cent as her husband has promised to do in general Governmental costs.

There are three distinct accounts to be kept in doing it, all of which will have to be considered in any plan to make so marked a slash.

This bookkeeping has hitherto been done by the White House housekeeper, but apparently Mrs. Roosevelt's announced intention of getting along with "nine or ten fewer servants" in making her cut will eliminate that particular office.

The problem thus appears to be the province of the First Lady herself and the staff of her own old servants that she will bring here.

Not since Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt was in the White House has any mistress thereof been her own housekeeper.

And in a house that has been running for more than 100 years, with experts ever enedavoring to economize, she will have no small task in carrying out her own "one-fourth off" order.

Here are some of the complications:

The White House is a "public building," swarmed over by tourists, visited by delegations, utilized for business purposes, and as such the office of Public Buildings and Parks pays its maintenance bills.

It is also a private dwelling, and the master thereof pays his own bills.

And it is the scene of State functions, gestures of friendliness to diplomats and Federal officials—which are charged to the expense account of the executive office.

Expenditures must be allocated adroitly. The Federal Government, in providing quarters for its President, seeks to give all the accommodations that would be accorded in modern furnished hotel apartments—light, heat, servants.

But up pop prickly problems like laundry. The White House used to do its own, and sheets flapped outside the windows of the room where the Cabinet met, until the laundry was turned into offices by the Hoovers.

Now there isn't any laundry. And the laundry bills have to be divided into what pertains to the house and its upkeep, and what would be listed as "personal."

For the food that supplies their own table, the Roosevelts must pay. For that served at State functions, the executive office pays.

Theoretically, the Office of Public Buildings and Parks, keepers of the White House pay roll, have the right to hire and fire the servants, but in practice the presidential family is considered as supreme in its own domain.

Twelve employes will leave the White House on the Tuesday morning after inauguration, when the extra work of that period will be over, and the corps brought in by the Roosevelts will be functioning.

Before that office was established, the Army, which still moves the belongings of Presidents, had the job of running the White House, and an officer in the engineering corps still serves as its head. He is Col. U. S. Grant 3d, whose grandfather was a President.

But he's now awaiting transfer to the Army War College. His aid on the job, Lieut. F. B. Butler, has been reported slated for a tour of duty at West Point and Mrs. Roosevelt, in her expense-chopping, would in that event have to call for the cooperation of other men in the "new deal."

DAVID'S CHARACTER STRESSED BY CLERIC

Beautiful Temples Placed Second in Sermon by Rev. A. E. Barrows.

"It is splendid to build a beautiful temple to God but it is far more important to build a beautiful character. No matter what a man does on the outside, if his inner life is not right he is a failure," the Rev. Alfred E. Barrows, pastor of Eastern Presbyterian Church, said in his sermon yesterday.

Taking for his text, the second verse, second chapter of First Kings, "I go the way of all the earth: be thou strong therefore and shew thyself a man," Dr. Barrows pointed out that David, who was a man after God's own heart despite his many sins, on his deathbed forgot his kingdom, his armies and his engineering projects to advise his son, Solomon, to show himself a man.

"This man (David) who started out as a country shepherd boy finally sat upon the throne of his kingdom. He was a musician, a poet, a warrior, a statesman and the greatest ruler of his time. He was a man who had made many great mistakes, but he showed himself a man by adorning sackcloth and repenting. He was the man whose faith and life is revealed in the beautiful twenty-third Psalm —'The Lord is my shepherd.'

"When he knew the end was near he called his son, Solomon, to his bedside to give him his last message. He did not talk of armies or fortifications or commerce or laws; it was something more important. I have reached the close of my life, be thou strong therefore; show thyself a man.

"There is no mistake about what David meant and had Solomon not disregarded his father's advice the kingdom might not have fallen to ruin so soon. Solomon took over David's plans and built a beautiful temple but he was a failure because he did not build a beautiful character.

"It is a sad thing when persons and Nations think more of building beautiful structures than beautiful characters and homes and the very heart of David's message is the message that ought to come to all of our hearts today."

COL. ROBINS PAYS WHITE HOUSE VISIT

ville, Fla., denying himself to casual visitors and the public.

The long search for Robins after his sudden disappearance early in September caused a sensation throughout the country.

When reports he had dropped out of sight first reached the White House, one of the President's aids, Walter Newton, himself a friend of Robins, disclosed that the prohibition leader had been scheduled for a conference with Mr. Hoover three days previously, but that no trace of him could be found after he had checked out of a New York hotel, apparently en route to Washington.

Sought by U. S. Agents.

Mrs. Robins expressed the belief that her husband had been kidnaped by bootleggers, and at the President's orders Federal agents were thrown into the search. The Prohibition Bureau took a leading part.

First Robins was reported to have been seen in Chicago, and the search swung to the West. Then his appearance was reported in other cities, but each time the clews proved false.

Mrs. Robins came to the Capital for a conference with Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, and also paid a call upon the President.

Finally, the flash came over Federal wires to the White House that Robins had been found, and newspaper offices received the news only a few minutes later. This was on November 17.

Found in North Carolina.

Robins was found in the little mountain town of Whittier, N. C., 60 miles from Asheville. He wore a long beard, and citizens of the town knew him as "Raymond Rogers," a man who spent much of his time "prospecting" in the mountains and who had made several speeches in behalf of President Hoover.

Federal agents who found the long-missing man said he was in "sound physical condition and in perfect control of his ordinary mental faculties," except for the apparent amnesia that caused him to be unable to report his past.

Robins failed to recognize relatives who immediately rushed to him, and for several days reports emanated from a sanitarium in which he was placed that he did not recognize Mrs. Robins. Some days later he was removed to Brooksville.

MOB HANGS SLAYER OF DIXIE BANKER

prisoner. Sheriff Jordan again pleaded with them, but allowed the mob leaders to snatch the man from him. The crowd fled half a mile with the prisoner to the spot where Batchelor was killed and there dispatched him.

Mrs. Batchelor, a frail woman who recently had been ill, was in an undetermined condition tonight from bruises and shock.

The intruder entered the Batchelor home at 4 a. m. today. He robbed the house, tied up the hands of the banker and his wife with wire and forced them to accompany him from the house. After walking them a mile and a half, the man attacked Mrs. Batchelor. The husband struggled with him despite his manacles, and was beaten down. He died a short time after Mrs. Batchelor's screams attracted neighbors.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY.

More than 100 "old-timers" of the Veterans' Administration met Saturday at the Shoreham to celebrate their 15 or more years each of service. The above photo was taken on the terrace.

OLD times were recalled when more than 100 Veterans' Administration employes with 15 or more years service back of them gathered at the Shoreham Saturday for luncheon and a social.

Mrs. Bella J. Howe, arrangements chairman, introduced M. Collins, director of finance, as toastmaster. His witty remarks, thoughtfulness and graceful manner kept the crowd in high good humor.

Songs, written by Miss Mabel Rowland, finance, opened with a greeting to the guests. Mrs. Ines M. Pugh, 18 years service, told "How It All Began" and recited some incidents and problems attendant on the early days of the administration when work was done in 16 or more buildings scattered over Washington.

"War Risk Days" was the next song. Then a talk by Mrs. Katherine J. Fenton on "The Early Days of 1917." A solo by Mrs. Alice C. Neal. Her marvelous voice brought requests for many encores.

B. F. Byers, chief, compensation and payments section, finance, then spoke of the early days and on getting the work under way and the sending out of checks and allotment and allowence work.

"MARKET DAYS" was sung to the tune of "Jingle Bells." Solos were sung by Miss Jack Carlton Ward, with encores. William H. Holmes, finance, was accompanist.

Assistant Administrator Col. George E. Ijams told of the days of organization in the war risk insurance work. Maj. Omer W. Clary, assistant administrator, related the present high efficiency of the bureau under Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator, and the hardships incurred in getting detail work started years ago.

Assistant Administrator Harold W. Breining made a chummy talk and praised the employes for interest in their duties and suggested there should be more such socials.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lambert Hess read an original poem.

A letter from Gen. Hines, who is in New York, expressed regret at being unable to attend but voicing approval of the meetings' purpose, was read.

"NEITHER snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

It is doubtful if Walter G. Lewis, full-blooded Hopi Indian and Arizona star route mail contractor, ever heard of this quotation from Herodotus which adorns the front of the New York City Postoffice Building. Evidently, the Greek historian had just such a man in mind when he penned his tribute to the ancient mail carrier.

In effort to bring through mail over his route last month despite raging mountain snowstorms, this Indian demonstrated he could do other things than the "Snake Dance."

Walter Runke, Flagstaff, Postmaster, tells of achievements performed and hardships Lewis endured.

On January 28, Runke reports to Assistant Postmaster General Glover, Walter left Tuba City, farther terminus of his route on schedule to make the 80-mile trip to Flagstaff, and arrived that afternoon at 'Dead Man's Flat' near the foot of the San Francisco Mountains, when one of those unusual, specially wicked mountain blizzards let loose with all its whipping force and fury. Dead Man's Flat is a level treeless plain, well named where there is nothing to stay or break the sweep of a storm.

SNOW piled in mountain drifts. Soon this mail carrier found himself completely blocked with his truck in huge drifts. He had taken with him that day a passenger another native American, a Navajo. Walter sent out his companion that night for help. Through the snow drifts this Navajo went afoot on to the road maintenance camp across the divide, six miles, where he arrived safely. Walter remained and made his bed under the canvas in his truck.

The storm continued the next day, in all its violence, but the road maintainers, braved the elements and by night came within about a mile of the mail truck. Gasoline supply became exhausted so they drained all Walter had, then proceeded to tow the mail truck back to camp where they arrived at about midnight. Walter found lodging with a rancher.

Monday morning road men again fared forth, the blizzard unabated and the U. S. Mail still 13 or 14 miles from Flagstaff. Walter restocked with gasoline, found his battery dead. He walked several miles to another ranch, where he borrowed a battery. Then he followed the snow plow once more, but again night came with Monday and still short of his goal by miles. Once more he slept and guarded that for which he was responsible, the U. S. Mail.

Tuesday the storm tempered. The road crew added tragedy to what so far had been heroism. The gasoline road plow mechanic, who in the emergency had been transferred by the State highway department from his regular post at Ash Fork in the emergency to help out in the mountain district, tired and worn out from long hours became caught in the revolving fan of the snow plow and so a martyr to his call of duty—Oliver Gilliland survived by a widow and eight children.

Thus the spirit of the hardy Western pioneer still is evidenced. Thus the banner of the U. S. Mails and traditions are being carried forward by one of our first Americans, who by the way is a product of our Government Indian schools.

And did you notice most of the comic valentines this year were "printed in the U. S. A.?" Or did you receive one?

PERHAPS if Government employes all over the country adopted the method used by members of Federal Employes Union, No. 341, Yakima, Wash., they'd get more attention from Congress and good results.

Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer, N. F. F. E., showed us a pamphlet compiled by the Yakima union in which some eye-opening facts concerning Federal employes were contained.

And after reading the booklet one can not help being impressed by the fact that American taxpayers are getting a very good bargain, and have for years, for their tax dollar, so far as Government employes are concerned. Difference in the local and National Government expenses is explained. It is not hard to realize that only a small portion of taxes goes to the Federal worker and that the very large portion goes to local Government employes throughout the land.

PIERCE DISCUSSES FASHIONS IN FAITH

All Souls' Pastor Declares Religion Satisfies Heart as Nothing Else.

"Fashions in religion may change, but its abiding reality is in meeting the fundamental needs of the human heart," declared Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, preaching yesterday at All Souls' Church. The sermon was the third in a series of talks based on quotations from the works of Shakespeare.

Dr. Pierce said, in part:

"In 'Much Ado About Nothing,' Beatrice, speaking of Benedict, says: 'He wears his faith but as the fashion of his hat.' There are those who think that meeting the fashion of the hour in creed and dogma is the story of religion itself; that each age has its own current style which may appear grotesque to later generations. The history of the development of religious thought, a veritable phantasmagoria of changing fashion, seems to uphold this view, and the wide variety of churches in our own day is further evidence of it.

"Why have these fashions arisen; why has man not found permanent satisfaction with one form of religion? Simply because of the divine dissatisfaction, woven into man's nature. This dissatisfaction has been repeatedly expressed by choice spirits. It is not without significance that all religions are the lengthened, and too often distorted shadows of great personalities and characters. Again, it is expressed in those rare moments of inspiration in every person's life when values stand out as never before. Religion is born on these Sinais of experience. In times of strain and stress like the present the heart ever reaches out for a satisfying faith.

"But beneath the changing fashions in religion there is an abiding reality which does not change. This arises from needs of the human heart, which have never been outgrown, which indeed becomes more insistent as mankind advances. The first of these is food, but even with a full stomach, man hungers for the intangibles of life. He prays not merely for his daily bread' but as early versions of the Lord's Prayer read, for his 'other bread,' his 'supersubstantial bread.' So many people today suffer from moral and spiritual anemia. Evidence of this is their lack of appetite for spiritual food. They think they have outgrown the church and all organized religion, when in reality they are on the verge of spiritual starvation. Stones of philosophy are not to be offered to the hungry in place of the bread of life.

"The second need of the human heart is for stimulant. Religion is a stimulant, not an opiate; it gives us wings, not weights; it puts thrills into life. It makes us see the commonplace in the light of its innate glory.

"And mankind needs beauty. Religion adds this. There is nothing that beautifies a human being more than the conviction that he has an immortal soul. It changes his center of gravity. It makes him aware of things in the world which he has not known."

WIFE AND MAN SHOT IN FEUD IN FAIRFAX

ner with part of a charge of shot in his right leg. Then, they said, Oliver again raised the gun. He pointed it at his estranged wife and fired. She sank to the floor.

Every one present ran to the stricken girl except Oliver, who left the house. Just then, Judge Ritchie appeared. Carlton Sims, a neighbor, heard the first shots and ran to the Ritchie home. He assisted Holbrook in overpowering Oliver.

Judge Ritchie ran upstairs and got a revolver. Sims grappled with the judge and succeeded in wresting the pistol from him.

Oliver was taken to the Fairfax County Jail. He was unconscious from a beating administered, according to Kirby, by Sims, Judge Ritchie and Holbrook.

A doctor was summoned. The physician said he had evidently been badly beaten about the head. Kirby said Oliver had been struck on the head with two iron candlesticks and the butt of the gun, held in the hands of Judge Ritchie.

Found Lying in Street.

While the men were fighting in the front yard, the seriously wounded girl arose from the floor and staggered along the street toward the Fairfax County Courthouse. She was hysterically shrieking, "My baby! My baby!" The custody of the child is the subject of a bitter collateral quarrel between the families.

Her screams were heard by Sheriff and Mrs. Kirby, who found her prostrate in the street near her home. Kirby sent her to the hospital.

Operation Is Performed.

The wounded woman was rushed to Georgetown Hospital where an emergency operation was performed early today. Her husband was taken to the Fairfax County Jail by Sheriff Kirby, who said Oliver appeared to have been drinking heavily. He was in no condition to be questioned, Kirby said.

The immediate cause of the latest episode is believed to be a quarrel between Lewis Oliver and his wife over the custody of their 3-months-old child, Barbara Wayne Oliver. The girl has filed suit for divorce and the father is seeking the custody of the baby.

Also, Lewis Oliver was scheduled to appear in Baltimore Thursday to answer charges of assault made against him on November 21, 1932, while she was living at the home of relatives.

Death of State Senator.

Smoldering underneath the hatred between the families is the death of the late State Senator Oliver, the father of Lewis Oliver, who was fatally wounded November 23, 1932, during an alleged altercation with Lewis Ritchie, the 21-year-old brother of Barbara.

In the first serious encounter between the families the late State Senator Oliver came to the Ritchie home and started berating the members of the Ritchie family. He brandished a cane at Lewis Ritchie and the younger man struck the head of the Oliver family with his fist. The latter fell backward and his skull was fractured. Young Ritchie was charged with felonious homicide, but the grand jury ignored the case.

Oliver has accused the members of the Ritchie family, according to Kirby, of having tried to keep him in jail in Baltimore, and sought to have his bail increased.

Commission Ends Sugar Quiz Today

Six Days' Session Brings Perennial Tariff Fight to Head.

(United Press.)

The perennial "battle of the sugar bowl" will arrive at a crucial stage today when the United States Tariff Commission closes a six-day hearing on proposals for changes in raw and refined sugar schedules.

Rival groups of sugar producers in Cuba, Mainland United States, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Philippines and spokesmen for national farm organizations have used the protracted hearing as a "sounding board" to measure the strength of the ever-warring groups. Veiled hints of political strife if their various conflicting requests are not granted, have been voiced.

The commission's cost of production findings and recommendations thereon, therefore will present to the incoming Roosevelt administration an early reminder that sugar is the gunpowder of American politics and the new President will have the responsibility of deciding whether to raise or lower the duties—or "stand pat."

FAIRFAX HIGHWAY WORK STAGGERED

Use of Intermittent Hiring System Proving Boon to Jobless.

The State Highway Department will start a third group of men repairing Fairfax County, Va., roads this morning under the direction of E. L. Micou, resident State engineer. The highway commission is combining unemployment relief with its road building. Using the stagger-week system, where one group is given work one week and another the next, the commission is giving limited employment to twice the number of persons hired under normal conditions. Since January 1, the number has been gradually increased.

Engineer Micou declares the present winter has been exceptionally wet and the roads are in the worst shape in 15 years. It has been almost impossible to do much for the secondary system in Fairfax County because of weather conditions. His office has been hauling gravel to the almost impassable dirt roads, to keep traffic moving.

Beginning today gravel will be placed on dirt roads near Vienna and Floris. Micou has hired practically all the light trucks available, because the conditions of the roads has been such that it is impossible to use the heavy State trucks. Two power shovels are being used in the gravel pits to keep approximately 30 trucks busy hauling the gravel.

Legion to Ballot For Real Defense

Johnson Warns Pacifist Congress Candidates Will Be Fought.

Boston, Feb. 18 (A.P.).—The American Legion will enter politics to defeat any candidate for Congress who fails to agree to vote for adequate national defense, Louis A. Johnson, of Clarksburg, W. Va., national commander of the organization, said tonight.

Commander Johnson was guest of the Massachusetts department of the Legion at its annual banquet.

"The Legion directed me at the last convention to send a questionnaire to each aspirant for Congress and find his views on national defense," Johnson said. "I want to tell you if the candidate's answer is un-American or unpatriotic, the Legion will go into politics and defeat those not in favor of strong national defense."

HOLY NAME TO GIVE HOTEL BREAKFAST

Philip Lightfoot Rust Dies at Daughter's Home in His Seventy-seventh Year.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Holy Name men of Alexandria and Mount Ida will hold a Holy Name Communion breakfast at the George Mason Hotel March 12, the breakfast to be preceded by a general Holy Communion of all of the members of St. Mary's and St. Rita's parish, as a religious preparation for the Holy Year recently announced by Pope Pius XI. The Rev. H. J. McFadden, spiritual director of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's parish, will appoint a committee from the society to take charge of arrangements for the breakfast.

Judge John A. Mathews, of Newark, N. J., will be the speaker. The breakfast is expected to attract the largest gathering of Catholic laymen in the history of St. Mary's Church.

The Alexandria Chapter of De Molay, recently organized, will install officers at Elks Hall tonight. The ceremonies, starting at 8 p. m., will be in charge of the Robert Bruce Chapter of Washington. Following the installation, an entertainment program will be presented.

Deputy Internal Revenue Collector J. Sidney Wiley has announced that his office, Room 303, Alexandria Postoffice Building, will be open from 9 a. m. until 4:30 p. m. daily, beginning today and continuing until March 15, with the exception of Sundays, to aid taxpayers with their Federal income tax returns.

The Women's Auxiliary of Immanuel Episcopal Church, Braddock Heights, will hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. A. P. Gompf, 30 Glendale avenue, at 2 p. m. tomorrow. All members are urged to attend.

The Red Cross sewing rooms will be open at the Westminster Building Monday, Thursday and Friday of this week. Experienced cutters on men's and boys' shirts are asked to donate their services as 400 yards of shirting has been received, and the workers in charge have had many calls for shirts. Miss Margery A. Hall is chairman of the production committee.

Maury School Parent-Teachers Association will celebrate founders day with a service at 3 p. m. today in the school auditorium. An appropriate talk will be given by Mrs. E. E. Carver, and also a demonstration of first aid by Mrs. Painter, school nurse.

Philip Lightfoot Rush, 76, died yesterday at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Roop, 125 Myrtle avenue, Mount Vernon Park, Alexandria, after a short illness. He was a son of the late Richard H. and Sallie Rush, of Fauquier County, Va., where he was born. He had lived in Alexandria for the past few years. Besides his daughter, Mrs. Roop, he is survived by five sons —A. Lyle, Richard R., Philip C., Kemp R. and James C. Rush—and the following brothers and sisters: Robert Rush and Mrs. C. C. Coleman, of Roanoke; Kemp Rush and Mrs. Thomas McClary, of Warrenton; Mrs. William Chadwell, of Markham; Barnum Rush, of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Frank Cockrell, of Alexandria.

The funeral will be held at 1 p. m. tomorrow from the Cunningham funeral home, conducted by the Rev. H. W. Van Couenhoven, rector of Grace Episcopal Church. Burial will be at Warrenton, Va.

$10,000 and Trip to Chicago Fair Prizes in Post Contest

Six Sundays Left for Unmarried Girls to Get $5 Each for Portraits Chosen for Publication in Competition.

The ten photographs of charming girls, which composed a page of The Post Rotogravure section yesterday, were the fourth in a series of ten pages that will appear on consecutive Sundays up to and including April 2, and for which a total of $500 in cash will be paid to the girls so represented. These pictures were selected entirely because of their suitability for rotogravure printing and will positively have no effect upon the final judgment of all photographs submitted in The Washington Post's queen contest, now in progress.

By exclusive arrangements with the Century of Progress International Exposition, The Washington Post and its affiliated newspapers have been authorized to select a queen and court of honor, consisting of 51 young ladies in all, to officiate at the opening of the exposition in Chicago June 1. Selections will be made upon the basis of feminine charm as reflected in photographs that may be entered personally, or by any friend or relative, of an unmarried girl who is not a professional, such as a stage girl or artists' model, or an employe of The Washington Post.

The 51 girls selected will go to Chicago for two weeks as guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune. They will be provided with beautiful apparel and elaborately entertained under proper chaperonage.

From the group three girls will be chosen as queen, and first and second lady-in-waiting and will receive, $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000, respectively, in cash.

There are no entrance fees nor other costs or obligations involved in this unique and dignified contest. It is merely necessary to send in a photograph that is at least 6 by 8 inches in size and that has been made within the past twelve months to the Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post. On the back of the picture should be pasted the transmittal coupon, which appears with a few simple rules in a separate announcement in this paper today, or the same information may be written upon any sheet of paper and similarly attached.

SO THIS IS RENO

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Dearest Mother: I have just seen something rare. The famous novelist (I will call him Mr. Smith) and a number of others have held a mock divorce hearing. It was the funniest thing I ever saw. The notorious Caroline King was the plaintiff; Mr. Smith her lawyer; Mrs. Alexander Paul of New York was the corespondent; Seymour, the well-known portrait painter, was the husband; I was the nurse with my matchstick baby that I make with a handkerchief; and the English woman was the resident witness. The judge was a real ex-judge of the Reno courts. They fought over the custody of the child, and Mr. Smith stressed the point that the husband had been an intellectual disappointment (the King girl, of course, never having an idea in her head in all her life). We were in Josephine McIntyre's apartment and they improvised costumes and fixed up a court room scene. It is the first time I have seen the King girl, although, of course, the town and newspapers are full of her. Mr. Smith was responsible for her being there, as he had known her family. She was absurdly funny and acted the thing cleverly.

She wept into a lace handkerchief and implored her husband not to be nice to her, as it made it so much harder. (After the play was over and we were talking about which judge we hoped to have on our big Monday, she said she shifted around each time she came back to Reno, as she believed in giving them all a break.) Mrs. Smith was there, too. She is a brilliant and charming woman and not a bit the gay type, but Reno certainly throws all kinds of people together.

Mrs. Gary got her divorce today and had a luncheon of eight girls afterward. I sat by a pretty little Mrs. Rutherford from New York, who arrived late last night accompanied by a chaperon. She said her mother wouldn't let her come without one. It is considered a great joke. Most of the men are briaky old codgers that we don't want to bother with, even though they have been outstanding business successes.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

LOUIS J. HADDAD, of Chicago, is recognized in the great metropolitan of the West as one of the greatest Bridge players in a city which boasts many experts. With Robert W. Halpin, Nils M. Webster and Max M. Cohen, now dead, he has brought more than one championship to his city and to the Auction Bridge Club, of which he is a leading member.

Mr. Haddad recognizes instantly all the standard situations about which so much is written, such as squeezes, coups and forced leads. There is one type of very fine play which does not bring such instant recognition from other Bridge players, but really is as beautiful a play as is possible at the Bridge table. This is the play known as the "elimination play," which requires the elimination of one or more suits from both the closed and Dummy hands in order to force an opponent who is placed in the lead to give either a ruff and a discard or to make a lead that will net the Declarer an extra trick.

In a recent team-of-four game, Mr. Haddad made a game for his side by the use of this play on the hand below, while at the other table the game was missed because the player did not realize in time the proper way to make the hand.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ 6 ♡ A Q 8 7 4 ◇ A J 7 5 ♣ K 10 8
♠ K J 10 9 3 4 ♡ 6 ◇ K 3 ♣ 7 6 3 2	N W E S	♠ Q 5 3 ♡ 5 2 ◇ Q 10 8 2 ♣ A Q J 4
	♠ A 7 2 ♡ K J 10 9 3 ◇ 9 6 4 ♣ 9 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♡	Pass	3♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

The Opening lead was the diamond 2, which is admittedly not the best lead from the standpoint of Double Dummy play. No doubt the safest Opening, as the cards lie, is a trump, but East, while he would not lead from a major tenace could see no harm in the opening of the fourth-best from his minor tenace in diamonds. Mr. Haddad won the trick with the Ace of diamonds, and could see the probability of defeat by the unfavorable location of key cards in diamonds and clubs, unless East could be forced to lead one of his suits. With this thought in mind, he planned the play of the hand.

The Ace of spades was at once cashed and a spade ruffed in the closed hand. The Dummy was then reentered by leading a trump, and the remaining spade trumped in the North hand. A second round of trumps again put Dummy in the lead, with all the adverse trumps drawn and spades eliminated from the closed and Dummy hands. Now a small diamond was led from Dummy, with North planning to cover whatever card was played by West. When West played the 3, North played the 5. East won with the 8 and the success of the contract was assured. His hand now contained nothing but two diamonds and four clubs. The Queen of diamonds was high, and the club Ace, of course, was good, but through careful planning of the play, the Declarer was assured of his contract.

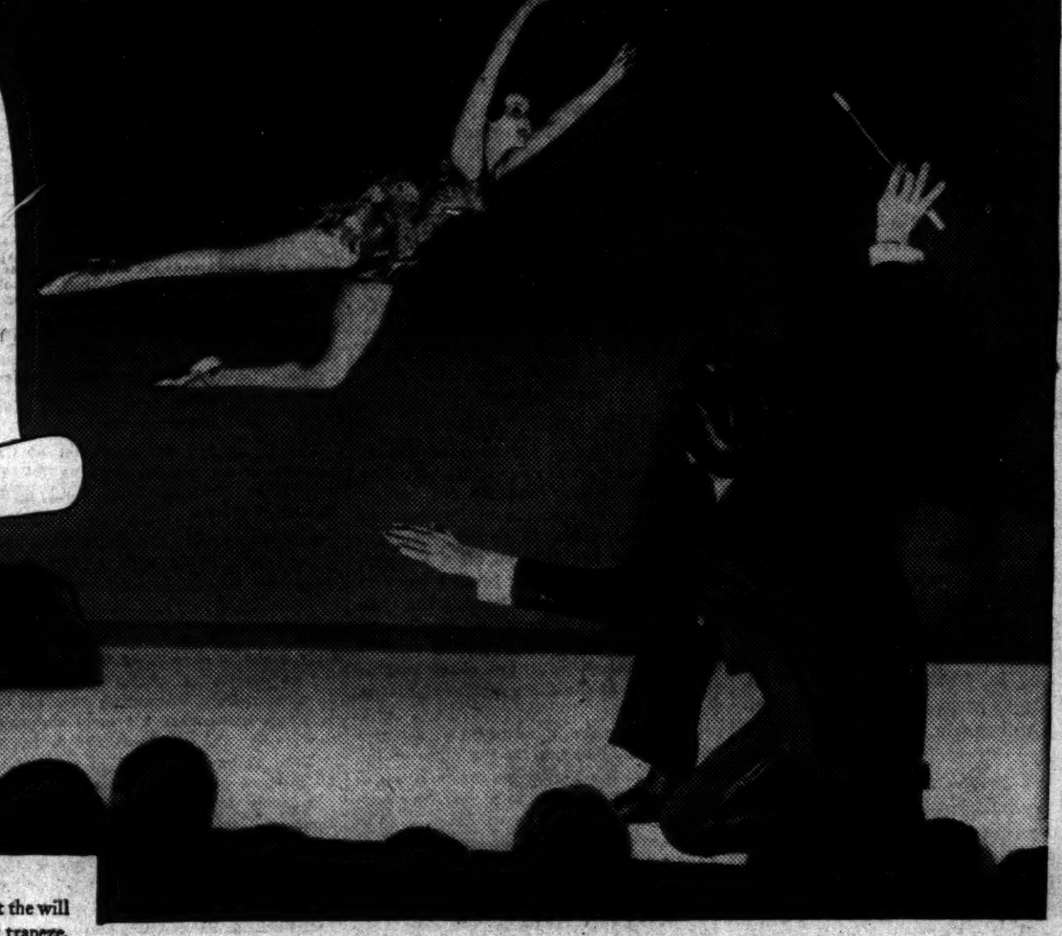
BEATS OLYMPIC RECORD!



ILLUSION:
Josie, the lovely trapeze artist, stands upon a small platform. At the will of the magician she leaps twenty feet into the air to reach her trapeze. She uses no ropes, no ladder! A phenomenal leap for a woman...or a man!

EXPLANATION:
Josie didn't jump . . . she was sprung! The twenty-foot leap is not dependent on Josie's ability, but on a powerful spring mechanism hidden beneath the stage which propels the artist upward through the air. The force is so violent that the lady wears a light steel jacket which protects her from injury as she starts her astonishing leap.

Magic has its place . . . but not in cigarette advertising.

Consider the illusion that there is a mysterious way to give cigarettes a superior "flavor."

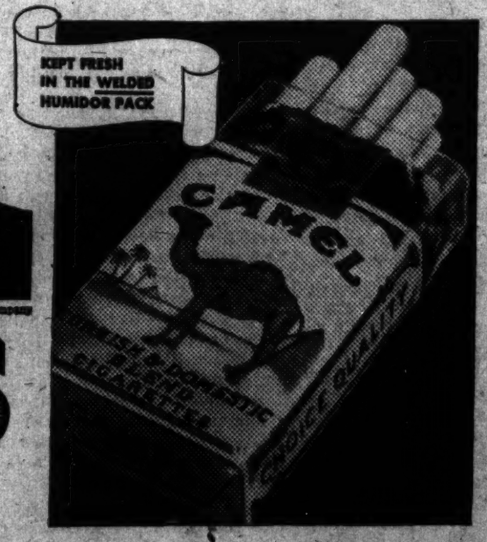
EXPLANATION: Cigarette flavor can be controlled by adding artificial flavorings. By blending. And by the quality of tobaccos used.

Cheap tobaccos can be "built up" or "fortified" by the lavish use of artificial flavorings.

Such magic, however, seldom holds the audience. Your taste finally tells you the truth.

The cigarette flavor that never stales, never varies, never loses its fresh appeal, comes from mild, ripe, fragrant, more expensive tobaccos . . . blended to bring out the full, round flavor of each type leaf.

It's the quality of the tobacco that counts!



It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Because Camel actually pays millions more every year for choice tobaccos, you find in Camels an appealing mildness, a better flavor.

And Camels taste cooler because the welded Humidor Pack of three-ply, MOISTURE-PROOF cellophane keeps them fresh.

LET DEFAULTERS PAY UP.

President-elect Roosevelt will confer today with the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, who has just returned from London. It is assumed that Sir Ronald brings at least an outline of a proposal for adjusting the British debt.

Since Great Britain is bound by the Lausanne agreement, which can not be ratified until and unless the United States scales down all the war debts, it is not clear that the British government is in a position to make a separate debt adjustment in advance of adjustments affecting other debtors.

If the United States can be induced to consider reduction of all debts, as part of a grand scheme for world recovery, the British debt can be reduced; but the French debt would have to be dealt with as a part of the same transaction.

France has refused to pay its debt installments and therefore stands in a very disadvantageous position so far as concessions from the United States are concerned. It is idle to expect that France, Poland, and other debt defaulters can sit in a conference with the United States for the purpose of reconsidering the debts until they show their good faith by paying what is overdue.

Mr. Roosevelt has stated that he will keep Congress informed concerning debt conferences and plans for the projected world economic conference. Congress is suspicious of all European proposals, and is evidently strongly opposed to granting concessions to France, Poland, and other defaulters. If the British negotiators can overcome this feeling and place all debtors in the way of receiving concessions they will have accomplished a marvelous feat in diplomacy. Their first difficulty is with Mr. Roosevelt himself. Apparently they are confident that they can reach an agreement with him. If they knew the strength of his determination to cultivate good relations with Congress they would bring Congress into their calculations before assuming that an agreement with Mr. Roosevelt would be equivalent to an agreement with the United States Government. Nothing is more certain than Mr. Roosevelt's refusal to approve of any agreement that is not acceptable to Congress.

So long as Great Britain is tied up with France and other defaulters in a plan to obtain debt concessions for all, it ought to be evident that little or no headway can be made until the defaulters pay up. Is it expected that the United States will enter a general economic conference, facing defaulters across the table, and relying upon their good faith for fulfilling new engagements while they are repudiating existing obligations? All the debtors are wasting time if they indulge in such a fantasy.

MEDICINAL LIQUOR.

In the midst of heated discussions for and against prohibition repeal and beer, there is one bill before Congress which might well be promptly passed on its merits, and which should not call for any division along wet and dry lines. It is the bill introduced at the instance of the American Medical Association to modify the Volstead law, so as to remove the restrictions now placed on physicians in the prescription of medicinal liquor.

The American Medical Association, with a membership of nearly 125,000, is not entering into a controversy as to repeal or modification, but it is vitally concerned in upholding the doctrine that a physician should be permitted to prescribe medicine for a patient according to his best judgment, and not under fixed legal limitations. The abolition of this restriction upon prescriptions was recommended by the Wickersham Commission and has been supported by many physicians and consistent advocates of prohibition, such as Judge Kenyon, who realize that such a provision has no proper place in law. It is not the province of lawyers to determine what medicine, or how much, shall be administered to the sick.

There has been little abuse of the prescription privilege by the medical profession. Of more than 100,000 physicians who have taken out permits less than 1 per cent have suffered revocations, a figure that is far below the percentage of infractions in any other class of offenses against the Volstead act or any other law. The change advocated by the doctors is supported by a recommendation from President Hoover and by Col. Woodcock, head of the Bureau of Prohibition, and Dr. Doran, of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol.

TO REGULATE BONDSMEN.

Early in January the Senate passed the King bill to regulate the execution of bonds in criminal cases in the District of Columbia. This measure has the approval of the District Commissioners and various citizens' organizations. No opposition to it was raised in a public hearing by the Senate judiciary committee, and it was passed by the Senate without a dissenting vote. There could be no conceivable opposition to it in the House, yet that body has failed to act on the measure.

At present this bill is held up by a judiciary subcommittee of the House of which Representative Vincent L. Palmisano is chairman. No reason for the failure of this body to act is apparent. Presumably the bill is neglected only because it pertains to the administration of justice in the District. If that is the case, Mr. Palmisano should be advised that the King bill is of vital importance to the people of the District.

Senator King's measure seeks to correct the evils of fee-splitting between attorneys and bondsmen and to end corrupt practices in the writing of criminal bonds. At present bondsmen conduct their business virtually without supervision or restraint. Too frequently attorneys and bondsmen work in collusion and divide the profits. Police officers are also tempted to "tip off" bondsmen and attorneys for a "rake off" on their fees. Such practices hinder the administration of justice and may victimize individuals who are accused of violating the law.

Under the provisions of this bill the courts would be authorized to prescribe qualifications for any individual serving as a bondsman. It would be made unlawful for bondsmen to split fees with attorneys, policemen and other officials. Attorneys would be forbidden to pay bondsmen for referring clients to them. Bondsmen would be forbidden to solicit business in places where prisoners are detained, thus leaving the prisoners free to select their own bondsmen. It would be unlawful for policemen to give advance information as to raids and arrests.

Abuses which arise out of the present lack of supervision in this field are obvious. The House can do the District a distinct favor by bringing this bill out of committee and passing it before March 4.

BEER LEGISLATION.

The committee of distinguished citizens appointed by Gov. Lehman of New York to prepare regulatory laws for the sale of liquor in case of repeal or modification has made its first report on how beer should be handled when the Volstead act is changed. It is far from receiving general approval in New York City and Albany. The committee appears to be more interested in promoting temperance than assuring revenue and is extremely solicitous about keeping politics out of the State and local control boards.

By limiting the State tax to $1 a barrel on beer manufactured in the State or imported, and the license fee for restaurants, hotels and clubs to $100 a year, the committee believes the retail price can be restricted to 5 cents for an eight-ounce glass. As the Senate eliminates the anti-saloon amendment to the repeal amendment, the New York commission puts it back in its draft of a State law. While it is not required that food be served with beer in a restaurant, hotel or club, it is specifically declared that such establishments must not degenerate into what is known as a saloon or tavern, and to this end bars are taboo. The only modification of these strict regulations is that the description of a restaurant "should be such as to provide for beer gardens properly restricted."

Manufacturers under this measure will be strictly prohibited from holding any interest in retail establishments. Beer regulation would be put in charge of a committee of five appointed by the governor, serving without pay, but selection would be limited to a group of twelve candidates nominated, three each, by the State Bar Association, Medical Society, Chamber of Commerce and Federation of Labor. The county boards of three each would be appointed by county judges from non-political lists of candidates, one member of each board to be a woman. As to enforcement, the recommendations are that it be left largely to present State and local police, it being suggested that only a limited number of inspectors need be employed.

It is not difficult to see why this plan, which lays stress upon the importance of having "appointments removed from the influence of political parties and of politics," does not meet with unanimous acclaim among New York politicians. While saloons and taverns are prohibited it is held that to try to outlaw the bar, where men may stand and consume a glass of beer, will result in speakeasies being maintained just as they have been under prohibition. Recommendations of the committee against competitive advertising and provisions to allot a portion of the beer tax for a campaign of education against the evils of drink were received with some amusement by Albany legislators. Altogether it seems likely that committee suggestions will be considerably modified before the New York beer law is passed.

SCHOOLS WANT A DOLE.

Educators assembled at Teachers College, New York, last week were invited to visualize the green pasture of "national financing" for the schools. This group met to ponder over ways and means of maintaining education in this period of hard times. Complaints were heard about larger enrollments, greater need for adult education and relief work in the schools, to say nothing about decreasing school budgets. The educators had no difficulty in agreeing that there is "terrific distress in the school system of the country."

What is the answer to this dilemma? It was almost unnecessary for Dean William F. Russell, of Teachers College, to supply the answer. Where do all groups and factions look when they run out of money? To Washington! Politicians, Federal and State, have set the pace. Banks, railroads, farmers, veterans and various other groups have quickened the demand. All pleas for money are now directed to Uncle Sam. Why shouldn't the educators jump in and get their share of the plunder? Does charity work or road building have any greater claim upon the Federal Treasury than education? The thought of it is horrifying to educators whose salaries are in jeopardy.

"Fundamentally," says Dean Russell, "we've got to come to national financing of education. It seems obvious. Just as Montclair has to support schools in South Jersey, New York will have to support schools in Arkansas and Alabama." The only surprising thing about this statement is that it did not come from the educators of Arkansas and Alabama. Ordinarily it is the so-called backward States that plead for doles. But the principle is the same. Even some New Yorkers seem to think that Uncle Sam has a magic purse that can yield all the revenue needed for any purpose.

Educators know, of course, that funds for support of the schools must come from the pockets of the people. But many love to delude themselves. If they can think that the funds to support the schools of Virginia are coming from California, Illinois and Florida, they can be more liberal in giving Virginians the extravagant education which theory says they should have. A few frills for Virginia would not mean much to taxpayers all over the country. And so the argument is carried on to utter absurdity.

It would be well for Congress to listen in on these ambitious schemes to tap the Treasury for the benefit of the schools. It might catch an inkling of the pressure that will be applied if the principle of local self-reliance is broken down by doles and special gifts to States and municipalities.

Manuel Quezon is coming here in the hope of convincing Congress that it was wrong when it passed the Philippine bill. Congress knows that already, but it makes no admissions.

Revelations in the Senate committee prove very clearly the cause of the depression—in Insull securities and among the suckers who bought them.

The threatened demonstration of Communists at the District Building failed to materialize. Zangara had already demonstrated at Miami.

IDENTIFYING ALIENS

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

An American newspaper man, arriving in Italy, made an experiment to test the working of the Italian system of checking up on alien visitors. Alighting from his train in Rome he checked his hand baggage at the station and wandered off in the city without going to a hotel to register. In 20 minutes he was under arrest and was accounting for himself at the police station. He had learned what he wanted to know. The Italian system of keeping track of foreigners does work.

Had this American, on arriving in Rome, gone to a hotel and registered he would not have made the acquaintance of the Italian police. His registration, which the hotel would have reported immediately to the police bureau, would have met every requirement. The police had made note of him, as well as of all his fellow passengers, when he crossed the border from Switzerland. They knew when his train arrived in Rome. When he did not register anywhere they immediately sent out men to pick him up.

This suggests that if the United States had an adequate system of keeping tab on aliens this country would not be full, as it is, of foreigners who have slipped surreptitiously over the border, and would not be, as it is, a happy hunting ground for alien criminals.

In Italy—in all Continental countries for that matter—an alien can not slip surreptitiously into the country and stay for more than a few hours. He must register somewhere and when he registers he must have a passport. If not, he is in the hands of the police at once.

In Italy—and other Continental countries—it is impossible for the foreigner to dodge annoymously about the country, passing here as Mr. Brown and there as Mr. Jones. The police will want to know at once who this Mr. Jones is who has not appeared elsewhere on their records.

All this puts no hardship at all on the well disposed foreign visitor. His hotel or lodging house host attends to the routine. The tourist can go about Italy with no bother with the police so long as he keeps himself properly located in whatever town he is staying. He will actually have in Europe much more liberty than a citizen has in the United States, but he must always be on the records.

Something like this could be very useful in these United States, where we now foolishly give ourselves little or no chance to know whether aliens are here rightfully or wrongfully or what they are up to.

Where Inflation Is Needed Most. —Kansas City Star.

POST HASTE

The wets and drys might offer State prizes for 36 positive and 13 negative votes and help relieve the suspense.

Keeping up with the Joneses is nothing to their efforts to excel each other. Wes Jones' allotment bill is small change now compared with the $35,000,000,000 bill of Marvin Jones to refinance farm debts.

If there is any need for a futility simile illustrate it with the bootlessness of picking or eliminating candidates for 1936.

China will probably find that the right of might in this day and age does not refer entirely to numerical preponderance.

Was it that billion-dollar saving on which the House could not agree with the Senate? No, it wasn't 20 per cent of that amount.

Declared wars and acknowledged ultimatums are passe. The French and British notes to Austria just politely requested the destruction or return of the arms shipment from Italy—by a certain date.

When Congress begins doling out funds to States and cities, local efforts much more important will stop to let Uncle Sam do it.

Before they become too exhausted to fight any more Paraguay and Bolivia are thinking of declaring war.

Secretary Hyde's farm relief scheme is not going to make much of a hit in Congress. It contemplates spending less than $200,000,000 of Government money.

But the Senate just loved the plan to sell Government cotton cheap to growers who agree to raise less of their own, so as to increase prices and sell the Government cotton at a profit while Uncle Sam pockets the loss. Simple, no?

The inaugural ball committee gives you fair warning to get started with the right partner—the music is going to be continuous.

Mr. Loree pleaded for less regulation of the railroads, and a man who can be president of one road and buy a 10 per cent interest in the New York Central ought to know.

Possibly Congress takes some satisfaction in feeling that what it hasn't done for the farmers is no more destructive that what they have been doing for themselves recently.

The British Ambassador brings back the debt baby for another consultation with the President-elect, who was not charmed with his first view, but has now become its exclusive nurse. PAUL HUDSON.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

QUESTION.

I met two men today. One said:
"What's wrong that I must beg for bread?"
I am a master craftsman, yet
My house is swallowed up in debt,
From place to place and day by day
I walked to hear employers say:
'From here you may as well depart,
Not yet the furnace fires can start.'
What's wrong in such a world as ours
That men must sit and waste their powers?"

The other said: "Day after day
In idleness my workmen stay.
No fires beneath the boilers burn,
No wheels within the factory turn,
And sick at heart I sit and wait
With grim disaster at the gate.
What's wrong that I must send away
The men that I would gladly pay
In poverty and pain to live
Because no work have I to give?"

The True Story of a Man Determined to Lift Himself by His Boot Straps

By ROBERT QUILLEN

JOHN BROWN, the farmer, had toiled and saved for 20 years. As reward for his labor he possessed, free of all encumbrance, a farm as tidy and fertile as you would find in a day's journey.

Crops were good; prices were high; John's future looked bright.

Then his cousin killed a man and came to him for money to hire lawyers and fight for his life. The money, said the cousin, would be repaid with interest.

So John contributed his savings and mortgaged his farm to raise more money and his downfall began.

Borrowing, he found, was easy. And if he could borrow for his cousin, why not for himself?

Borrow he did. And because the borrowed money made him feel rich, he began to live high and make a great show.

He bought a new car and a truck; he built an addition to his house; he made the first payments on a radio, an electric refrigerator, a piano and a new set of lightning rods.

Then the chickens began to come home to roost.

A bumper crop brought scarcely enough to pay the cost of making it. The cousin won his fight, but was bankrupt and couldn't repay the loan. Bankers and merchants began to clamor for their money. Times were hard everywhere. And seven of John's poor kin, hearing that he was rich, came to visit and remained to be supported.

John was desperate. He spent a night figuring and next morning said to his wife: "Sarah, I'm ruined. I owe for everything we've got, and there are three mortgages on the farm. It would take me ten years to pay my debts."

"All right," said Sarah, "let's scratch bottom. Fire your hired hands; get rid of the kin folks sponging on us; quit trying to live like a lord and we'll make a fresh start and work our way out."

But living on borrowed money had done something to John's head.

"No," said he, "we can't go backward. The world has moved. I've got a scheme figured out that will save us."

"Fine!" said Sarah. "And what's the scheme?"

"Why," said John, "I'm going to slap another mortgage on the place and borrow some more money. It's easy."

And if you think nobody could be that dumb, you are missing a lot of current national history.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Suicide for Congress.

Springfield Republican.

It is not strange that Democratic senators and even some Democratic representatives are in revolt against the House leaders who would confer all power—including a quasi-power of legislation—upon President Roosevelt. This would be the same thing as a confession of impotence on the part of Congress. It would be very much as if the members agreed to sign a suicide pact. For in the act they admit that certain things ought to be done, things which are their own sworn obligations under the Constitution to do, yet which they have not the moral courage to go through with. So they propose to pass everything on to the President, and demand that he be brave where they are cowardly, strong where they are weak.

Jim Farley, Technocrat.

Kansas City Times.

Mr. Farley, personally, is in the most enviable of positions. He is to be the new Postmaster General, not on the basis of his capitalistic dollars, but rather on the basis of technocratic ergs, so to speak—his services to the party have been in terms of energy and work performed, and his contribution to the deficit is in having kept it from being bigger than it is. Thus he will move into the Cabinet with no embarrassment to himself or to his chief. If all the others under consideration for appointment could be regarded as having gone on the same technocratic basis, there would be no cause for worry. There might not even be any deficit.

Been There Too Long.

Boston Herald.

Word sifts in from Paris that the crimp is coming back, and it would be a sort of change, at that, to have it in something else besides the bankroll.

Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A lame duck is never too crippled to make its way to the cashier's window.

Just Hold It.

Macon Telegraph.

The Safest Crime.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Not a horse has been stolen in Queens Village in 15 years. The dissolution of a society intended to catch horse thieves, after 72 years existence, is fully justified. As for the stealing of automobiles, according to Commissioner of Correction Walter N. Thayer, it is the "safest crime any person can commit."

No Intervention.

Manchester Union.

Under the Platt amendment, the United States retained the right to intervene in Cuba for the preservation of Cuban independence, and the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty. But the State Department has followed the wise policy that unless these aims are seriously threatened, Cuba should be left to work out its own political salvation.

Certainly, the American people want no intervention in Cuba if it can possibly be avoided. American intervention in Nicaragua, although fully justified, raised a storm of criticism, and the announcement that the withdrawal of the Marines from that country is to be followed by sending them to Cuba to settle a local quarrel would raise a greater storm.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Old Bank Man Skeptical Regarding Branch Banking—Says Complications Would Follow.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note a remark in a Post editorial which appeared February 15, which reads as follows: "In these States hundreds of small, tottering banks might be saved by absorption into larger institutions." It is apparent from the loans made by the R. F. C. that the larger institutions are having a hard time keeping their heads above water. By what method are these corporations going to be induced to take over a lot of dead horses and devote a part of their energy to the resuscitation of structures in a state of collapse, with little outlook for success in the venture for years to come?

There is a false note in this branch banking scheme. As I said to a Government official who favored regional banking, referring to the smaller institutions, "How can your bank fail except in case of a defalcation, before your community fails; and what difference is it going to make to your farmer whether the central bank withholds his credit or his local bank fails?"

Land values rose at a rapid rate while banking capital remained fairly stationary; and until capital values in land and industry are written down drastically there is no inducement to invest in the stock of an institution, collective or individual.

The scheme carries with it an admission of the failure of national and State oversight of banking institutions, and the interweaving of transactions among various branches will further complicate the situation. The unethical position of affiliates is evidence of the danger that may confront a branch bank system.

OLD BANK MAN.

Hot Springs, Va.

Consolidate States and Counties and Get Economy, as Big Business Does.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why not try consolidation of States? Let the New England States become one State, thereby cutting costs to at least one-third. New York, on account of its population, should remain as at present. Let Pennsylvania and New Jersey become one State; Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Delaware one State; Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky one State, and so on until we have, say, only 16 States instead of 48. Also consolidate two congressional districts into one.

What a howl would go up! Not from the poor devil, however, who carries the load of governors and attorneys general and secretaries of state, with all their hundreds and thousands of appointees and tax eaters. Not from the poor cuss who pays Federal, State, county, city, town, village and school district taxes out of his profits, but from the whole army of nonproducers who have intrenched themselves with all the machinery behind them to make their protest loud and convincing. Consolidate the counties in these sixteen States, three into one, and all subdivisions of the Government in like proportion and see what happens!

Why do great industries consolidate? Why does any well-regulated business forbid the duplication of expenditure? And why should not we, the people, govern ourselves at a minimum of cost instead of the maximum? ALBERT L. WALKUP.

New York City.

If Chinese Should Unite They Could Give Japan a Battle Royal!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What is an ultimatum to Japan? She can not be content with issuing one ultimatum to China, but must do the thing right and issue three. One is intended for the Governor of Jehol, which will be sent by the government of Manchukuo; another will go to the central government at Nanking from the Tokyo foreign office, and the third will be sent to Marshal Chang in Peiping via the Japanese military authorities in the Peiping-Tientsin district.

All three of the ultimatums will state that the Jehol district must be rid of rebels, according to the Japanese treaty with the government of Manchukuo. It is very probable that the ultimatums will be ignored by the Chinese, because they have about reached the end of the rope, and will fight it out with the Japanese before they will leave Jehol. On the other hand, if the Chinese should comply with the ultimatums, Japan would still blow Jehol off the map if it were included in her plans.

If China becomes solidly united, with one purpose in view, namely, to drive the Japs out of China, there will be a battle royal, and the Chinese will have a very good chance of being the victors. But China must unite in order to protect what is rightfully her own. C. C. PARSONS.

Congress Should Provide More Money to Deport Communists.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The attempt on the life of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt is of all-absorbing interest to every one, but there is one fact that should not be overlooked.

It would seem to the writer that the Department of Labor is failing to rid this country of undesirable aliens. In every Communistic gathering there are present aliens who are improperly in this country, and prompt measures should be taken to deport these persons. If the Department of Labor is not properly equipped for this purpose, Congress could render the country no greater service than to appropriate sufficient money to see that we have the proper facilities for carrying out this work.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Madeline Moore comes to Africa with Martin Sefton to look for her lover, Kaspa, the lion-man raised by a lioness, who had been brought to Canada, inherited a fortune, and then returned to his native jungle. Also in the party are Kaspa's relatives, Lucian and Sheila Marley and Sheila's husband, Harland Reeves. Lucian and Reeves plan to kill Kaspa, so that they would get his money. Reeves steals away with a rifle to shoot Kaspa. Kaspa, surrounded by his lion friends, discovers his presence, and is slowly creeping up on him when Madeline appears on the scene.

Kaspa made an impatient gesture. "I don't want to discuss that now. I left her for you. It seemed we were mistaken. Her affections are centered elsewhere."

He checked Martin's attempt at speech. "Let that go; I have other things to talk about—but first we will go a little further into the forest away from eavesdroppers." He took Sefton by the arm and led him, resisting futilely, into the deeper cover.

Once more upon the banks of the stream, he stopped and faced the Englishman. "Martin, I am tired of this"—he swept his hand out over the forest. "I want to be two things at once: a wild man and a tame man. When you people took me away into the towns you did me the worst service possible. You made it impossible for me to live your life. I am a most wretched person; I am discontented." He stopped and stood staring at his friend with somber, disconsolate gaze.

"My poor old chap!" cried Sefton, deeply shocked. It was distressing to him to think of Kaspa, the strong and self-reliant, in this frame of mind. The lion-man continued slowly and carefully, choosing his words.

"I have wondered if there was any way of combining a wild life with the benefits of civilization. I could build a house somewhere out in the bush and live there like I did in Port Perry, but I must have some one to share it with me, and who would wish to share such an existence?"

"I would," said Sefton quickly. "Kaspa, you can count on me."

Kaspa shook his head. "You are not intended for that. You have often told me you hated your life at Nyoka: how could you be happy in the midst of this desolation?" He sighed. "I had hopes and dreams, but they are all vanities," he said, half to himself.

Sefton knew he was thinking of Madeline. He caught him eagerly by the arm. "Listen, Kaspa; you are making a terrible mistake. Madeline wants to speak with you—she will explain everything. Will you let me call her?"

Kaspa smiled. "I knew she was close by. I smelt the perfume she uses."

He raised his head and listened intently. A faint grunting came from the bush. Kaspa wheeled upon Sefton, his eyes full of flickering lights. "Who is with you? Who is the man who crouches in the bush with a rifle in his hands? Is it Reeves?"

"Good heavens, no! There is no one, Kaspa, no one but Madeline."

Kaspa's lip lifted in a faint snarl. "She has brought her lover with her, Martin," he said. "They intend to shoot me from ambush." He stood quite still, sniffing and listening, and Sefton was still also, appalled by the sense of tragedy he felt hovering over them. Again that low grunting sounded on the quiet air, and this time there was a savage snarling note in it. Kaspa threw back his head and roared. At once the forest became a pandemonium. Heavy bodies crashed through the bushes, the terrible roaring of lions reverberated among the trees and mixed with the awful sound was the shrill scream of a woman.

Kaspa dashed out into the moonlit glade by the rock, Sefton at his heels. Madeline was standing there, her hands clasped in an attitude of fear and supplication, and before her crouched two huge lions. Kaspa grunted. Dogo and Zito turned at his call and pushed against him, one on either side. Kaspa faced Madeline in the moonlit clearing, and for a moment they looked into each other's eyes—and at that moment Cloete rose from behind his covering bush and took steady aim with his long rifle. His opportunity had come. One of his party was threatened by two ferocious beasts. It was easy for him to say he had picked the wrong figure in that dim light.

Kaspa's life trembled upon the Dutchman's trigger finger, for the old hunter did not miss at that range, but the lion-man was more wary than Cloete supposed. For the past ten minutes Ruka had been hiding within a few yards of the Dutchman. The big lion, pitched his voice afar off, and told Kaspa of the enemy waiting in the bush with ready rifle and his leader had replied with the roar that meant "kill!"

As Cloete leveled his weapon, Ruka rose out of the shadows and dashed upon him. The hunter went down like a buck beneath that savage attack, and Lucian, rushing forward in a futile attempt to prevent the murder of Kaspa, about to be enacted before his eyes, found himself forestalled by a force more effective than his own. He turned and fled shouting from the awful sound of rending claws and crunching fangs.

But Kuka's sudden attack, though it preserved his leader's life, did not prevent his injury. The old Dutch hunter had so concentrated upon his purpose that even the dreadful roar of the charging lion did no more than upset his aim. Before he turned to defend himself, he loosed the bullet that a moment later would have crashed through Kaspa's chest, but which thus hurriedly fired was less accurate than it might have been. It struck the lion-man in the muscles of his thigh, tearing a large hole, and with its shock causing him to stagger against a tree, to which he clung. He leant there, his gaze burning into Madeline's brain in a look she was never to forget.

He spoke one word: "Traitress!" and his voice held the growl of the lion; then, laughing wildly, he spun round upon Sefton.

"Good-by to all my dreams—and good-by to you, friend. Tell Grant to come himself to avenge Reeves' death. He must get me before he gets Ruka." He began to limp away across the clearing, leaving a red splash at every step, whilst Sefton, overwhelmed with grief and horror, watched him helplessly. But Madeline was more determined than the young Englishman; she realized that all that made for happiness in her life was departing out of it with the man she loved. Like a deer she sped across the clearing and threw her arms about the great shoulders of the lion-man. "Kaspa, for heaven's sake listen! It is not as you think. I have never betrayed you. Please let me explain."

At the red glare in the gaze he turned upon her she became frantic. "Beast, beast!—to accuse me of such a thing!" she cried, beating at his huge chest with her tiny fists. "I will not let you go until you believe me! I love you! How could I hurt you? You shall not scorn me!"

Kaspa shook her off, but in desperation she gripped his arm and so trailed behind him, striving with all her slender strength to restrain his inexorable progress. He stopped and looked at her; there was a softer expression in his eyes this time. "You love me?" he said, and laughed, but it was not a cynical laugh. Madeline pushed against him, panting with her effort. She realized that her chance had come. Now she could convince him of her innocence of the attempt upon his life—could hold him with her beauty and the weakness which was her greatest strength—now, or never!

She spoke quickly in her low, exquisite voice, vibrant with emotion. "I care nothing for Reeves. I said I loved him to prevent you from killing him and suffering the penalty. For it is you I love, Kaspa—won't you believe that? How can you think me base enough to act as decoy for these cowards who tried to kill you?" She stamped her foot; her dark eyes flashed; her whole frame was racked with the emotions of rage and regret.

Kaspa placed more reliance upon intuitive understanding than the value of words; he sensed the genuineness of her feelings and the strength of her love more than she could ever have expressed in language. What he said must remain Madeline's secret, but when the tortured Sefton at last gained courage to intrude upon them it was a countenance transfigured by happiness that the lion-man turned upon his friend. "It's all right, Martin," he said, and his voice was softer than Sefton had ever heard it. "I was a fool to jump to conclusions. I don't yet know what happened, but at least I am sure that neither Madeline nor you were concerned in it." His voice faltered suddenly and his eyes half closed.

"Kaspa! What is it, darling?" cried Madeline in alarm.

Sefton pointed silently to the blood running steadily down his friend's leg. He sprang forward to support the wounded man, but too late. Kaspa's great form broke from the girl's embrace and slid slowly to earth.

Sefton tore the scarf from his neck, and with hurried shaking fingers the two of them bound a tournique above the wound; then Sefton took his friend upon his shoulders and bore him in the direction of camp, staggering and gasping under his enormous weight. As they went, Kaspa said no word, until the grunting of lions all about them took on a savage, menacing note, then he raised his head and uttered a single high-pitched roar, weak and tremulous, but clearly conveying its meaning to his four-footed friends. Dogo, following closely behind his leader, repeated that cry in a voice that rang through the night, and Ruka and the lionesses, still scouting for possible danger upon the outskirts of the forest, obediently turned their faces toward the rock-stream heights and the security of their lair, grunting as they went.

Kaspa's limp hand lay in Madeline's, and as he heard those deep sorrowful notes receding his grasp tightened and he smiled. It was a sigh that he had made his choice and was content. Away up to the misty heights went the chorus of the lions, and its meaning was: "Trek, trek, brothers—Kaspa has gone from us again."

Washington Post Home Opened in Spring Valley

A most noteworthy event yesterday was the presentation to the public for the first time of the new Washington Post model home at 3641 Forty-ninth street northwest in Spring Valley, "the garden of beautiful homes." This handsome exhibit house evoked the praise of hundreds of visitors throughout the day.

Designed and built by W. C. & A. N. Miller, creators of the beautiful residential subdivisions of Spring Valley and Wesley Heights, the display residence has been opened to the public as a demonstration of the finer art in home building and interior decoration. The latter is by Charles Gallery, Inc. The home boasts of an ultramodern General Electric kitchen made possible by the cooperation of the National Electrical Supply & Potomac Electric Power Cos. with the exhibitors. The house will be open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

'TIS a spring of softly, subtly, muted colors. Not for this spring is the almost inevitable budding of greens and yellows, not for this spring a riotous bursting into color from winter's shackles! Instead spring comes gently, softly, and wearing colors that distinguish her gentility.

Gray is this spring color. But at last a gray that every woman will find pleasing and flattering—the coldness of its spiritual coloring having been greatly mitigated by an infusion of warmer tones and tints. In fact, it is hard to tell whether it is gray or beige, or the mixture of both which we call grege, that is the popular spring color.

Sure it is that two shades of gray are smarter than one in a costume, and two distinct shades, too—a light gray and a somber one, for instance. But both shades must have the exact degree of warmth necessary to their being seen together, otherwise they clash even worse than do contrasting and vivid colors.

The two and three shade gray story is a boon, because of the accessories. The day when one had to match all accessories with frock and coat in a rosey gray—or a colder gray, is thankfully past. I think 'twas that necessity as well as anything else which prevented the popularity of gray! Now we have a frock of one shade, a coat of a darker gray, and then accessories of a third shade.

Sun fading and color changing, and the perils of inexpert cleaning establishments are all gray terrors. The best cleaner will even hesitate to tackle gray—but since we must use some cleaning, better use the best.

Au revoir.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THE alliance 'tween coiffure and chapeau becomes closer and closer. So much so that in the better department stores both millinery and hairdressing salons are working together, increasing the smartness of both and of the customer herself thereby.

The most exciting thing about the new hats which Paris featured for spring is the variety of shapes, and this variety establishes a genuine claim to individuality. It will doubtless mean a new coiffure. But then a dose of new beauty acts like a cocktail, breaking down old inhibitions and putting new fun into life. Suppose you have gone on with the same old style of hairdress you have worn for one or two or maybe ten years! Suppose you haven't given in and changed your hair for the new hats. And then suppose you do! It is the easiest thing to change one's hairdress. Try it. See how much younger your head looks and how twice as correct your hat.

For hats the slogan is the smaller, the smarter. And the shallower, the smarter, too. A woman is judged for elegance by the amount of head she can expose and still keep her hair beautifully groomed.

With hats continuing to dip down over the right eye, the left side part is fast advancing to center and even over to the right because it is difficult to arrange the expanse of hair revealed under the shallow hat when the hair is parted on the left.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WE NEED LIME IN WINTER.

DURING the next few months health will suffer because the human body tends to run low in lime. We think of this chemical as the chief constituent of bone and teeth, and therefore as being a substance used to harden tissues and make them inelastic and unyielding. Nor should we forget this important use of lime while we consider other purposes it serves.

The body of the bones consist of fibrous tissue impregnated with lime salts. Within the hard shell and body of nearly every bone there lies a loose bony tissue called the spongy or cancellous bone. This is the lime warehouse. The lime stored there is ready prepared to go into solution and be carried away for use wherever it is wanted. If the amount of lime contained in the food is insufficient that in solution in the blood and tissues is used. Then the supply in the spongy bone is drawn on and when that has been exhausted absorption takes place from the hard bones and teeth, but this to only a limited extent.

Lime appears to be a stabiliser generally. Nervous children, those with croupy tendencies and with various kinds of jerks and spasms, generally are in need of lime. It also has a place in the treatment of nervous, on-edge people. What part it plays in protection against such infections as colds, coughs, pneumonia and consumption is not understood, but there is a commonly accepted belief which the medical fraternity shares with the people that these with tendencies to colds and coughs and with what is called "weak lungs" are safer if they get plenty of lime, during the winter and spring at least.

Of the lime foods, cheese, milk, butter and various milk products, nuts, and whole wheat grains are best. But in order to secure the absorption and use of lime it is necessary to give vitamin D and possibly also some preparation of parathyroid. Dr. May Mellanby gives the following as the best sources of this vitamin: Cod liver oil, halibut liver oil, other fish liver oils; fat fish such as salmon, herring and mackerel; probably sardines, animal fats and egg yolk. For some reason she excepts pork and cereals. The last she thinks destructive to this vitamin.

THE guimpe dress again!

It is cut along more formal lines, so new and delightful for spring days without a topcoat.

A smart feature of this model is that the guimpe can be made with either of two styles of sleeves. The bow tie flatters the neckline.

It's decidedly smart and girlish as the original with the jumper of gray crinkly crepe silk with the guimpe of yellow crepe.

Then, too, you could make another guimpe of white organdie with short puffed sleeves. It would give your wardrobe a nice variety at small extra outlay.

It's so simple to make it.

REPUBLICANS MAP COMEBACK PLANS

Inaugural Week to Be Spent in Working Out Details of Future Strategy.

(Associated Press.)

With the question of Republican presidential timber for 1936 already in agitation, plans sped forward yesterday for a concerted rallying of Republican strength in the Capital during inauguration week to map party strategies for a return to power.

It was disclosed yesterday that President Hoover will take at least an indirect part in a meeting behind closed doors of the executive committee of the Republican national committee on February 27, and that he will be close to a plan-mapping caucus of House Republicans on the following day.

Simultaneously men close to the Chief Executive reiterated that after recent conversations with him they "held serious doubt" that he intended to make a bid for the Republican presidential nomination four years hence.

Hoover Ready to Retire.

A close friend and frequent conferee of Mr. Hoover stated the latter's desire was to return to private life, engaging in public service hereafter only in "the broad sense," a category that would not include his running again for the Presidency.

These statements ran counter to some of the reports current in political Washington, but the men who spoke were in a position to know Mr. Hoover's mind.

Nevertheless, it was held unlikely that the President would make any such direct statement to the Republican executive committee a week from Monday, as that he desired "to be taken out of the running for 1936."

Future Might Change Mind.

It was stated that such a meeting would not provide a proper vehicle, and likewise it was conceded that events might arise to make Mr. Hoover change his mind.

The President's word to the committee was outlined as an adjuration to work for strength in the congressional elections of 1934, as the first step in a drive for a Republican victory in 1936.

The House Republican caucus on the day after the executive committee meeting is expected to follow somewhat along the same lines.

Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, hopes to cement a militant but constructive minority group in the House.

McNary to Lead Senate.

Inside the House caucus room may be heard President Hoover's recent words, urging Republicans to support the new administration in all constructive measures, but to oppose vigorously all those considered harmful.

Within a few days after these two meetings are held Franklin D. Roosevelt will be inaugurated and Snell, along with Senator McNary of Oregon, who will take Senator Watson's place as Senate Republican leader, will be the two most powerful Republicans holding elective office.

Both men, in the early speculation as to Republican plans for four years hence, have been mentioned as possible presidential candidates.

Meanwhile, another Republican activity that will continue in the National Capital after the inauguration moved to complete its organization.

Curtis to Head Movement.

After a conference with Vice President Curtis yesterday, John A. Campbell, director of the recently organized National Republican League, announced that H. Murray Jacoby, of New York, would serve as one of the vice chairmen. Jacoby long has been a close friend and a supporter of President Hoover.

Curtis will serve as chairman of the league, which is designed primarily to stimulate young voters to cast their ballots for the Republican party. Other vice chairmen of the league are Senator Hebert of Rhode Island, Senator Hastings of Delaware, and John G. Tilson of Connecticut, former majority leader in the House.

The league will have its offices in the same building as Lawrence Richey, personal secretary and close aid to Mr. Hoover for many years. He will return here after accompanying his chief to the West Coast.

Washington Typothetae Lunch at Raleigh Today

The 700th consecutive weekly luncheon of the Typothetae of Washington will be held today at the Raleigh Hotel.

Guests of honor will be Public Printer George H. Carter, Alvin W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and Julius S. Weyl, of Philadelphia, president of the United Typothetae of America, who will be the principal speaker. Joseph D. Ashby, president of the Typothetae, will preside.

Social Work Lecture Deferred.

Because of the illness of Miss Clare Tousley, her lecture on "The Volunteer in Social Work," scheduled at the Mayflower Hotel this morning under the auspices of the Junior League, has been indefinitely postponed. This was to have been the opening lecture in a group of educational talks for volunteer social workers, sponsored by the Council of Social Agencies in cooperation with other organizations. The remaining seven lectures will be held at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building starting next Monday.

Salary Cuts May Rock Film Firmament

GRETA GARBO.

MARLENE DIETRICH.

Stage and Countryside Are Reaching Out for Holdouts.

Powell Won't Take Mere $8,000; Garbo's Plans Are Unknown.

Hollywood, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—The drive against the big salaries of Hollywood movie stars is under way and, with many of the "boom" days contracts expiring in rapid-fire order, an unusual tactical situation exists in the industry.

Greta Garbo, Maurice Chevalier, Marlene Dietrich, Gloria Swanson, Ronald Colman, the four Marx Brothers, Ann Harding, William Powell and George Arliss are among the film folk involved in the producers' program to bring salaries into line with the times. Contracts of these "big money" names range from $3,000 a week to $250,000 a picture.

What will come of the negotiations in new contracts is somewhat problematical, for some of the performers who have gained marked success on the stage are known to be casting glances toward offers in other centers.

Ann Harding may take a stage engagement in England; Chevalier intends to make one picture in California and one in France each autumn. His contract is said to call for four more pictures at the rate of two a year and guarantees against infringement upon his salary, reported to be $1,000 a day. Prior to the receivership actions in the motion picture industry, Chevalier was reported about to leave the Paramount Studio.

Garbo's plans are unknown. Arliss may rusticate for a time in England or go back on the stage. Colman is considering a bachelor rest in the British countryside, but his contract specifies he must return within a year or give notice of his intention to do so, else it may be terminated. Gloria Swanson may make pictures independently or sign up with one of the large organizations.

Ruth Chatterton and Powell are still holdouts. They have steadfastly refused to take cuts that would leave Miss Chatterton with $7,500 a week and Powell with $8,000.

All the stars seem to be interested right now in an arrangement that would enable them to share in the profits of pictures, provided they are not charged up with excess overhead. They point out that in the past everything has been charged up to pictures, not excepting the time out for holidays granted the office boy and the executives' polo playing lessons.

London (Monday), Feb. 20 (A.P.). News has been received here from Sweden that Greta Garbo, film actress, has obtained permission to return to the United States, the Mail said today.

It is understood, the newspaper added, that Miss Garbo, who returned to Sweden last August, had considerable difficulty in getting the permit, because of a recent action in Hollywood seeking to weed out foreign stars.

'DE LAWD' IS HEARD BY LARGE AUDIENCE

Richard B. Harrison Explains His Deep Sympathy With Scenes in Play.

An audience that tested the capacity of the auditorium and galleries of the First Congregational Church yesterday morning came to see and hear Richard B. Harrison, who plays the leading role in "The Green Pastures." The venerable actor, now in his sixty-sixth year, gave an exposition of the play in which he characterizes Jehovah as "De Lawd" of simple Negro folk of the far Southland.

He was accompanied by a portion of the Hall-Johnson celestial choir, which sang spirituals, "Did You Read Dat Letter?," "Buked and Scorned" and "Every Time I Feel the Spirit," before he spoke, and "Hold On," "Standing in the Need of Prayer" and "Getting Up in the Morning" at the conclusion of his remarks.

The most pathetic touch of the play was described by Harrison in detail as the time when "De Lawd," having brought on the flood and destroyed mankind, questioned himself as to whether he had done the right thing. He also explained his deep sympathy with the scene in which Moses led the children of Israel out of Egypt:

"I could sympathize with them, for I belong to a race of men and women who have been led out of the house of bondage. They are on their way, not knowing whither they are going, but trusting in God. That spirit is the elemental simplicity of 'The Green Pastures.' It is to understand that elemental simplicity that many have returned more than once to investigate completely the unusual idea which prompted Mr. Connelly to write the play."

The Rev. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the church, indicated to the colored actor how "deeply indebted the public is for the portrayal, the indescribably beautiful and irresistibly touching conception of the Master who died for us all."

Orphanage Entertained By Holy Comforter Band

Children at St. Joseph's Home yesterday were treated to a concert by the Holy Comforter Boys Band. A number of college songs were played and boys joined in the chorus with glee.

The Holy Comforter band is conducted by the Rev. Joseph Denges.

Sanders Bermuda-Bound On Short Vacation Trip

New York, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Chairman Everett Sanders, of the Republican national committee, was en route to Bermuda today for a vacation trip, which will bring him back in time for the meeting of the committee's executive group at Washington next Saturday.

He was accompanied only by Douglas Whitlock, a friend, and sailed yesterday on the liner Monarch of Bermuda. A dispatch yesterday erroneously reported that "Mr. and Mrs. Sanders" sailed. Mrs. Sanders died two years ago and Mr. Sanders is a widower.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With Nelson B. Bell's "Stooge"

The star of this act, having hied himself to the hinterlands with a threat on his lips, "I'll sleep a week," his "stooge" hereby leaps into the spotlight and an unappreciative electrician promptly turns off the spot. However, gentle readers, be of good cheer, for his nibs will return to the L. C. Smith come next Sunday night and all will be well again.

A courier, who looked as though he might have run all the way from Alexandria, across the "foam-flecked" Potomac, brings a message that through one of those unfathomable switches in booking offices, the picture at Loew's Palace next week will NOT be "She Done Him Wrong." Instead, Washington will get an opportunity to welcome back a favorite son, Al Jolson, in "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum!" Lou Brown, who handles publicity for the Loew houses, probably thinks of the change as "She Done Him Wrong."

The Jolson film will mark the fifth anniversary of talking pictures, Al having made the first, "The Jazz Singer." According to advance material, "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum" introduces something new called "rhythmic dialogue," whatever that is.

While on the subject of Loew's local houses, Carter Barron, presiding over the theaters' destinies here, announces that Lee Tracy in "Clear All Wires" will be the inaugural week attraction at Loew's Fox. Combined with Amos 'n' Andy on the stage, Sir Carter is expected to mop up with this show.

Ray Henderson, representing Katharine Cornell, sends this one via Uncle Sam's mail from New York. A Baltimore piano dealer was requested to furnish a piano for "Allen Corn," Miss Cornell's new play in which she plays the piano several times. The dealer denied ever having heard of Miss Cornell, demanding to know where she had given concerts. Informed she was an actress, he declared New York would have to O. K. any requisition for a piano. Another instrument was obtained and on the day the show opened, the dealer phoned: "You may have the piano and can I get two for tonight?" "No," was the answer to the ticket request, whereupon the dealer wailed into the phone, "but I gotta have 'em; ever since I mentioned at home a woman named Cornell wanted to use the piano, life hasn't been worth living."

Score one for the wives.

That strutting gait you may have noticed as Maxine Doyle (Derle to you, Nels) goes along E street is just the result of a letter from Mrs. F. H. Peters, of Mount Rainier, Md., telling the Earle mistress of ceremonies that Mrs. Peters' first-born has been named Maxine. Mrs. Peters has long been one of Maxine's admirers. When little Maxine Peters gets old enough to appreciate it, her mother will show her an autographed photograph which Maxine Doyle sent her following receipt of Mrs. Peters' letter.

George Raft, one of the sleek villains of the screen, has been suspended by Paramount, because he refused to accept a role in a picture which made him a gangster again. "The Story of Temple Drake" is the film and in it Raft would have been a bootlegger who shoots to kill. He declined, hoping to win his point, as did Marlene Deitrich and Stuart Erwin in recent controversies, but Paramount just took his name off the pay roll and put Jack LaRue, a New York stage actor, in the part.

Keeping a weather eye open concerning the digestive organs of their stars, Warner Brothers have assigned Henry Bassetti, head chef of the Hotel Ambassador, in Los Angeles, to preside over the kitchen car on the "Forty-Second Street Special," which leaves Hollywood tomorrow and which will arrive in Washington in time for the inaugural.

Because of the close margin between theater and radio schedules Saturday night, two elevators were held ready to transport George Olsen and his music, with Ethel Shutta tagging along, from the N. B. C. studio in the National Press Club Building to the back door of Loew's Fox for the last stage show.

Now, if Ethel would just drop in on Nelson B. Bell and sing "Rockabye Moon," he'd probably get that sleep.

If a "stooge" may be permitted to do a little cheering on his own views, let it be known that Ken Murray, one of the more likeable comedians, will appear at Loew's Fox early next month on the same bill with Baron Lee and his Blue Rhythm Band and Laurence Gray, who has sung on plenty of stages in a number of films.

"By Gones," the musical short subject in which Ruth Etting is appearing at Warner's Metropolitan this week, not only gives the Etting fans a chance to enjoy their favorite's voice but to see her really act. It is one of the few short subjects with any sort of a plot, but this one really has.

A famous comedy team of the good old Mack Sennett days is reunited this week at the Earle where Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle and Al St. John may be seen cavorting in "Buzzin' Around."

(Personal aside to Nelson B. Bell—As I went past the copy desk the boys began chanting "Hallelujah, He's a Bum.")

Do you think they could have meant me?

SYMPHONY CROWD APPLAUDS LEVITZKI

Well-Selected Program Is Received by Enthusiastic Audience.

Washington's own orchestra, the National Symphony, Dr. Hans Kindler, conducting, attained a more than usual success yesterday afternoon at its concert in Constitution Hall of the D. A. R. Mischa Levitzki, pianist, was soloist.

The program was chosen, as usual, to please both the lovers of the classic and the music of lighter vein. It opened with the overture to "Rosamunde," by Schubert, which was particularly well done, the sprightly, merry music being given its full value.

Levitzki, who appeared here for the first time in 1919 at an Easter Sunday afternoon concert in the Belasco Theater under the management of Ona B. Talbot, is a more mature and serious artist than he was at that time, though, probably not more brilliant, for he took the rather small audience then, by storm. He played yesterday the brilliant and beautiful concerto of Saint-Saens, No. 2 in G minor. He still is, as he was then, without affectation and mannerisms. His ponderous tone at the beginning, and through the first movement, melted into one of great beauty, warmth, vigor and color through the other two. His technique is brilliant and even his legato as perfect as possible, and his interpretations show intellect, idealism and originality. He was interrupted at the end of each plause and at the finish was recalled movement (which no artist likes or encourages) with enthusiastic ap- so many times that he finally granted an encore in Liszt's Rhapsody No. 6, which he gave with marvelous orchestral effects and a whirlwind tempo. He makes as perfect a trill with his "little" finger and third finger as he does with the more customary ones. After his encore, which was especially pleasing to the popular taste, he was recalled so many more times that only when the piano was removed from the center of the stage did the enthusiasm cease.

The orchestra eschewing for this concert, a symphony, played for the closing number the "Siegfried Idyll" of Wagner, very well; the "Entrance of the Little Fauns" of Pierne, an exquisite number exquisitely done, and the infectious waltz of Johann Straus, "Artists' Life," delightfully given, the audience enjoying the rhythmic beauties no more than did the conductor himself.

Levitzki entered the auditorium after he played, and enjoyed keenly the rest of the program from a seat on the steps to the upper seats of the gallery, especially following rhythmically, the strains of the waltz.

Dr. Kindler called attention of the audience, before the closing number, to the slip inclosed in the program, asking that requests for favorite numbers be sent in for the closing concert March 12, a list of compositions ready being given on the slip.

THE THEATER YESTERDAY

NATIONAL

"HAWAII TO THE ARCTIC." Last of five "Around the World" travel talks by E. M. Newman, illustrated with motion pictures and colored slides; under the direction of Charles Mercer. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

From the golden sands of the beach at Waikiki to the iridescent glories of the land of the midnight sun, from the tropical beauties of the Hawaiian Islands to the bleak barrenness of the eightieth parallel, from the volcanic formations of the Pacific outpost to Norway's precipitous fjords chiselled out of rock and ice—between these extremes of nature went E. M. Newman yesterday on his last lap of the "Around the World" tour that started five weeks ago.

It matters little what part of the world one visits, there are always things of interest to be seen, each locality featuring its own special attraction. That this is true was most forcefully depicted in word and picture in yesterday's lecture. The beauties of Hawaii, Panama and the canal, and Cuba and Havana need no further elaboration, but that there is beauty in the seemingly interminable expanses of ice and snow of the Arctic is seldom realized.

Life is earnest, serious in this land cut off from the rest of the world for ten months of the year, but it has its points of interest, its people and their fisheries, and even the stark reminders of tragic polar expeditions have their appeal.

The Faroe Islands, Spitzbergen, Hammerfest, and Bergen were the principal ports of call, with the life and activities of the people in these places having their usual place in the program. But notwithstanding the human aspects of this trip, it was those awful expanses of Arctic fastness that left the most lasting impression on the listener.

And thus the 50,000-mile journey is ended. Farewell and good luck, Mr. Newman. Until the silver anniversary program is announced, the memories of a most enjoyable trip "Around the World" will be a priceless possession, and then—well, that's another year.

DOCTOR TRACES SCHAAF'S DEATH TO AILING BRAIN

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

GENE SARAZEN finally has broken down and confessed that perhaps he stretched a point when he advocated the 8-inch cup for golf greens, having now decided that the 6-inch cup is the ideal receptacle at each hole.

Inasmuch as Sarazen first advanced his 8-inch cup idea from his hospital bed on the Pacific Coast there were early suspicions that the British and American Open champion was still speaking under the influence of the anesthetics, so radical was the proposal, but Sarazen's obdurance was so great that the 8-inch idea was actually given a trial by a score of courses throughout the country.

Now Sarazen pleads guilty to exaggeration, leaving in the lurch those few golf authorities who accepted his 8-inch cup idea in good faith and even agreed that it was the solution to more thrills in golf. With Sarazen, himself, renigging on his own idea, the gentlemen who sided with him and the clubs who installed the 8-inch cups, are holding the bag in a great big way, it seems.

Sarazen Gained the Columns.

Sarazen's pipe dream, however, served to hog the headlines for the champion for a couple of weeks and with his recent pronouncement favoring a 6-inch cup reviving his rapidly waning publicity, the entire case smacks of gorgeous ballyhoo by, for and of Gene Sarazen.

Sarazen's flip-flop on his 8-inch cup idea recalls to mind, somehow, that shortly after winning the British and American opens last year the champion signed with one McCarthy, a manager and promoter of sporting personalities, who guaranteed him a flat sum of $300,000 as his end of the spoils under McCarthy's management.

The fine Italian hand of McCarthy is seen, somehow, in Sarazen's radical pronouncements on the size of the cup. With his illness forcing his absence from the winter tournaments, and the fame of last summer's triumphs dimming, ways and means of keeping Sarazen's name in the headline were becoming more problematical. So the 8-inch cup wasn't a bad idea in one respect. Neither is its offspring, the 6-inch cup.

Crowder Within Game Of Record.

The departure of the vanguard of the Nats tomorrow for Biloxi recalls that one among them, Alvin Crowder by name, faces the start of the new season with a pitching record within his reach.

Crowder closed the 1932 campaign with an uninterrupted streak of fifteen consecutive victories, within one of the record of sixteen straight wins, shared by Walter Johnson, who achieved the mark in 1912, and by Lefty Grove, who reached that peak in 1931. The "Red Book of Baseball" makes no mention of the consecutive victory record started in one season and finished in another, but it is conceivable that Crowder may be the one to establish the mark under those conditions.

Needing one more victory to tie the record of Johnson and Grove, Crowder may learn his fate on the opening day of the 1933 season, for, barring a sad failure to round to form, he is the probable pitching nominee for the inaugural game. With the Athletics the opponents of the Nats on that date, April 12, Crowder, if victorious, will have achieved his objective under the most trying conditions, for Grove doubtless will be his opponent on the mound.

Southeastern Court Tourney Opens Friday

Atlanta, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Kentucky, Alabama, Vanderbilt and Louisiana State will be heat leaders in the Southeastern Conference basket ball tournament starting here Friday.

Coaches of the thirteen loop teams today chose these four teams to be seeded. These were the leading teams during the regular season.

Pairings for the tournament were made today with Kentucky, the favorite, meeting the University of Mississippi in the first round. Mississippi State, Vanderbilt and Florida drew byes for the opening round.

The pairings and times for the first round Friday follow:

Top bracket: Alabama versus Sewanee, 2:30 p. m.; Mississippi State, bye; Georgia versus Tulane, 8 p. m.; Vanderbilt, bye.

Lower bracket: Louisiana State versus Auburn, 3:30 p. m.; Georgia Tech versus Tennessee, 9 p. m.; Florida, bye; and Kentucky versus Mississippi, 4:30 p. m.

Crowds Pay Tribute to Corbett

Home of Sullivan's Conqueror Mecca of Friends.

Former Champion to Be Buried Today; Died of Cancer.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—The great and the unknown, the rich and the poor, old friends and many who never had seen his face in life called today at the home of James J. Corbett to pay their last respects to the foremost heavyweight champion of the world who died yesterday after an illness of 19 days.

From early in the afternoon a constant stream of automobiles wended their way through the narrow streets of suburban Bayside to the big house above Little Neck Bay where Corbett had lived for 30 years, where he died and where his wasted body now lay in state.

Some came in limousines, some came in taxicabs, others in battered cars of better days, all testifying to the grip this man who introduced science to the boxing ring held on the imagination of the public.

Reverently Climb Steps to Second Floor.

Sloshing through the mud of the unpaved street, they reverently climbed the steps of the big house to the second floor, where Corbett lay. Above the head of the big walnut bed hung a crucifix. Prayer beads were clasped in his hands. At one side two tall white candles burned and between them stood a cross.

Many of his own faith kneeled at the bench at his feet to whisper prayers. Many of his old neighbors, with whom he had worked and played through the years, wept openly as they left the room.

In a downstairs room, flowers were piled high, last testimonials from the friends he counted by the thousand, and every hour brought more, as well as messages of condolence to Mrs. Corbett, his wife for 37 years, and in whose arms he died.

Services to Be Held in St. Malachy's.

The body will be held at the house until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Then it will be taken through the city to St. Malachy's Church, in West Forty-ninth street, Manhattan, where Corbett's parish priest, Father Hayes, of the Sacred Heart Church in Bayside, will officiate at the last mass.

Burial will be in Cypress Hills Cemetery immediately following the funeral services.

Prominent men of the ring and the stage, on both of which he played a star's role, have been named as honorary pallbearers. Police arrangements were being made to handle the crowds expected to beseige the church for entrance.

Corbett often worshipped at St. Malachy's, often called the "actor's church" because of the large number of threatical celebrities who attend services there.

Many Tributes Paid Former Champion.

Many were the tributes paid today to the man who knocked out John L. Sullivan. William A. Brady, theatrical producer, one-time manager of Corbett and a friend from boyhood, said Corbett would have been an outstanding leader in anything he attempted.

"He was a magnificent actor," Brady said. "Perhaps we should say it was unfortunate that he chose the ring. He would have been a great banker, a great politician, a great salesman. He was the finest, kindest, most generous man I ever knew."

Like tributes came from James A. Farley, national Democratic chairman; James J. Johnston, boxing promoter of Madison Square Garden; George M. Cohan, actor; Irvin S. Cobb, Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey, all of whom followed him as champions of the ring, and countless others.

Although married twice, Corbett had no children. Surviving, in addition to Mrs. Corbett, are a brother Joe, once a major league pitcher, of Los Angeles, and three sisters, Mrs. J. A. McInerny, of San Francisco, and Miss Esther Corbett and Mrs. J. A. Boyd, both of San Carlos, Calif.

Corbett's illness—cancer of the liver and heart ailment—was of such a nature that his death or recovery could not be forecast, so none of the four relatives in California came to his bedside. When his death did come, suddenly, it was felt that the strain on Mrs. Corbett of waiting for their arrival would be too great and none of them came East for the funeral.

Auto-Record Try Is Again Delayed

Sir Malcolm Gives Up Hope of Attempt Today; May Try Tomorrow.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Sir Malcolm Campbell tonight decided that the nine-mile beach racing strip was too rough for him to attempt a test run at low tide tomorrow morning.

Westerly winds blew in from the ocean last night, causing tides that chopped up the beach in many places, made the shoreline ragged and the sand soft.

Campbell, holder of the world land speed record, was hopeful that the winds might change to the north or northeast tonight or tomorrow and roll the beach smooth in time for a run Tuesday morning. Late today, however, the ocean was calm and gave no evidence of becoming rough enough to roll the tides so high they would iron out the corrugations.

The British driver had planned to take his rebuilt Bluebird racer to the beach this morning and make a test run to determine if adjustments his mechanics made last week were satisfactory, but officials advised him the beach was not in condition.

Billy Roche Tells of Battle When Corbett Knocked Out John L.

(This is the first of a series of three stories on the great battles of Jim Corbett, as witnessed by Billy Roche, veteran referee and manager, who saw "Pompadour Jim" take the heavyweight title from John L. Sullivan, defend it against Charley Mitchell, lose it to Bob Fitzsimmons, and fail to regain it from Jim Jeffries.)

By BILLY ROCHE.
(As Told to Edward J. Neil.)

New York, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—As clearly as though it were yesterday, I can see Jim Corbett—they called him "Pompadour Jim"—winning the heavyweight championship from the mighty John L. Sullivan in 21 rounds, the seventh day of September, 1892, on the dirt floor of Dominick O'Malley's club in New Orleans.

All the way from New York I went, one of a big party on a special train, to see the first heavyweght championship match ever fought under the Marquis of Queensbury rules, with five-ounce gloves instead of bare fists, and three minute rounds in place of the London prize ring arrangement of a knockdown counting a round.

Like every young sporting blood of the day, Sullivan, the great Irishman, was my idol. I knew every step in the negotiations that led up to the match, how Corbett, looked upon as only a fancy stepper, had boxed an exhibition with Sullivan in San Francisco and from that got the idea that he could whip the champion.

The match was for $10,000 a side, and a $25,000 purse, put up by O'Malley, and it was the first real purse in fight history. Two saloon keepers put up the side bet for Sullivan. They were Charlie Johnson, who had a place off city hall plaza, in Brooklyn, where Sullivan trained, and Jimmy Wheatley, who had a fine place on the corner of Forty-second street and Sixth avenue here, not far from where Corbett later opened his saloon with the first electric sign in town.

Men from the Olympic Club in San Francisco, and Jim's brother, Harry, who always had lots of money, put up the side bet for Corbett. He trained in New York, and as was the custom, boxed three men in an exhibition in the original Madison Square Garden to prove his condition the night before we all left for New Orleans. Sullivan gave his exhibition in Brooklyn.

The night of the fight I was early in my seat in the bleachers, where I could get a good view. The betting was hot and heavy around me, 4 to 1 you could get, with Sullivan the favorite.

When they came into the ring, a few minutes apart, there was a great uproar. Sullivan was insolent and cocky, waving to all his friends, while Corbett was very pale and calm looking, and attending strictly to business.

As they came to the center of the ring the difference in their appearance was shocking. Sullivan, whom my father trained for his fight with Paddy Ryan, was fat and terribly out of condition. I'll never forget the look of Corbett.

He was the finest specimen of a man I had ever seen in a ring. He had fine, broad shoulders and long, trim legs. His skin was white and his long face was thin. The contrast with his black eyes and dark, heavy pampadour was striking. Years before, when first I had seen Sullivan he had looked something like that. Originally he was a lean-faced, dark Irishman, very trim and lithe, with high cheek bones. He only weighed about 185 pounds then. This night he was well over 200, and Corbett weighed 182.

Once they started, it was so one-sided as to be ridiculous. Corbett used every bit of the ring, dancing all over the place, and they finished the first round without a blow being struck as Sullivan chased Jim with a ponderous right hand poised but never landing.

Jim was very cool and calm. He jabbed Sullivan's head and danced away. John L. never could hit him. Round after round it went, Sullivan puffing and cursing, getting more and more tired, Corbett dancing and showing no signs of weariness.

Corbett could have finished Sullivan long before the twenty-first round, but he was taking no chances. By that time John L. could scarcely stand. He was blowing and staggering from his own exertions. Corbett stepped in and knocked him flat on his face and out with a right-hand uppercut to the jaw, the first real heavy punch he loosed.

We were all stunned, of course, though we knew after a few rounds what was coming. But John L. made it all right, even with those who had bet on him.

He stood in the ring and raised his hand after he came to and said: "If I had to get licked, I'm glad it was by an American. I tried it once too often."

Post's Contest Recalls Managerial Line-Up of Nats From 1912-1932

DIXIE COURT DRAWINGS MADE

Conference Tourney Starts Friday at Raleigh.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Pairings were made today for first round games of the Southern Conference title tourney which opens here Friday afternoon in the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium.

The University of North Carolina and Virginia Polytechnic Institute fives meet in the first game, beginning at 3 o'clock. North Carolina State and Washington and Lee follow the Heels and the Polys on the court at 4:30. Friday night Duke University and Virginia meet at 8 o'clock and South Carolina and Maryland at 9:30.

The pairings were announced this afternoon by Dr. Ray P. Sermon, of North Carolina State, chairman of the tournament committee.

Washington & Lee Favored Over V. M. I.

Dr. Sermon said Washington and Lee had been selected to take the place of V. M. I. in the tournament as the Generals' record for the season showed them as having lost one less game than the Cadets. Both teams have won the same number of games.

The winner of the Carolina-V. P. I. game will meet the winner of the South Carolina-Maryland game Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the second round, and the winner of the North Carolina State—W. L. tilt will meet the winner of the Duke-Virginia game in the second round game one hour and a half later.

The four seeded teams of the tournament are South Carolina, Duke, North Carolina and North Carolina State.

Ten teams compose the Southern Conference, but of this number only eight were selected to take part in the 1933 tournament being held in Raleigh for the first time. Clemson College, of South Carolina, was the other team left out in addition to V. M. I.

Georgia, winner of the 1932 title, will not be back this winter, leaving the tournament wide open for the crowning of a new champion of Southern Conference basket ball. Georgia was one of the seceders last December.

Hack, Cubs' Infielder, Crashes in Own Plane

Sacramento, Calif., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Stanley Hack, youthful third baseman of the Chicago Cubs, and amateur aviator, escaped without injury when his plane nosed over as he landed here today. Two passengers flying with him also were unhurt, and the plane was damaged only slightly.

Hack bought his plane several weeks ago, and announced he would fly from his home here to the Cubs' training camp at Catalina when it opens next week.

Fans Must Match Minds With Griffith in Contest

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

NEVER in the history of Washington baseball has a contest so stirred the interest and imagination of fans as that now being conducted by The Post. And that it appeals to the old and young and to men, women and children alike is attested by the thousands of responses which already have been received.

It is a contest unique, calling for a matching of minds with Clark Griffith, president-owner of the Nationals, who came to the National Capital as manager in 1912. All that the entrant is required to do is to name the all-star team of Washington, made up of players who have performed here from and including 1912, which he thinks will be selected by Griffith. No subscriptions are necessary; in fact, entrants need not even buy The Post, for all they are asked to do is to submit their choices prior to March 15.

Opening Game Seats For Winners.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner and will be given eight box seats to the opening game here between the Nats and Athletics. Second place will net four box seats and third place two box seats.

Griffith himself is not sure of the personnel of his all-star team and is now at the Biloxi training camp mulling over the matter during his odd moments. He will not advise The Post of his selections until after the contest closes. He admits that he is puzzled with respect to several positions, but he is not alone in this respect, for the selections already made by fans also show a wide and varied difference of opinions.

The Post already has published the player rosters of the Nats from 1912 to date and has just completed a series showing the work of the club by seasons, and pointing out who were the outstanding players of the different years.

Some prospective entrants have complained that older fans, those who followed the doings of the Nats back in the days when Griffith, George McBride, Clyde Milan and Donie Bush were in command, have an edge over the younger generation, but The Post plans to make up for this handicap which the newer fans claim exists by digging up all of the dope for them, and, beginning tomorrow, the records of individual players will be published. These will show the batting and fielding averages of the catchers, infielders and outfielders, and the won and lost records of the pitchers.

Fans must realize, however, that it is not altogether a matter of averages which will apply when President Griffith names his all-star team. He, no doubt, will remember the athletes who have come through regularly in the pinches; will consider their temperament and their conduct off the field and their all-around value, while it is just possible that, in some cases, he will let sentiment sway him one way or another.

So, it must be remembered that the winner of The Post's contest not only must pick outstanding athletes but he also must be able to think along the same lines as does Mr. Griffith and consider every angle of the players' careers here.

In selecting an all-star team, the usual custom is to divide the pitching nominees into right and left handed performers. Griffith, however, is naming his selections without considering the arm they used while toiling on the hill. His team will be made up of four flingers, two catchers, three outfielders, and a first baseman, second baseman, third baseman and shortstop, and fans are asked to submit their guess as to the personnel of this line-up.

For convenience, a form is printed in another column of today's Post, but, as already mentioned, fans may simply jot down their selections on a plain piece of paper if they prefer to do so.

Garibaldi Meets Judson Thursday

Gino Garibaldi and Frank Judson, muscle massagers par excellence, headline Marse Joe Turner's weekly wrestling card which will be fed the mat minded public Thursday night at the Auditorium. Bout for bout the card brings together some of the best talent ever to appear under the same roof at a single performance.

Garibaldi's torso twisting tendencies are well known here in the Nation's Capital. One of the topnotchers, the Italian was used principally as a means of helping a fellow tradesman work his way up the ladder last summer. Now Garibaldi gets his opportunity of going ahead.

Judson, while not rated as good as his intended opponent, has won the majority of his matches here and is in a fair position to extend his winnings Thursday night.

Fred Grobmier, the scissors shark who crossed up everybody by crossing his legs on Paul Jones and throwing him last week, tangles with an unknown tagged Bruno Gorasini.

4-BALL GOLF PRODUCES UPSETS

Macfarlane and Cox Among Defeated in $2,600 Prize.

MIAMI COUNTRY CLUB, Miami, Fla., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Upsets started early in the International Four-Ball Golf Tournament here today, as favorite teams were eliminated in the first 36-hole round.

Outstanding among those to pass out of the drive for $2,600 prize money were Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Wiffy Cox, of Brooklyn, who could not match the spectacular shooting of Mike Turnesa, of New York, and Tony Manero, of Greenwich, Conn., and were defeated, 3 and 2.

Turnesa came through the last nine holes with 30 strokes, 6 under par, as they played out the round. Par is 36—36—72.

Another team liked by the gallery was eliminated when Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., leading money-winner of 1933, and Frank Walsh, of Chicago, were beaten by Henry Ciuci, of Fresh Meadow, N. Y., and John Revolta, of Menominee, Mich., 6 and 4.

Par Figures Take Drubbing.

Wide margins of victory were registered and par figures took a drubbing as the country's outstanding professionals went through their paces. Sixteen teams were invited to compete.

Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., and Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., found the going easy against Ralph Stonehouse, of Indianapolis, and Clarence Hackney, of Atlantic City, N. J., and turned them back, 8 and 7.

Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, Calif., metropolitan and P. G. A. champion, clipped six strokes off par for 32—34—66 in the morning eighteen holes to put himself and Tommy Armour, of Detroit, 4 up on Herman Barron, of Port Chester, N. Y., and John Kinder, of Caldwell, N. J. Armour took up the burden in the afternoon, as he and Dutra won 7 and 6.

Al Watrous, of Detroit, and Charles Guest, of Deal, N. J., eliminated George Christ, of Rochester, N. Y., and Henry Picard, of Charleston, S. C., 1 up, in a terrific battle that went the full route. The winners were 1 up at noon and managed to hold the margin through the twenty-sixth. From there on, ten straight holes were halved.

Hagen-Kirkwood In Victory.

Walter Hagen, of Detroit, and Joe Kirkwood, the Philadelphia trick shot artist, eliminated Willie Klein, of Wheatley Hills, N. Y., and Eddie Williams, of Cleveland, 2 and 1.

Another spectacular match that went the full route brought Al Espinosa, of Akron, Ohio, and Bill Mehlhorn, of New York, a 1-up victory over Joe Turnesa, of New York, and Harry Cooper, of Chicago.

John Golden, of Noroton, Conn., and Denny Shute, of Cleveland, defeated Phil Perkins, of New York, former British amateur champion, and Cyril Walker, unattached, 4 and 3.

The four-ball tournament will end with a 36-hole final match on Wednesday. Today's winners will play 36 holes tomorrow with these pairings:

Armour and Dutra against Watrous and Guest, Ciuci and Revolta against Espinosa and Mehlhorn, Manero and Turnesa against Hagen and Kirkwood, Smith and Runyan against Golden and Shute.

10,000-Meter Skate Annexed by Schroeder

Trondhjem, Norway, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Hans Engnestangen of Norway captured the world's all-around amateur speed skating championship today, but the major share of the day's laurels went to Eddie Schroeder, of Chicago.

Schroeder won the 10,000 meters race in 17 minutes 43.6 seconds and boosted himself into fourth place in the final standings. The other event on the final day's program, the 1,500 meters, went to the Norwegian veteran, Claus Thuenberg, in 2:23.8.

Boxer Unable To Defend Himself

Was Suffering From Brain Inflammation Before Fight.

Skill Affected by His Condition; Less Able to Avoid Blows.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, was suffering from inflammation of the brain when he entered the ring at Madison Square Garden February 10 for his ill-fated match with Primo Carnera, Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner for New York City, announced today.

Schaaf died in Polyclinic Hospital here Tuesday following an operation to relieve pressure on the brain.

The medical examiner's report, made on the basis of a microscopic examination of the brain, said that Schaaf's general condition interferred with his boxing skill so that he was less able to avoid blows.

While declining to state definitely, Dr. Norris and his assistant, Dr. Benjamin Morgan Vance, said the inflammation of the brain from which Schaaf was suffering probably was due to a recent attack of influenza.

Light Blows Aggravated Condition.

"In addition," the report continued, "blows not in themselves dangerous, aggravated the meningo-encephalitis (inflammation) with the result that edema (swelling) of the brain, cerebral compression and paralysis of the left side of the body developed."

The report definitely established the cause of death and clarifies conflicting statements by medical authorities on the day of the Boston fighter's death. Dr. Morris had said at that time that death was due to "natural causes," and that there was no evidence to show he had died as a result of Carnera's blows. Schaaf was knocked out by a left jab to the nose in the thirteenth round of the fifteen-round match.

Other authorities had said that Schaaf's injuries were the direct result of blows he suffered during the bout.

The final report combined the two viewpoints, revealing a brain ailment antedating the bout, but was aggravated by the blows Schaaf suffered at Carnera's hands.

After stating that Schaaf died at 4:10 on February 14 and that an autopsy was performed the same day, the report continues:

"He (Schaaf) had been operated on the day before, exploratory cauliotomy and osteoplastic flap being made for the relief of cerebral compression.

"Examination of the head showed no fracture of the skull and no hemorrhage below or above the dura and no central hemorrhage. The cervical spinal cord was normal on inspection and after section.

"Microscopic examination disclosed, in addition to the extreme grade of cerebral compression due to a marked cerebral oedema, a few small hemorrhages of the brain.

Influenza Attack Blamed.

"The deceased had a chronic or subacute meningo-encephalitis characterized by lymphocytic infiltration around the blood vessels in the subarchnoid space and the adjacent cordex. The cause of the inflammation can not be known with certainty, but it may be referred to the recent attack of influenza with a reasonable degree of probability.

"The meningo-encephalitis obviously antedated the boxing match but because of its insidious development it would not necessarily give symptoms and would have been highly improbable to detect at the time of the physical examination before the bout. In the ring, however, it interfered with Schaaf's boxing skill so that he was less able to avoid blows. In addition, blows not in themselves dangerous, aggravated the meningo-encephalitis with the result that oedema of the brain, cerebral compression and paralysis of the left side of the body developed. As these symptoms are similar to those produced by intracranial hemorrhage following head injuries, conditions often amenable to surgery, the operation performed at the hospital was clearly indicated."

BARRY AND KENNEDY TO CLASH AT PORTNER'S TOMORROW

District Boy Favored in Match

To Complete Training at Mohawk Club This Afternoon.

Kennedy Promises Redhead Plenty of Trouble.

With a heavy advance sale of tickets presaging a sell-out, preparations for the Barry-Kennedy fight tomorrow night at Portner's Arena went forward without untoward incident last night. Evidently much interest in Barry has been created among the local sport populace by his recent showings against ranking heavyweights in New York.

Fats Cornell's demand for a change of judges has yet to bear fruit. Matchmaker Frankie Mann stated last night that he had not been officially notified of Cornell's action, and until he had nothing could be done about it. In the event of a showdown Mann intends to have George King and Denny Hughes judge all fights on the card with the exception of the finale, which will be judged by men agreeable to both parties.

Southeast Washington, Messrs. Cornell and Donovan in particular, received a rude shock Saturday when word was received from New York that Barry had escaped the watchful eye of his triner and manager, "Musky" Jackson, and had boarded a rattler for home pastures.

A scheduled meeting of the Mohawk Club had to be postponed while the members were sworn in as acting deputies and dispatched in search of the errant redhead. He finally was located.

Barry is slated to work out at the Hawk gym this afternoon in winding-up training for the bout.

Little has been heard from the other party involved in the main go Tuesday night, Les Kennedy, or his manager, Jimmy Erwin. Little importance is attached to this, however, as it is no secret that Kennedy will be on hand any place and any time he is presented with the opportunity of busting Barry once or twice on the schnozzle. Kennedy is in great shape, according to reports emanating from Portner's Arena, and will be prepared to make a real fight of it.

Griffin, Veteran Racing Figure, Ends Own Life

New Orleans, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—James Griffin, 81, former owner and trainer of race horses, ended his life in his room at a small hotel here today by drinking poison, police reported.

Officers said he left notes telling some of his life history, but assigned no reason for his act. Police said they learned he formerly lived in Louisville, Ky.

Idaho School Quintet Wins 84th Straight

Coeur D'Alene, Ida., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—The Coeur D'Alene High School Vikings have winning ways. They took their 84th consecutive basketball game from North Idaho High School teams in defeating Sanpoint High, 45 to 18, yesterday. Harold Telford, former University of Idaho basketball star, is the coach. The winning streak has stretched more than five years.

ROUMANIAN TEAM WINS.

Schreiberhau, Germany, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—The Roumanian team of Capt. Rubert and Lieut. Papana won the two-man bob sled title in a tournament billed as deciding world's championships here today.

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, FEB. 19.

Tom Kearney, who makes a specialty of quoting winter book odds on the Kentucky Derby and also handles a few bets, has released his line-up for this year. As expected, he makes Ladysman the favorite at 8-1. Boilermaker, Caterwaul, Dynastic, Head Play, Kerry Patch, Projectile, Repaid and The Darb next at 20-1. Odds on some of the Maryland favorites of last season are: Caesar's Ghost, 40; Daudet, 100; Fingal, 40; Flamborough, 50; Garden Message, 50; Jungle King, 30; Mr. Khayyam, 40; Pomponius, 40; Poppyman, 30; Swinhaven, 400; Swivel (and I like her chances), 30; War Glory, 40; War Stripes, 100; Wave On, 40. There are three 1,000-1 shots—Beeson, Ben Minturn and Big Red. The place odds are half the win odds and the show half the place. BILL.

FIRST RACE—ARAB gets another chance. Play him or leave him but I have to give this fellow another chance. Just doesn't belong in the books that this one can work as well as he has and not take down a purse. Meade will take the count today and might slide home at 20 to 1 or better. JUDGE PRIMROSE impressed the last time and may outrun DON ROMIRO for the place.

SECOND RACE—RACE STREET drops down several pegs and will be hard to beat at 3 furlongs. TUMBLER barely missed a purse the last time and seems to have an edge on CURLING for the place.

THIRD RACE—TEMPLE DANCER won so impressively the last time that I'm going back despite the shorter route. Carries only light weight and has recorded smart moves in workouts. CAPITALIST and CANNON LAW for the place battle.

FOURTH RACE—LIQUEUER seems to have located the right spot for a winning effort. LE BRUYERE has shown excellent speed on occasions and may make the top one step. If you can get a couple of bucks across the board at track odds, try GRACIAS and ask no questions.

FIFTH RACE—FAIR IMAGE belongs to smart people and they may shoot today at the shift in weights. CONAMORE'S real race would take it all. MISS TULSA impressed the last time and may make a money appearance.

SIXTH RACE—ENGLEWOOD gets in light and recent developments point to this veteran hitting the high spots. BRASS MONKEY and CHOKOLOSKEE for the place and show.

SEVENTH RACE—CHAUMONT did everything I asked the last time and gets top call here. CONTRIBUTE and VILLAGE VAMP to complete the picture.

A. A. U. Officials Plan for Tourney

Basket Ball Committee to Meet Tonight; Entries Close Wednesday.

With the deadline on team entries in the 1933 mammoth A. A. U. basket ball tournament only three days off, the committee in charge of the games will meet tonight at 7 o'clock at 729 Fifteenth street northwest, to make final plans for the event. Following the meeting of the basket ball committee the board of managers of the District Association A. A. U. will meet to plan for championship meets in swimming, boxing, handball and wrestling.

Among other things to be decided tonight are dates for the weighing in of teams, naming of officials to handle the games and various other matters incidental to the staging of the games. The Post again will sponsor the tournament.

All teams intending to compete for the city championship must file their entry blanks at the sports department of The Post on or before midnight Thursday. After that time none will be accepted. Blanks are available both at the Boys Club and at The Post.

Entries are coming in at a promising gait and officials in charge of arrangements predict a record turnout. The games will be played at the Tech High School gymnasium starting March 2 and continuing throughout the month.

The Community Center League, which concluded its season last week, Boys Club and District amateur loops are expected to have a 100 per cent enrollment in the tourney.

Firemen and G. P. O. In Important Battle

If Morris Clarke's Fire Department passers are able to defeat G. P. O. in their scheduled Government League game tonight the Typos will be knocked out of their tie for first-half leadership, with Bureau of Investigation. It is the first of a three-game card for the Smoke-eaters and will start at 8 p. m.

Yesterday's clash between Fire Department and Bolling Field was postponed until Friday.

Plenty of Thrills Here on March 3

Indian Ball Sized Up as 10 Fights Going On at Same Time.

That's an expert's size-up of the Indian ball game to be played at Central High School Stadium a week from Friday, March 3.

By far the most primitive of all sports, this is the first time this game has been played north of the Mason-Dixon Line.

Brought here upon the insistence of the District inaugural entertainment committee and after extensive dickering, this game promises all the thrills of baseball and lacrosse plus all the aggressiveness of football.

A lacrosse duel staged by All-Star teams of Baltimore and Annapolis is to serve as an appetizer to the Cherokee game.

Seats are available on or prior to Thursday at $1 and 50 cents. After that deadline they will be boosted to $1.25 and 60 cents. They may be obtained at Spaldings or at inaugural committee headquarters.

Alexandria Firemen Beat Co. F, 39 to 26

Forging ahead in the second half after being held on even terms in the first half, Columbia Engine Company, No. 4, of Alexandria, defeated Company F, 39-26, in a fast game played at the Hyattsville Armory, Roberson, with 16 points, led the winning attack.

In a preliminary game Chestnut Farms handed the Company F Reserves a 48-17 trimming.

EAGLES BOW TO GIANTS, 24 TO 23

Bennie's Shot Fails to Drop; 5-Man Team Wins.

IN THEIR role of giant killers yesterday afternoon at the George Washington University gym the Aero Eagles didn't look any too good, in fact they looked rather bad as the world famous Giants helped themselves to a 24-23 victory. The visiting pro team only had five men, but they were men, every one over six feet and veterans at the court game.

After trailing through the first half, which ended with the score 13-11 against them, the Eagles spurted in the final period and came within an ace of not only overtaking their foe but winning the game. Only a few seconds of time remained when Ralph Bennie received the ball on a pick-off play, dribbled past his guard and hoisted the leather up against the backboard. The ball circled the rim more times than a nag running a mile-and-a-half race at Marlboro, but evidently grew dizzy and dropped off.

Hutton led the winning attack, scoring 9 points, with Johnson one behind. Bennie's trio of field goals and as many charity shots topped the Eagle scoring.

In a pair of preliminary games Sholl's trounced Ballston, 27-18, and Potomac Boat Club sank the Old Dominion Boat Club, 31-25.

COL. HEIGHTS IS SOCCER CHAMPION

Defeat Marlboro, 4-1; Take Capital City League Title.

A LAST-PERIOD drive that netted three goals and produced a 4-1 victory over Marlboro for the Columbia Heights Grays, also gave the upper Fourteenth street eleven the Capital City League soccer championship in a spirited game that ended in a near riot yesterday. Columbia Heights finished its campaign undefeated. In the other Capital City League games Gaithersburg defeated Rockville by a score of 5-1, and Brandywine succumbed to the Columbia Heights Blacks by a 3-1 score.

In the Recreation League Rosedale defeated Virginia Avenue, 1-0; while the Dux booters kicked their way to a 5-0 triumph over New York Avenue.

Marlboro offered determined resistance to the Grays' potent attack in the first half and held its own, the period ending with the score deadlocked at 1-1. But the Marlboro defense crumbled in the second half and the Grays won the verdict with little trouble.

A heated argument between Hoffman, Columbia right half, and Wills, Marlboro outside left, enlivened the proceedings. Lou Gunn and Ed Koennel were outstanding for the winners.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ACCORDING to "Old Man" Henderson, who operates station KWKH, Shreveport, Senator Huey Long also has his finger in the broadcasting pie in the State of Louisiana. Mr. Henderson has been in Washington for the past several days defending KWKH against the plea of other Southern broadcasters that the transmitter be removed from the air. WWL, operated by Loyola University, New Orleans, La., has applied to the Commissioners for full time on the channel it now shares with KWKH. Other stations are applying for the privilege of sharing time with WWL, asking the deletion of KWKH.

The "Kingfish" came into the hearing when testimony was introduced that Mr. Henderson had alleged in broadcasting over his station that there was some form of conspiracy between Senator Long and WWL to make this application, which would delete KWKH if sucessful. Mr. Henderson claims that some two years ago Loyola University gave Senator Long an honorary degree as Doctor of Laws for the purpose of obtaining his political support. He alleged that Loyola University came to this hearing with the assurance of Senator Long's political influence. When questioned about the statements, "Old Man" Henderson admitted that he had made them over his station.

Once more the files of the commission are laden with "Henderson papers." Without a doubt, KWKH has occupied more file space in the Federal Radio Commission than any other station in the country.

One time there were several huge boxes of fan mail, which Henderson sent here as evidence of the popularity of the station. The boxes were shifted from room to room at the commission, without ever having been looked into save to take out a sample letter or two, until they were finally disposed of as "useless papers" with the permission of the Congress.

This hearing is going to clutter up the files until the Congress gives the commission permission to clean house again. Complete records of several of "Old Man" Henderson's broadcasts are being filed as evidence.

W. K. Henderson has been one of the most interesting characters on the American radio stage for the past several years. He attracted national attention by waging war, with KWKH as a mouthpiece, on what he terms the "illegitimate" bureaus and commissions in Washington.

Mr. Henderson is always neatly dressed, with a flower in his lapel, and wears a diamond ring and diamond stickpin—the stones being very large and brilliant ones. This trip to the commission he is also displaying a new ornament, a gold circle nearly twice the size of a half dollar, containing a figure 13, studded in diamonds, which he wears on his watch chain.

AFTER their experience with the "Old Counselor," part of a program of Halsey, Stuart & Co., which made paper profits of $36,000,000 and was associated with the Insull companies, radio listeners will not be quite so gullible in following the advice of an honest sounding voice over the air. Neither will radio chains be so likely to carry investment advertising without making a more careful investigation of its reliability.

The mere fact that a reputable chain broadcast the advice of the "Old Counselor" gave the impression of his responsibility. Mr. Stuart told the Senate committee that M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., worked out the investment program and Halsey, Stuart sponsored it.

Also certain public officials, such as Representative McFadden, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Banking Committee, who introduced the first program upon which the "Old Counselor" appeared will not be so quick to accept invitations of this kind in the future. Unquestionably the presence of men nationally known and respected on this program played an indirect part in giving listeners confidence in the "Old Counselor."

Harold L. Stuart, president of Halsey, Stuart & Co., of Chicago, explained to the Senate committee that the purpose of the radio program was to "educate the public about investment topics." It surely educated some of the listeners in a way they probably will never forget.

Altogether the series gave a black eye to financial advertising of this type over the radio and leads up to the question of what steps are to be taken to protect the public against such misleading advice in the future. It seemed to be the general conclusion at the Capitol that there should be something in the law to prevent any but the soundest of investment advertising over the radio in the future.

PRESIDENT HOOVER will be heard throughout the country twice during the coming week in what will likely be his last radio addresses before relinquishing the Presidency. The first appearance will be today, when the corner stone of the Archives Building is laid. Ogden Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, also will speak during this ceremony, (WRC, 2:15 o'clock).

The President's second broadcast will be on Thursday, when he will join with Attorney General Mitchell in the laying of the corner stone of the new Department of Justice Building.

Attorney General Mitchell will be on the air tonight during the National Radio Forum to deliver an address dealing with rackets and crime (WRC, 10:30 o'clock).

One of the most important spots in New York City is radio central of the RCA-Communications, where center all the radio circuits linking every continent and nearly every country on the face of the globe.

Listeners will have an opportunity to visit this radio crossroads of the world tonight at 11 o'clock by tuning in WJZ, WBAL stations of the blue network during the broadcast by Orestes H. Caldwell, former Federal radio commissioner.

A "complete world tour in sixty seconds" will be a feature of the broadcast, when the audience will be able to listen in successively on radio stations in Japan, South Africa, South America, Australia and Europe as the operator taps in on the respective circuits pouring messages around the globe.

DR. E. F. W. ALEXANDERSON, pioneer radio inventor, whose development of the high frequency alternator gave the United States supremacy in world-wide short wave communication, will speak as guest of honor at a program celebrating the eleventh anniversary of Station WGY, Schenectady, N. Y., to be broadcast over WRC at 11 p. m. tonight.

Dr. Alexanderson will relate some of unpublished incidents in connection with vocal radio before the advent of popular broadcasting. Other speakers will include Chester H. Lang, radio director of the General Electric Co., owner of WGY, and Martin P. Rice, who was director of broadcasting for that company in the experimental days of program broadcasting.

The half-hour performance will open with an orchestral overture made up of signature songs of WGY programs, and will feature several WGY entertainers. The anniversary program will continue for a second half-hour over WGY only.

LANNY ROSS' favorite golf story: A New York police magistrate with whom he frequently plays golf recently forgot his judicial dignity. A prisoner was before him charged with beating his wife unconscious with a golf club. "In how many strokes?" eagerly asked the judge.

Bob White

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question: My husband recently passed away, leaving me with quite a young baby boy. Do you think I should be showing a lack of appreciation for my late husband if I marry within a year of his death?

Answer: No. I can see no good to come by your remaining a widow for any length of time. You need companionship. Your child needs a father and if you have found the man in whom you may place your future, I see no reason whatsoever for waiting several years.

You have passed through deep waters, and troubled. An ocean of tears will not bring your husband back to father the home, and the only sane thing to do is to pack away in the chest of memories all the associations which you have been fortunate enough to have.

The road of life was meant to hold companionship. If one has dropped by the wayside, it is not to be expected that you carry the load alone. When the traveller meets you with honest heart and willing hands, do not feel that you show any disrespect to your former husband by taking unto yourself a new helpmeet.

Life is short at the longest, but the road is long and lonely. It was meant to travel along hand in hand with a heart's love, for sorrows cross every path—sorrows too bitter to bear alone.

Then, too, the wise counsel of a father is what a child needs, for while mother love fills its place in the heart, the influence of the father determines the future of the boy and is a guiding hand for good.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

A LETTER FROM UNCLE JOHN, WALT. HE AND AUNT HATTIE AND CLARENCE WILL BE HERE ON THE BUS TOMORROW TO STAY WITH US.
UNCLE WALT, WHO'S CLARENCE?
CLARENCE IS YOUR SECOND COUSIN. UNCLE JOHN IS HIS GRANDFATHER.
CLARENCE WILL HAVE TO GO TO SCHOOL HERE—PROBABLY IN YOUR GRADE.
KEEN! I HOPE HE'S GOOD IN ARITHMETIC.
RACHEL, WE'LL HAVE TO PUT UP A COT IN THE BOYS' ROOM FOR CLARENCE. UNCLE JOHN AND AUNT HATTIE WILL HAVE LORA'S ROOM. SHE'LL HAVE TO USE THE HALL BEDROOM.
THAT'S ALL RIGHT, MISS WALLET. I WORKED IN A HOTEL ONCE.

Dreams Come True

WELL, I'M ON MY WAY TO THE HOUSE PARTY—OH TAXI?!!?
IT'S TOO BAD I HAVEN'T GOT SOMEONE TO TAKE ME TO THIS PARTY—
NOW IF THAT TALL, DARK, HANDSOME MAN FROM THE BOAT WAS ONLY HERE—GOOD NIGHT! THERE HE IS!

Post's Model Home Is Realty Sensation

The Washington Post model home of 1933 still continues the sensation in real estate circles for the season. More than 3,000 persons have visited it since its opening. This exhibit structure sets a new record in modern home building.

The home, located at 418 Ingraham street northwest, has pleased many persons. Visitors are impressed by the substantial construction and convenient arrangement of this residence, built by B. H. Gruver, and the beauty of its furnishings and decoration by Joseph B. McSherry. The house will be open daily and Sundays until 9 p. m. To visit it, drive out Georgia avenue to Ingraham street, then turn right, or eastwardly, to the home.

The Meanderer

Visits Paint, Upholstery and Furniture Shops—Suggests Small Beginnings in Line With D. C. Plan for Remodeling Homes.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Small paint brushes slapping away, old and worn upholsteries replaced by neat new coverings, a marred and worn chair newly finished, a few brand-new pieces of furniture bought now when values in the best house furnishings are so advantageous—all these and other small beginnings will combine with the larger home-remodeling plans that are being fostered by District bankers, to give charm to our home life—and to help out the general situation.

Covering up some of these battered old tables, chairs, beds and bureaus with good paint or enamel, in well-selected colors, should be inspiriting. Perhaps it will help to cover mental dejection as well as the dejection of the furniture. The Meanderer speaks as one who has often found healing for many kinds of scratches—in cans of paint. So her gaze dwelt long on a leading painter's window display on Tenth street, where a decorative stencil is given free with every quart of quick-drying enamel purchased.

And you need not accept just the stencil that happens to be fastened to the can of enamel you buy—you may select yours from two dozen or more designs.

Lampe shades, incidentally, are priced very low in this store on Tenth street.

New coverings for old are applied very rapidly, but very carefully, in an upholsterer's shop on N street, at prices that will surprise you. Whole living room suites are done over there. Lately, the upholsterer says, he has frequently been asked to put two or even three different kinds of coverings on three-piece living room sets. This idea is in keeping with the current mode of varied color schemes in decoration. "Bright patterns, and several of them in one room, are much liked," he says.

The tale of a beautiful door from an old period sidebroad was the most interesting thing the Meanderer met on this tour. The door was all that was left on a beautiful, cherished sidebroad after there had been a fire in the home of the owner—a high-ranking Army man. It had been the repository of bottles in one compartment, and of an especially choice blend of tobacco in another. The owner remembered that the man who had refinished the sidebroad some years before had been greatly interested in the rare old piece.

"Could you find me one like it?" he asked. "No," the cabinet maker said, "but I can make that one over again if you'll let me have that door." The memory of the beautiful sideboard was so vivid in the mind of the woodworker that he did reproduce it, much to the delight of the bereft owner. The Meanderer tells you the story because you, too, may want to restore or replace a cherished piece of furniture with such efficient help. If you have a photograph or a working drawing of the furniture you want reproduced, you might have a talk with this cabinetmaker. The trip to his shop would be well worth while if only to see the old-type fiddle-back rockers he is working on.

Faithful reproductions of old furniture are selling for as much as 50 per cent off at a furniture store on Seventh street between D and E streets.

A butterfly table of the right size for dining room use, which has been priced at nearly $50, can now be bought for $24.50 at a furniture shop on Twelfth street near G.

Hand-blocked linens, so charming with old furniture or new, are easily made with a hand-blocking set, complete with paint, blocks, instruction book and everything else necessary, in the Tenth street paint shop where these meanderings started.

"CAP" STUBBS — Tippie Won't Stand Any More Nonsense — By Edwina

A New Yorker At Large

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff:

When in New York, Mae West dines at a diminutive restaurant on Eighth avenue known as "Frankie and Johnnie's'". . . . Irene Purcell is spending the winter on a tropical plantation in Jamaica. . . . So Josephine Dunn married a lawyer. And it was only three weeks ago that she told me she'd like to have a newspaperman for a husband. . . . "Why?" I asked. . . . "Because," she answered, "they never come home."

Lenore Ulric ran into a storm of headaches when she stated on her income tax return that she spent a huge amount entertaining dramatic critics. . . . The critics unleashed a satirical barrage in reply that had the exotic star or "Lulu Belle" almost in hysterics.

As a matter of fact, most of Manhattan dramatic critics live rather secluded, scholarly existences and rarely mingle with theatrical stars. . . . I questioned three of the most prominent reviewers at a premiere the other night and discovered that none of them was personally acquainted with more than a dozen actresses. . . . They don't like to know them personally because they fear it might have a subconscious influence on their criticisms of plays. . . . At the hundreds of parties given by stage stars that I have attended in the role of a reporter, I have rarely seen a first-string critic.

No Petting These Pets.

Lily Pons, French opera singer, has a wildcat as a pet. . . . She keeps it in her apartment overlooking Central Park, and the chief trouble it gives her is that she finds it difficult to find servants who will work in the same room with that cat.

It couldn't be any more vicious than that golden Siamese cat which is the pride of Constance Collier. . . . It sits harmlessly purring in a corner, but if a stranger approaches that Siamese becomes a spitting, scratching bundle of unbridled fury. . . . Violet Henson also has two Siamese felines which are far from pleasant if you feel in the mood to pet them.

McGraw an Editor.

John McGraw is an expert editor and one of his favorite diversions is to sit in at the head of the copy desk of a small sporting paper in which he has an interest. . . . I'll never forget my amazement several years ago when this same paper bought several articles I had written about the former manager of the Giants. . . . When I dropped into the editorial offices a few days later I discovered McGraw placidly correcting proofs on the articles.

I don't know whether it is supposed to be intentional, but a current mystery melodrama is a startling parallel to a scandal which rocked New York a couple of decades ago. . . . The principals in the true story are still about today, and what a shock they must get when they walk in and see their harrowing experiences reenacted on the stage.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 18.

LOSSES FROM CASUALTIES AND THEFT.

To be deductible, a loss arising from "fires, storms, shipwrecks, or other casualty" need not be connected with the taxpayer's trade or business. If his home or his automobile is destroyed by fire, or his summer bungalow damaged by flood or storm, he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained.

Loss of property by theft or burglary is an allowable deduction, and need not be incurred in trade or business. Hence, the loss occasioned by the theft of jewelry or an automobile used for pleasure and convenience is deductible. It must be established, however, that the property actually was stolen. Should circumstances attending the loss leave the owner in doubt as to whether it was stolen or lost, the claim would not be allowed.

A loss is deductible only in the year in which it is sustained, even though, as in the case of a theft or casualty, it may not be discovered until a later year. Losses compensated for by insurance or otherwise, of course, are not deductible. However, in the event the amount of insurance is not sufficient to recompense for the loss sustained, the excess of the loss over the amount of the insurance is deductible.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

GROWING on the Balearic Islands, a Spanish province in the Mediterranean Sea, are olive trees which have lived and borne fruit for centuries. Some trees in the Old World are believed to be more than 1,000 years old. The olive tree begins to bear fruit when it is about seven years old, attaining full production almost 25 years later.

The olive tree, which has been cultivated since prehistoric times, has played an important part in the history of the world. It was a sprig of olive leaves that the dove brought back to the ark, mentioned in Genesis viii, 11. In ancient Greece the highest honor that could be bestowed upon a winner of the Olympic games was a crown of olive branches. This ancient custom lives today in the ceremony of crowning kings and rulers. The olive branch is also the traditional sign of peace.

Kangaroo rats, which are neither related to the kangaroo nor the rat, have a fighting style all their own. When two fight, as for instance over food, they assume crouching positions much like two boxers, and spar for openings. When one finds his opponent a little off guard he delivers a blow with his foot. Knockouts are often obtained.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MR. AND MRS. HOOVER PACK UP.

MRS. HOOVER—You haven't made a single suggestion about packing, Herbert. Don't blame me if after we've gone we find we left something behind for the Roosevelts.

President—Oh, I've been packing my personal things, dear.

Mrs. Hoover—How about all those fishing rods?

President—I'm having Richey get them together. He'll look after my wading boots and trout flies, too.

Mrs. Hoover—What about all those medicine balls and gymnasium suits?

President (with relief)—We'll just leave 'em behind. It'll seem good to be back in California where I won't have to exercise unless I want to.

Mrs. Hoover—Do you want me to pack all those photographs?

President—What photographs?

Mrs. Hoover—Oh, all those group pictures. Here's that big one of the first depression commission. The 1930 one.

President (painfully)—Throw it away!

MRS. HOOVER—Have you cleaned out your desk yet?

President—Not yet, dear, but I'll do it in a day or two.

Mrs. Hoover—You really ought to get at it and not leave it until the last minute. Remember what a time you had cleaning out your desk when you left as Secretary of Commerce. It was almost as bad as that time you moved out of the Belgian relief offices.

President (looking over his desk wearily)—I'll get at it pretty soon.

Mrs. Hoover—What was in all those boxes you had the boys pack the other day?

President—Official documents and records of all my official acts. I'm shipping everything to California so that if there is any criticism of my acts during the—er—new deal, I'll have all the facts at hand.

Mrs. Hoover—Did you pack copies of all your speeches?

President—All except that two-car garage and abolition-of-the-poorhouse one. There'll be enough people remind me of that anyhow.

* * * *

Mrs. Hoover—How about this Indian headgear?

President—That's a stock property of the White House. Let Franklin have it.

Mrs. Hoover—And what're you going to do with all those sailfish you had mounted? We'll never have room for that at Palto Alto.

President—We'll take the biggest one. Have the janitor stick the others in the cellar.

Mrs. Hoover—Well, dear, be sure to clean out your desk pretty soon. We don't want the Roosevelts to come in and find anything unkempt. And, Herbert, don't forget that bottom drawer. You always have it full of peanut shucks.

President—Okay, dear.

Mrs. Hoover (as an afterthought)—Oh, and what'll we do with all those back numbers of magazines?

President—Leave 'em for the Democrats. They won't know the difference.

NO PARKING STREETS OF DOWNTOWN AREA FIXED FOR MARCH 4

Emergency Regulations Are Drawn Up for Traffic Inauguration Day.

An emergency no-parking area covering several square miles in downtown Washington and on several of the arterial highways has been determined upon for the period from midnight, March 3, according to announcement yesterday by Thomas Littlepage, chairman of the committee on transportation. The emergency regulations drawn up by Inspector Benjamin A. Lamb, in charge of the Traffic Bureau, cover a section which runs from Sixth street southeast, on the east, to Twenty-third street northwest, on the west, and from Virginia avenue on the south to L street on the north. Many of the arterial highways entering the city also have been included. The text of the traffic regulations follows:

That territory comprised within the following boundary lines is hereby declared a congested area and no parking shall be permitted thereon from 12 midnight, March 3, to 12 midnight, March 4, 1933, or until such time as the signs prohibiting parking may be removed.

Area Boundaries in Detail.

Beginning at the southeast corner of Sixth street and Virginia avenue southeast, north along the east curb of Sixth street to the northeast corner of Sixth and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, west along the north curb of Pennsylvania avenue to the northeast corner of B street at Second street southeast, north along the east curb of Second street southeast, to the northeast corner of Second and C streets northeast, west on the north curb of C street northeast, to the northeast corner of First and C streets northeast, north along the east curb of First street to the southeast corner of First street and the outer circle of Union Station Plaza, east and around the outer circle of Union Station Plaza to the northeast corner of California street, west along north side of Union Station Plaza and Columbus Statue to the northeast corner of First and Massachusetts avenue northeast, south along the west curb of the outer curb of Union Station Plaza to the southwest corner of Louisiana avenue and the outer curb of Union Station Plaza, west along the north curb of Louisiana avenue to the northwest corner of North Capitol and D streets, west along the north curb of D street to the northeast corner of Fifth and D streets northwest, north along east curb of Fifth street to the northeast corner of Fifth and G streets northwest, west along north curb of G street to northeast corner of Fourteenth and G streets northwest, north along the east curb of Fourteenth street to the northeast corner of Fourteenth and H streets, west along the north curb of H street to northeast corner of Seventeenth and H streets northwest, north along the east curb of Seventeenth street to the northeast corner of Seventeenth and I streets, west along the north curb of Seventeenth and I streets to the northeast corner of Nineteenth and I streets, north along the east curb of Nineteenth street to the northeast corner of K street, west along north curb of K street to the northeast curb of Twentieth and K streets, north along the east curb of Twentieth street to the northeast corner of Twentieth and L streets, west along the north curb of L street to the northwest corner of Twenty-second street and New Hampshire avenue, south along the west curb of New Hampshire avenue to the northwest corner of New Hampshire avenue and the outer circle of Washington Circle, west around the outer circle to the southwest corner of Twenty-third street and south along west curb of Twenty-third street to the southwest corner of Twenty-third street and Constitution avenue, east along the south curb of Constitution avenue to the southwest corner of Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue, east along the north curb of Constitution avenue to the northeast corner of Seventh street and Constitution avenue, thence from the southeast corner of Seventh street and Constitution avenue, east along the south curb of Constitution avenue to the southwest corner of Sixth street and Constitution avenue, south on Sixth street to a point opposite the south curb of Missouri avenue, east along south curb of Missouri avenue to the southwest corner of Third street and Missouri avenue, south on the west side of Third street to the southwest corner of Third street and Virginia avenue southwest, east along south curb of Virginia avenue to the southeast curb of Sixth street and Virginia avenue southwest, the point of beginning.

Official Sign Streets.

On the following highways, or on any other highway that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia may deem necessary to prohibit parking, no vehicles shall park between the hours of midnight, March 3, to 12 midnight, March 4, 1933, provided that such highways shall be designated by official signs indicating the prohibition of such parking:

Both sides of Delaware avenue southwest, from Virginia avenue to I street southwest.

Both sides of I street, from Twelfth to Seventeenth streets northwest.

Both sides of M street northwest, from Thirty-sixth street to M street bridge.

North side of New York avenue between Eleventh and Twelfth streets northwest.

Both sides of Pennsylvania avenue southeast, from Sixth to Eleventh streets southeast.

Both sides of Third street southwest, from Virginia avenue to M street southwest.

West side of Fourth street from D to F streets northwest.

Both sides of Twelfth street from G to I streets northwest.

West side of Eleventh street from I to L street northwest.

Both sides of Fourteenth street, from Water street southwest to Thomas Circle northwest.

Within the territory designated as a temporary congested section in the preceding paragraph, no vehicle shall be parked or left standing except when actually taking on or discharging passengers, or in the case of commercial vehicles, when actually loading or unloading merchandise; and such vehicles when so engaged shall stop or stand in a position parallel with the curb, provided, however, that this shall not apply to taxicabs, sightseeing vehicles, which vehicles may occupy the stands now established, or such special stands as may hereafter be established within this zone, except where the occupying of such stands will interfere with the formation or passage of any scheduled parade or ceremony, or the free movement of traffic.

Within the congested section as defined in these regulations, or within the congested section known as Zone 1 in the Traffic Regulations of the District of Columbia, no vehicle shall make a U turn so as to go in the opposite direction at or between intersecting streets.

Any person violating any of the foregoing regulations shall be punished by a fine not to exceed $100, and in default of payment thereof shall be imprisoned in the workhouse of said District for a period not longer than 60 days.

LOVE BIRDS HAPPY AS GIRLS POSE

COLORS PRESENTED ITALIAN WAR LODGE

Ambassador Rosso Among Speakers at Central High Ceremony.

Presentation of the colors and official recognition of the Washington post of the Italian World War Veterans were made yesterday at a colorful ceremony in Central High School auditorium.

Speaking in their native tongue, a number of prominent officials of the Italian government praised the friendly feeling between Italy and America and lauded the cooperation of the two countries during the World War.

Among the speakers were Augusto Rosso, Italian Ambassador to the United States; Capt. Paolo Grandi, of Cumberland, Md.; Gastone Grandi, the Rev. Francesco Lardone, of Washington; and Capt. Vincenzo Vedovi, president of the Federation of Italian War Veterans.

Response was given by Col. Rice W. Means, U. S. A., and J. H. Shepherd, department commander of the District Grand Army of the Republic.

Prior to the meeting a mass was said in the Italian Catholic Church, followed by a reception at the Italian Embassy.

The colors were presented by members of the Costello Post, American Legion, assisted by the Costello drum corps of 40 members. Music was furnished by the Americanization School Association band.

The day's program was concluded with a dinner dance at the Hotel Raleigh.

Fire at Tivoli Put Out As Patrons Watch Movie

While patrons were watching the matinee performance yesterday at the Tivoli Theater at Fourteenth street and Park road northwest, members of Engine Company No. 11 were quickly extinguishing a small fire in one of the dressing rooms on the second floor of the building.

A ladder was lifted to the dressing room, where firemen found the blaze was held under control by a sprinkling system. Little damage resulted.

Radio Star to Appear For All-States Ball

An entertainment program, to be headed by a radio star whose identity will be kept secret until the time of the event, will be a feature of the All-States ball at the Shoreham tomorrow night.

Leon Brusiloff and his orchestra will furnish the music for the dance. W. E. Hoffheins, president of the society, will head the reception committee.

ALLEGED CRAWFORD DEATH AID QUIZZED

Leesburg Officers Grill Him, but Witnesses Fail in Identification.

The quest for the accomplice of George Crawford, in his alleged murder of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Nina Buckner, centered in Leesburg last night where authorities were questioning Lee Bresston, 45, colored, of 117 Four and a half street southwest.

Bresston was arrested here yesterday by Detective Sergt. J. Wolff on a charge of housebreaking. He was turned over to Arlington County officers Ray Cobean and Raymond Thompson, who had broadcast a lookout for him.

Commonwealth's Attorney John Galleher, of Leesburg, questioned Bresston at the Arlington County Jail regarding letters which Bresston is alleged to have written to Leesburg authorities, in which he allegedly sought to implicate another colored man in the slaying. Bresston then was taken to Leesburg.

Witnesses who say they saw Crawford and the colored man in Middleburg, Va., a few hours before the Ilsley murders, failed to identify Bresston as Crawford's companion. He will be questioned again today, Mr. Galleher said.

Bresston denied writing the letter in which he allegedly tried to incriminate an Arlington County man. However, Mr. Galleher said, the handwriting on the letters resembled handwriting on letters written to the Arlington County man's wife.

If no evidence is uncovered against Bresston, Mr. Galleher said, he will be turned back to Arlington County, to face the housebreaking charge.

Crawford is under arrest in Massachusetts, where he is fighting extradition to Virginia on the ground that he will not receive a fair trial.

Chapter of Red Cross Asks Sewing for Needy

With increased demands being made for clothing for the needy, Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross, through its chairman, Mrs. Bertha Kelly, called upon all organizations in the county either to attend the sewing meetings of the chapter, or to communicate with Mrs. Kelly and materials will be delivered.

During January the chapter distributed more than 50 bags of flour, the chairman announced.

Klink Asks About Anti-Christ.

The subject: "Who will be the Anti-Christ?" was discussed last night by Otto J. Klink, at a revival being conducted by him at the National Gospel Tabernacle, North Capitol and K streets northwest. The Rev. Harry J. Collier is pastor.

Electoral College Members Will Be Inaugural Guests

Assemblage Will Be First Meeting of Any Larger Unit Than Single State's Delegation; 28 Governors Accept Bid to Exercises.

(Associated Press.)

The first actual meeting of any greater unit of the electoral college than the membership of a single State will be held during the Roosevelt inaugural program.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the inaugural committee, said yesterday that acceptances from several hundred electors have been received in response to special invitations.

Electors have held State meetings and delegated one or more of their members to go to the National Capital with their vote but have never met as a body before, Admiral Grayson said.

The electors, whose work is cut out for them when presidential ballots are counted, will have no official business to attend to but will be classed as distinguished guests at the ceremonies.

Twenty-eight governors also have accepted invitations, as have surviving members of the Woodrow Wilson Cabinet, the widows of several former Presidents, and party leaders from many States. Only one or two members of the Democratic national committee will be unable to attend, Admiral Grayson said.

Two women, Mrs. Isabella Greenway, of Arizona, a personal friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, and Mrs. John E. King, of San Antonio, Tex., will act as representatives of the governors of their States. Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Governor of Texas, canceled her acceptance of an invitation because of duties in connection with a meeting of the Texas Legislature.

Six dance orchestras will provide music for the inaugural ball which Mrs. Roosevelt and other members of the President-elect's family will attend. They will include groups directed by Rudy Vallee, Guy Lombardo, Eli Dantzig, Eddie Duchin, Irving Rose and George Gaul.

BIBLE CONFERENCE SESSIONS LAUNCHED AT CAPITAL CHURCH

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley Is Director of Choir in Some Special Numbers.

The opening sessions of the city-wide conference sponsored by the Columbia Bible Training School of Washington was held yesterday at the First Congregational Church with outstanding speakers talking on the conference theme, "The Need of God and His Word in the World Today."

The conference sessions are under the direction of Dr. T. T. Roberts, and the music is being supervised by William E. Braithwaite, assisted by Mrs. Ruby Stahl, Thomas Moss and Justin Lawrie, representing four leading churches in the city. The choirs of the National City Christian Church, First Congregational Church, the Calvary Baptist Church and the Foundry Methodist Church are presenting group musical programs at each of the sessions.

The devotional service yesterday afternoon was conducted by Dr. John E. Briggs. Speakers included Dr. George Fiske Dudley, Dr. W. L. Darby, Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, Irving L. Koch and Representative David Hogg, of Indiana. The latter spoke on "The Bible and the Modern World."

Mrs. Wiley Sings.

Last night's session was opened at 8 o'clock by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, in charge of the devotional service with the choir of the First Congregational Church, singing special numbers. The principal address of the evening was delivered by Bishop James E. Freeman. Another address was delivered by Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, president of the Columbia Bible Training School. The public is invited to attend all sessions of the conference.

The two remaining sessions of the conference will take place tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, with equally important pastors and laymen taking part in the devotional services and talks.

Outstanding talks tonight will be given at the interdenominational meeting by Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, whose subject will be "The Bible, Our Mirror." The Rev. William S. Abernethy will speak on "A Nation's Blunders;" The Rev. John C. Copenhaver on "The Need of Knowing Christ," and the Rev. Clifford H. Jope on "The Christian, the Interpreter of Christ."

Quartet to Entertain.

Devotional services will be conducted by the Rev. Samuel Judson Porter, with music by Thomas Moss and the quartet of Calvary Baptist Church Choir, including Mrs. Erna Embrey, Mrs. Jessie Werner, William F. Raymond and Fred J. Eden. Benjamin J. Brooks, of the Columbia School, will make a brief talk on the work of the training school prior to the benediction tonight.

Tuesday evening the closing session will open at 8 o'clock with a devotional service conducted by Mrs. William N. Ritter, and with music by Justin Lawrie, and singers of Foundry Methodist Church. The leading address of the occasion will be delivered by Representative Ralph F. Lozier, of Missouri, who will take for his subject "The Church, the State and the Matchless Christ." Other well-known speakers for this closing session of the city-wide conference will be Dr. Harvey Baker Smith, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Dr. Henry W. Snyder, Dr. H. H. Harman and Dr. T. T. Roberts.

Ten o'Clock Club To Help Musicians

Concert for Benefit of Jobless Artists Will Be Held Tomorrow.

The relief of local musicians and their families who are in real need is again the object of the Ten o'Clock Club in presenting the second in the series of six benefit concerts tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. at the Washington Club, Seventeenth and K streets northwest. Five specific Washington families whose distressing circumstances have been called to the attention of the Ten o'Clock Club, Edward S. Macdonald, director, are to be helped from the funds raised in this series. In one case there is a family of nine dependent upon a skilled musician who for some time has been out of work.

The artists who are giving their services for this second concert tomorrow night are Robert Frederick Freund, barytone, who recently returned to Washington from Palm Beach, where he was associated with the noted singer, John Charles Thomas; the Washington String Quartet—Milton Schwartz and Paul Brightenburg, violins; George Wargo, viola, and Sidney Hamer, violoncello, and Emerson Meyers, pianist. The string quartet members are all from the first chair personnel of the National Symphony Orchestra, Hans Kindler, conductor.

The music tomorrow night will be German music of the highest type.

Tall Cedars to Entertain.

Ladies night of Capitol Lodge No. 104, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, will be held Saturday in the ballroom of the Raleigh Hotel, instead of tomorrow night as previously announced. A reception, dancing and entertainment will feature the program. Flowers and nearly 100 door and other prizes will be given those attending.

William T. Stone to Speak.

"National Defense and Military Expenditure" will be discussed by William T. Stone, Washington representative of the Foreign Policy Association, at 3 p. m. today at 1811 I street northwest. The address will be given under the auspices of the District branch of the Women's International League.

Horseman Hurt in Fall.

Thrown from his horse while riding near Nebraska and Massachusetts avenues northwest yesterday afternoon, William M. Hoffman, 28, of 2902 P street northwest, suffered severe lacerations to his face and head. He was treated at Georgetown Hospital.

One-Act Play Tournament Scene Shifts to Roosevelt

Miss Florence Evelyn Rice (left) and Miss Ruth Chindblom, daughter of Representative C. R. Chindblom, of Illinois, who have leading roles in the Chapel Players' presentation of "The Gift of Jehovah."

Last of Preliminaries Will Be Started Tomorrow at High School.

The final round in the preliminaries of the District 1933 one-act play tournament will open at 8 p. m. tomorrow at Roosevelt high school, Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest.

The contest will continue at that school on Thursday and Saturday evenings. The four plays to be entered in the finals two comedies and two serious offerings—will be chosen after the Saturday performance.

During the first week the tournament offered several plays which many believe "will take considerable to beat." An unusual phase of tomorrow night's program is the presentation of the same play by two different groups—"The Gift of Jehovah" by the Young People's Society of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church and by The Chapel Players of Washington. The two other plays to be given tomorrow are: "Enter the Hero," by the Park View Players, and "The Wolf at the Door," by the Troupers of the East Washington Community Center.

ATHLETE'S WIFE, 24, IS OVERCOME BY GAS

Mrs. Ralph Bennie Is Found Unconscious in Home; Condition Serious.

Mrs. Esther Bennie, attractive 24-year-old wife of Ralph Bennie, prominent Washington athlete, was in serious condition at Emergency Hospital last night as the result of inhaling illuminating gas in the couple's apartment at 2415 E street northwest.

The young woman was found unconscious by neighbors and officials of the apartment group known as "Naval Village" who broke open the door to the suite. She was slumped on a sofa in the living room, a picture of her 3-year-old son, Jimmie, clutched in her hand.

All burners on the kitchen stove, adjoining the living room, were open and unlit in the Bennie apartment.

Fire rescue apparatus and an Emergency Hospital ambulance were summoned. The firemen worked over the young woman for more than an hour without restoring her to consciousness. She was removed to the hospital after the contents of four oxygen tanks had been administered.

Quick action of Andrew Lewis, colored janitor, in shutting off the gas may have saved Mrs. Bennie's life.

Mr. Bennie could not be located late last night. He had played in a semi-pro basket ball game in the afternoon. Bennie has for several years been an outstanding baseball, basket ball and golf player, starring at Eastern High School. Two years ago he was a member of the team which represented Washington in the national public links tournament.

Gsovski Will Lecture On Russian Revolution

The first of a series of illustrated lectures on Russia in the past and present will be given tonight at the Washington College of Music, 2107 S street northwest.

The lecture, by Vladimir Gsovski, will deal with Russia on the eve of revolution. The other lectures will be given on March 6, March 22 and April 4.

Man Is Badly Injured By Hit-and-Run Driver

Richard Terry, colored, 39, of 1101 Forty-second street northeast, suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and severe lacerations to the body when he was knocked down yesterday by a hit-and-run driver.

An unidentified person pulled a fire box nearby in the hopes of pursuing the assailant's car, reported to have been a dark sedan. Terry was taken to Casualty Hospital.

ROVER SEEKS LAW TO COVER LETTER

Pair Held for Regret That Roosevelt Escaped Say It Was Only Joke.

District Attorney Leo A. Rover today is scanning law books to determine if any charge should be placed against two young men, arrested Saturday, one of whom wrote and the other mailed a letter indicating regret at the failure of the attempt on the life of President-elect Roosevelt at Miami, Fla.

The men were arrested Saturday after a passerby had found the letter near a mail box. Three other persons mentioned in the letter also were arrested. Two of these were released after questioning while another, Patrick McCartin, 41, was held pending investigation of his citizenship status.

Harry T. Thompson, 27, whom police declare to be the writer of the letter, and William R. Birmingham, 28, who is supposed to have been delegated to mail it, are those held.

Postal authorities last night declared they had not participated in the investigation and probably would not enter it, inasmuch as the letter had never actually been put in the mail.

Thompson contends that the letter was written in a facetious vein and the general tenor of the epistle bears out this claim. However, police decided to put the matter in the hands of prosecuting authorities for study, in view of the gravity of the subject matter.

Motorcycle Rider Is Gravely Injured

Two Autos Also in Crash, but Police Release Both Drivers.

A collision between two automobiles and a motorcycle on the Washington-Richmond highway, near Alexandria, Va., yesterday afternoon brought serious injuries to John Fletcher, 20, of Mount Vernon, Va., who was operating the motorcycle.

Police said Fletcher attempted to pass another machine on a curve and crashed head-on into the car of Charles Spence, of 1262 Lawrence street northeast. Spence jammed on his brakes and the sudden stop resulted in the auto of A. John Holthusen, of Camden, N. J., colliding from the rear.

Fletcher was taken to Georgetown Hospital, where it was found he suffered a possible fracture of the skull and severe lacerations to his arms and legs. His condition is serious. Neither of the car drivers were held.

DR. SMITH DEPLORES LIMITED EDUCATION IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Dominican Makes Plea for Religious Training on General Lines.

The very Rev. Ignatius Smith, noted Dominican preacher, in a sermon at the Church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday declared that the limitations which prevent educators from meeting the demands made of public educational system is due to the general public and to the legislators who determine the policy of the educational system of the country.

The sermon was included in the service of the Washington Catholic Radio Hour, which was broadcast directly from the church through Station WOL. The services included special devotions at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in the church. The music, under the direction of Mr. Harry Wheaton Howard, included Miss Florence Yocum, soprano; Miss Ann Arlen, violinist; and the Boys' Sanctuary Choir. The Catholic Women's Benevolent Legion attended in a body.

Deplores Limitations.

Father Smith, whose subject was "The Delusion of Omnipotent Education" said in part:

"The system of education prevalent in the schools that are supported by public taxes, even at its best, suffers from limitations. These limitations prevent the system from becoming all powerful or omnipotent. These limitations make it impossible for educators to meet the demands of the public educational system. Furthermore many of these limitations are due, not so much to our educators as to the general public and the legislators who determine the policy of the educational system. To be specific, among the limitations which prevent our educational system from fulfilling the hopes that are placed in it, is the inability to teach religion and the inability to teach morality and to mould character with the help of religious teaching. And understand that I am not criticizing the system merely from the viewpoint of the Catholic Church; I am joined by thousands of others who are not Catholics and who are demanding, in the name of citizenship and complete education, that some religious education be given to our children in connection with their education in school.

Joint Opinion Favorable.

"The fact that interdenominational religion boards in New York City and other large metropolises are giving serious thought to this condition, the fact that Lutherans, Episcopalians and the Jews have their own denominational schools and the fact that during the last year several important meetings have been held by the colleges of the country, to discuss the place of religion in education, indicate that the airing of the problem is not limited to Catholic circles. All of these people are interested in the success of education; in realizing the high hopes that have been placed in it, interested in turning out dependable and well-developed citizens, and they insist that all of this is impossible of achievement unless they be permitted to touch the soul, as well as the mind and the body, unless they be permitted to impart religious knowledge, unless they be permitted to teach the place of God and His laws in the scheme of life. Education will not have taken its first step toward power until this privilege and right are extended to it."

Father Smith stated that about one-fourth of the entire population of the country is at school at the present moment. There are approximately 25,000,000, in the grade schools, 4,000,000 in high schools and over 1,000,000 in colleges and universities.

Card Party and Dance To Be Given by Church

An elaborate card party and pre-Lenten dance will be held at the New Amsterdam Hotel, 2701 Fourteenth street northwest, tomorrow night under auspices of the Church of Our Lady of the Assumption. The combined societies of the Congress Heights Church are working on the plans. The Rev. Francis X. Cavanaugh, pastor of the church, is being assisted by the following: Margaret Cox, Nona Cox, Mildred Cusick, Anna Blaine, Mary Kennedy, Ada Kennedy, Hester Cox, Doris Mentges, Catherine Mullicin, Mary Dean, Mary Barnard, Lauretta Quinn, Currie Schrieber, Mrs. Marjorie Butt, Mrs. Margaret Soper and Mrs. Catherine Redmond.

The entire proceeds will go to the building fund for the new church on Nichols avenue southeast.

Adventist Speaker Says World's End Is Nearing

"Six hundred years before Christ the Prophet Jeremiah was shown in holy vision that the closing days of earth's history would be characterized by a war, and a visit to Europe will convince any fair-minded person that the warnings of the weeping prophet are about to appear as a fearful reality," warned C. H. Watson, president of the general conference of Seventh Day Adventists at Columbia Hall, Takoma Park Saturday.

Reminding his hearers that for more than 80 years, the denominational leaders have been proclaiming the coming of a sanguinary battle among the nations that would eventually ring down the curtain on civilization, Mr. Watson said the day is fast approaching when this conflict will begin.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

	1932	1933
Deaths	15	7
Injuries	477	455
Accidents	1,644	1,122

Don't overload your car with passengers, especially the front seat. In an emergency, the operator is greatly handicapped for lack of sufficient room to manipulate the controls properly. It is bad enough to have three persons in the front seat, but never try to accommodate any more.

The accident figures to date are:

"Be Careful."
